Allies Expect More Soviet Roadblocks in Berlin Case

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite their bitter protests, the Western Allies expect the Soviet Union to throw more roadblocks across the highway into Berlin.

This was reported Wednesday by authoritative sources after the Allies had accused Moscow in a diplomatic note of arbitrary and unjustified action in delaying an American Army convoy for 42 hours. The convoy was finally waved through Tuesday night.

Neither the protest nor the fact that the Americans eventually were allowed to proceed means that this gloomy chapter of U.S.-Soviet relations can be closed, authoritative sources warned. They said that top officials of the administration agree the West must expect similar or other harassments in and around Berlin.

This is the result of the first, hasty assessment of this latest Soviet attempt to make the United States, Britain and France accept Soviet rules on the autobahn, the highway connecting Berlin with the West. A more scientific evaluation will follow.

The aim of this process will be to find the answer to this question: Why did the Soviets do what they did, first in October and now, less than a month later, again?

The 12-vehicle convoy with 24 drivers and codrivers, carrying 20 passengers or troops, was held up at the Marienborn checkpoint on the western end of the autobahn. The Soviets

11 Men, Entombed 183 Feet Deep in Mine, Rescued

By LOYAL GOULD

BROISTEDT, Germany (AP) —Eleven men were rescued today from a flooded iron mine two weeks after they were entombed and given up for dead.

A huge drilling rig broke through early today to the gallery 183 feet below the surface where they had taken refuge when disaster struck Oct. 24.

The shaft was quickly reinforced by steel tubing, and one by one the bearded, haggard men were brought to the surface in a bomb-shaped rescue capsule.

They were located Sunday and since then had been supplied with food through a shaft less than two inches in diameter.

Heinz Kull, 51, was the first miner to reach the surface. As he was taken from the rescue capsule, a hush fell over crowds, kept at a distance of about 30 yards from the shaft.

In the crowd were members of the men's families who had kept the long watch since the electrifying news came five days ago that these 11 men were alive. Many wept.

Millions watched this last act of the mine drama on West German television.

All the miners were placed on a stretcher and carried to a nearby mobile clinic. There teams of Red Cross physicians examined them. The survivors were offered their first real coffee in two weeks and sandwiches.

After happy reunions with their families, the men were taken by ambulances to hospitals for further examination.

The men were brought up in order determined beforehand, apparently based on their age and physical condition.

The oldest miner, Fritz Baer, 53, was the second to be brought up in the rescue capsule.

One of the 11 is not a miner. Adolf Herbst, the only bachelor, is an electrician who was installing equipment in the mine when it was flooded.

When the last man was up, a siren blew, signaling the end of the operation.

The breakthrough to the 11 occurred a few minutes after 6 a.m. (midnight EST).

There were 129 men working in the mine last month when a reservoir dam broke and flooded the works.

In the first 24 hours, 86 men managed to save themselves or were rescued. A week later three others were saved by drilling a shaft to an air pocket where they had crawled to escape the flood water.

Today's rescue brings the total saved to 100. The remaining 29 are given up as dead.

The operations here were similar to the rescue of miners Henry Throne and David Fellin, who were trapped for 14 days in a coal mine near Hazleton, Pa., after a cave-in last August.

Spy Charges Are Filed Against Two

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—A federal grand jury indicted an American engineer and a Russian chauffeur today on three counts of conspiring to transmit information to the Soviet Union relating to this country's national defense.

The jury returned the indictments against John William Butenko, 38, of Orange, an engineer handling a secret Air Force contract, and Igor A. Ivanov, 33, chauffeur for a Russian trading company. Conviction could mean the death penalty.

Named as co-conspirators but not as co-defendants in the indictment were three members of the Soviet delegation staff at the United Nations who have been expelled from the United States.

The three were protected by diplomatic immunity.

Rain Alleviates Drought in Many U.S. Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Much needed rains fell in eastern sections of the nation today, alleviating drought conditions in many areas.

Rain during the night and early morning broke out from the Carolinas northward and also through the Lower Great Lakes and eastern Ohio Valley regions.

Amounts were fairly heavy in many areas with nearly two inches in a six-hour period in Dover, Del. More than one inch of rain splashed on New York City Wednesday and last night, the first real relief from the long drought that has lowered the city's water supplies.

Nearly two inches of rain was reported in Raleigh, N.C., and about 1½ inches in Richmond, Va.

Heavy fog shrouded broad areas from the Middle Mississippi Valley through the western Ohio Valley region and from Tennessee southward to the Gulf. Visibility was reported at zero in many areas, halting and delaying air travel in some cities.

In the West, rain fell in scattered sections from the northern Rockies into the Great Basin region. Snow was reported at higher elevations.

Dry and clear weather was reported in most other sections of the nation.

It was chilly from the northern Great Lakes Region and northern Plains and in northern and central sections in the West, with temperatures in the 30s. The 60s were confined to southern Florida, Texas and in the southwest Desert region. The 40s and 50s prevailed in other areas.

Civil Service Questioned on Pay Hike Plans

DENVER (AP)—Rep. Oakley Wade, R-Las Animas, chairman of the legislature's Joint Budget Committee, said Wednesday the Civil Service Commission will be asked to justify its recommendations for more than $2.2 million in raises for state employes.

In the past, he said, the recommendations have been accepted without question.

But he noted that half of the proposed increases this year are in upper echelon jobs. The state is supposed to pay the prevailing wage in all positions, but Wade said there is nothing to use for comparison in the top classifications. He said this is one thing the Civil Service Commission will be asked to explain.

Committee officials said the commission notified them it is recommending step increases for 7,702 of the state's 13,000 employes. To finance the raises, $1,125,120 would be taken from the general fund and $1,049,952 from various departmental funds.

Gov. Rockefeller Formally Enters Presidential Race

By ROBERT T. GRAY

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller formally announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for president today and said he would enter the New Hampshire and other presidential preference primaries between now and the Republican National convention next July.

"I have reached this decision because I believe that vital principles are at stake in the next presidential election," Rockefeller said in a statement to a gathering of newsmen at the state capitol.

Rockefeller said:

"These principles and the policies to best support them must be brought before the American people and the delegates to the Republican National Convention for their thoughtful consideration."

Rockefeller renewed his charge that the national administration of Democratic President Kennedy had failed to understand and meet "the menace of international communism," to stimulate the economy and to strengthen the unity of the free world.

Dragon Lady Still Has Plans, Reports Claim

By DORIS KLEIN

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu was reported today to believe that she still retains the loyalty of certain officers in the military junta which overthrew her ruling family's regime.

Mrs. Nhu's husband, Ngo Dinh Nhu, the country's political strongman, and his brother, President Ngo Dinh Diem, died in the coup last week.

A reliable source said Mrs. Nhu planned to return to South Viet Nam before the first general election is held under the new ruling group.

South Viet Nam's former first lady believes she can regain political power in her country with the aid of the dissident officers, the source said.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Nhu was reported to have received a telephone call since the coup from former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon explored, among other things, the failure of American

Woman Senator May Seek Spot in Presidential Race

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Margaret Chase Smith is seriously considering entering some presidential primaries to offer the selection of their 1964 nominee.

The snow-haired Maine Republican, who has served in the Senate since 1949 after nine years in the House, is expected to announce in a speech before the Women's National Press Club here Dec. 5 whether she will become an active candidate.

Although politicians generally doubt that the electorate yet is conditioned to the idea of a woman as president, Mrs. Smith's friends think that if she made a good showing in some of the primaries she would be in a strong position as a potential vice presidential nominee.

In that respect, the woman senator has taken a middle course between the viewpoints of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the leading possibilities for the GOP presidential nomination.

Mrs. Smith described her position in a political speech earlier in the year as "less liberal than that of Nelson Rockefeller and less conservative than that of Barry Goldwater."

Mrs. Smith's interest in the possibility of becoming a candidate herself was said by William C. Lewis Jr., her administrative assistant, to have stemmed from the heavy mail he said she has received in the past year from all sections of the country urging her to run.

Lewis said that if Mrs. Smith

Nikita May Try Pressure on JFK Thru Americans

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is speculation in farm circles that the Soviet Union may be counting on American grain growers and exporters to put pressure on the Kennedy administration to eliminate a barrier holding up a big sale of wheat to the Soviet bloc.

Blocking the sales and causing Soviet Premier Khrushchev to threaten to break off wheat negotiations is a stipulation by President Kennedy that the grain be moved on American-owned ships to the extent they are available.

The freight rates on the American vessels are reported 30 to 30 per cent higher than those of foreign ships. The American ships have higher labor and other costs.

The Soviets have made clear that they want the grain moved the cheapest way possible.

Farm leaders said it is possible that Khrushchev may be hoping that the U.S. wheat producers—motivated by fear of losing wheat sales that could boost their income and greatly reduce a surplus that is burdening their markets—will put pressure on the administration to drop the requirement that American ships be used.

So far, these leaders said, there has been no indication

Teamsters Seek Nationwide New Contract

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters Union will serve the nation's trucking industry with contract demands for about $250 million a year in increased pay and fringe benefits for more than 400,000 workers.

Teamsters President James R. Hoffa said the proposed three-year "master contract" to be mailed out Friday to representatives of 16,000 trucking firms is the biggest single labor agreement ever proposed.

In their first bid for a nationwide contract covering approximately 85 per cent of the U.S. trucking industry, the Teamsters are asking:

1. Pay increases of 15 cents an hour per man per year for three years.

Wings on Mars Spaceship May Reduce Travel Time

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Putting wings on a U.S. spaceship to Mars may reduce to 300 days a roundtrip which planners have expected to require 30 months.

Robert B. D. Demoret, program director for advanced Titan launch vehicles for the Martin-Marietta Corp. said Wednesday in a speech that astronauts using a wingless craft would have to wait 405 days on Mars until that planet is in proper orbiting relationship for the return to earth.

By using wings to shorten its own orbiting time and distances, he said the craft could be "orbit hopping" and get home much faster.

No target date has been set for such a flight.

'War No Longer Offers Winner,' Speaker Says

"We can defeat the communists if we help the people of the world achieve the four common dreams of man."

This was the message brought to 195 members of the Knife and Fork Club at their dinner meeting Wednesday night in the Broadmoor Hotel by Dr. John Furbay, noted traveler, lecturer and director of Air World Education in 26 countries for Trans-World Airlines.

Introduced by John C. Young, Jr., president of the club, Dr. Furbay said, "The dreams of men today are shaping the pattern of our century."

The number one dream, he emphasized, was total and permanent peace. "War no longer offers a winner," he said, "because the nature of the weapons used by both sides has changed.

"People around the world ask, 'When will these weapons be used?'"

Communist speakers everywhere talk peace, Dr. Furbay went on, and that is something people will buy — peace.

"In 97 out of 100 organizations," he digressed, "if 'peace' is in their names, you can bet that they have communist affiliations.

"And I wouldn't lend my name to them or support them," he declared.

Dr. Furbay related an experience he had in Southeast Asia, when he was put on the speakers' bill with a communist to address 2,000 students.

The students, he said, didn't care what system they lived under, democratic or communist, as long as they got the kind of world they wanted.

They were the uncommitted. The uncommitted, he went on, number one-third of the world. The other two-thirds are split about equally between the democracies and the communists.

"It is these uncommitted," he said, "whom we want to win."

The communists try to win them by plugging peace. They identify peace with communism, while identifying war with capitalism.

The kind of peace they have behind the Iron Curtain, Dr. Furbay told the Knife and Forkers, consists of high fences, watch towers and guns every two miles for 2,000 miles between the Black Sea and the Baltic.

"The communists keep people captive behind the Iron Curtain," he said, "that's the kind early stages of World War II.

Goat, Weasel, Polecat Fail In Viet Nam

FORT COLLINS (AP)—Why won't the gamma goat, the jigger, the weasel and the polecat run well in the jungles of Viet Nam?

The names are those of military vehicles, and the question is to be pondered with the help of a Colorado State University group.

Under a $91,500 contract from the Corps of Engineers, the researchers will design instruments to collect data on the vehicles. The project leader will be Richard Shen, co-ordinator of the SEATO Graduate School of Engineering in Bangkok, Thailand. The school is administered by CSU.

The vehicles worked well in tests made in Florida swamp land. But for some reason they are not meeting expectations in Viet Nam.

Russians Rush Seapower Expansion, Probers Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's merchant fleet is expanding rapidly while the U.S. cargo fleet is deteriorating, a Senate study reports.

The study by the staff of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee was made public today. It said the Soviet Union is embarked on a maritime expansion program that in "a very few years will make her one of the foremost seapowers in the world."

"It is all too evident that the Soviet Union recognizes the importance of the sea, and seapower in all its many facets figures prominently in its plans to dominate the world," the report declared.

The study focused on what it termed an enormous merchant ship construction program designed to double the size of the Soviet 1960 fleet by 1965, triple it by 1970, and achieve a five to six-fold increase by 1980.

In 1961 and 1962, the staff report said, the Soviet Union increased its fleet from 873 to 1,002 ships and increased its total tonnage from 4,939,000 to 5,922,000. The number of American merchant ships decreased meanwhile from 954 to 843 and tonnage dropped from 13,345,000 to 12,810,000.

"The deterioration of the U.S. merchant fleet has not yet been sufficiently recognized by the government, let alone dealt with," the study said.

It declared that "a strong, modern American merchant marine is essential to provide logistic support to our armed forces in time of national emergency and to insure that the United States has access to world markets and vital raw materials in time of peace."

Denver Cops Afraid of Voodoo Lady

"Oh, the police are scared to come out here," the woman replied. "My landlady said she'd magic them into toads if they bother her."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite their bitter protests, the Western Allies expect the Soviet Union to throw more roadblocks across the highway into Berlin.

This was reported Wednesday by authoritative sources after the Allies had accused Moscow in a diplomatic note of arbitrary and unjustified action in delaying an American Army convoy for 42 hours. The convoy was finally waved through Tuesday night.

Neither the protest nor the fact that the Americans eventually were allowed to proceed means that this gloomy chapter of U.S.-Soviet relations can be closed, authoritative sources warned. They said that top officials of the administration agree the West must expect similar or other harassments in and around Berlin.

This is the result of the first, hasty assessment of this latest Soviet attempt to make the United States, Britain and France accept Soviet rules on the autobahn, the highway connecting Berlin with the West. A more scientific evaluation will follow.

The aim of this process will be to find the answer to this question: Why did the Soviets do what they did, first in October and now, less than a month later, again?

The 12-vehicle convoy with 24 drivers and codrivers, carrying 20 passengers or troops, was held up at the Marienborn checkpoint on the western end of the autobahn. The Soviets

Civil Service Questioned on Pay Hike Plans

DENVER (AP)—Rep. Oakley Wade, R-Las Animas, chairman of the legislature's Joint Budget Committee, said Wednesday the Civil Service Commission will be asked to justify its recommendations for more than $2.2 million in raises for state employes.

In the past, he said, the recommendations have been accepted without question.

But he noted that half of the proposed increases this year are in upper echelon jobs. The state is supposed to pay the prevailing wage in all positions, but Wade said there is nothing to use for comparison in the top classifications. He said this is one thing the Civil Service Commission will be asked to explain.

Committee officials said the commission notified them it is recommending step increases for 7,702 of the state's 13,000 employes. To finance the raises, $1,125,120 would be taken from the general fund and $1,049,952 from various departmental funds.

Gov. Rockefeller Formally Enters Presidential Race

By ROBERT T. GRAY

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller formally announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for president today and said he would enter the New Hampshire and other presidential preference primaries between now and the Republican National convention next July.

"I have reached this decision because I believe that vital principles are at stake in the next presidential election," Rockefeller said in a statement to a gathering of newsmen at the state capitol.

Rockefeller said:

"These principles and the policies to best support them must be brought before the American people and the delegates to the Republican National Convention for their thoughtful consideration."

Rockefeller renewed his charge that the national administration of Democratic President Kennedy had failed to understand and meet "the menace of international communism," to stimulate the economy and to strengthen the unity of the free world.

Dragon Lady Still Has Plans, Reports Claim

By DORIS KLEIN

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu was reported today to believe that she still retains the loyalty of certain officers in the military junta which overthrew her ruling family's regime.

Mrs. Nhu's husband, Ngo Dinh Nhu, the country's political strongman, and his brother, President Ngo Dinh Diem, died in the coup last week.

A reliable source said Mrs. Nhu planned to return to South Viet Nam before the first general election is held under the new ruling group.

South Viet Nam's former first lady believes she can regain political power in her country with the aid of the dissident officers, the source said.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Nhu was reported to have received a telephone call since the coup from former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon explored, among other things, the failure of American

Nikita May Try Pressure on JFK Thru Americans

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is speculation in farm circles that the Soviet Union may be counting on American grain growers and exporters to put pressure on the Kennedy administration to eliminate a barrier holding up a big sale of wheat to the Soviet bloc.

Blocking the sales and causing Soviet Premier Khrushchev to threaten to break off wheat negotiations is a stipulation by President Kennedy that the grain be moved on American-owned ships to the extent they are available.

The freight rates on the American vessels are reported 20 to 30 per cent higher than those of foreign ships. The American ships have higher labor and other costs.

The Soviets have made clear that they want the grain moved the cheapest way possible.

Farm leaders said it is possible that Khrushchev may be hoping that the U.S. wheat producers—motivated by fear of losing wheat sales that could boost their income and greatly reduce a surplus that is burdening their markets—will put pressure on the administration to drop the requirement that American ships be used.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters Union will serve the nation's trucking industry with contract demands for about $250 million a year in increased pay and fringe benefits for more than 400,000 workers.

Teamsters President James R. Hoffa said the proposed three-year "master contract" to be mailed out Friday to representatives of 16,000 trucking firms is the biggest single labor agreement ever proposed.

In their first bid for a nationwide contract covering approximately 85 per cent of the U.S. trucking industry, the Teamsters are asking:

Wings on Mars Spaceship May Reduce Travel Time

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Putting wings on a U.S. spaceship to Mars may reduce to 300 days a roundtrip which planners have expected to require 30 months.

Robert B. D. Demoret, program director for advanced Titan launch vehicles for the Martin-Marietta Corp. said Wednesday in a speech that astronauts using a wingless craft would have to wait 405 days on Mars until that planet is in proper orbiting relationship for the return to earth.

By using wings to shorten its own orbiting time and distances, he said the craft could be "orbit hopping" and get home much faster.

No target date has been set for such a flight.

'War No Longer Offers Winner,' Speaker Says

"We can defeat the communists if we help the people of the world achieve the four common dreams of man."

This was the message brought to 195 members of the Knife and Fork Club at their dinner meeting Wednesday night in the Broadmoor Hotel by Dr. John Furbay, noted traveler, lecturer and director of Air World Education in 26 countries for Trans-World Airlines.

Introduced by John C. Young, Jr., president of the club, Dr. Furbay said, "The dreams of men today are shaping the pattern of our century."

The number one dream, he emphasized, was total and permanent peace. "War no longer offers a winner," he said, "because the nature of the weapons used by both sides has changed.

"People around the world ask, 'When will these weapons be used?' "

Communist speakers everywhere talk peace, Dr. Furbay went on, and that is something people will buy — peace.

"In 97 out of 100 organizations," he digressed, "if 'peace' is in their names, you can bet that they have communist affiliations.

"And I wouldn't lend my name to them or support them," he declared.

Dr. Furbay related an experience he had in Southeast Asia, when he was put on the speakers' bill with a communist to address 2,000 students.

The students, he said, didn't care what system they lived under, democratic or communist, as long as they got the kind of world they wanted.

They were the uncommitted. The uncommitted, he went on, number one-third of the world. The other two-thirds are split about equally between the democracies and the communists.

"It is these uncommitted," he said, "whom we want to win."

The communists try to win them by plugging peace. They identify peace with communism, while identifying war with capitalism.

The kind of peace they have behind the Iron Curtain, Dr. Furbay told the Knife and Forkers, consists of high fences, watch towers and guns every two miles for 2,000 miles between the Black Sea and the Baltic.

"The communists keep people captive behind the Iron Curtain," he said, "that's the kind

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—South African scientists are working on "deadly gases known to be capable of massive devastation comparable with the nuclear bomb," L. J. Goat, Weasel, Polecat Fail In Viet Nam

FORT COLLINS (AP)—Why won't the gamma goat, the jigger, the weasel and the polecat run well in the jungles of Viet Nam?

The names are those of military vehicles, and the question is to be pondered with the help of a Colorado State University group.

The vehicles worked well in tests made in Florida swamp land. But for some reason they are not meeting expectations in Viet Nam.

Russians Rush Seapower Expansion, Probers Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's merchant fleet is expanding rapidly while the U.S. cargo fleet is deteriorating, a Senate study reports.

The study by the staff of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee was made public today. It said the Soviet Union is embarked on a maritime expansion program that in "a very few years will make her one of the foremost seapowers in the world."

"It is all too evident that the Soviet Union recognizes the importance of the sea, and seapower in all its many facets figures prominently in its plans to dominate the world," the report declared.

The study focused on what it termed an enormous merchant ship construction program designed to double the size of the Soviet 1960 fleet by 1965, triple it by 1970, and achieve a five to six-fold increase by 1980.

In 1961 and 1962, the staff report said, the Soviet Union increased its fleet from 873 to 1,002 ships and increased its total tonnage from 4,939,000 to 5,922,000. The number of American merchant ships decreased meanwhile from 954 to 843 and tonnage dropped from 13,345,000 to 12,810,000.

"The deterioration of the U.S. merchant fleet has not yet been sufficiently recognized by the government, let alone dealt with," the study said.

It declared that "a strong, modern American merchant marine is essential to provide logistic support to our armed forces in time of national emergency and to insure that the United States has access to world markets and vital raw materials in time of peace."

Allies Expect More Soviet Roadblocks in Berlin Case

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite their bitter protests, the Western Allies expect the Soviet Union to throw more roadblocks across the highway into Berlin.

This was reported Wednesday by authoritative sources after the Allies had accused Moscow in a diplomatic note of arbitrary and unjustified action in delaying an American Army convoy for 42 hours. The convoy was finally waved through Tuesday night.

Neither the protest nor the fact that the Americans eventually were allowed to proceed means that this gloomy chapter of U.S.-Soviet relations can be closed, authoritative sources warned. They said that top officials of the administration agree the West must expect similar or other harassments in and around Berlin.

This is the result of the first, hasty assessment of this latest Soviet attempt to make the United States, Britain and France accept Soviet rules on the autobahn, the highway connecting Berlin with the West. A more scientific evaluation will follow.

The aim of this process will be to find the answer to this question: Why did the Soviets do what they did, first in October and now, less than a month later, again?

The 12-vehicle convoy with 24 drivers and codrivers, carrying 20 passengers or troops, was held up at the Marienborn checkpoint on the western end of the autobahn. The Soviets

Russians Believed to Want U.S. Wheat, Alcohol for War Reserves, Missiles

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Russia is springing a sensational surprise in the secrecy-cloaked negotiations over a huge purchase of U.S. wheat.

The Reds also want to buy 300,000 tons of industrial alcohol.

This astonishing proposal amounts to more industrial alcohol than the U.S. supplied the Soviet under lend-lease thruout World War II. It also represents more than one-third of the 850,000 tons produced in this country last year.

Average domestic price of industrial alcohol is $183 a ton. The proposed Kremlin purchase would amount to $54.9 million.

That does not include trans-

Spy Charges Are Filed Against Two

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—A federal grand jury indicted an American engineer and a Russian chauffeur today on three counts of conspiring to transmit information to the Soviet Union relating to this country's national defense.

The jury returned the indictments against John William Butenko, 38, of Orange, an engineer handling a secret Air Force contract, and Igor A Ivanov, 33, chauffeur for a Russian trading company. Conviction could mean the death penalty.

Named as co-conspirators but not as co-defendants in the indictment were three members of the Soviet delegation staff at the United Nations who have been expelled from the United States.

The three were protected by diplomatic immunity.

11 Men, Entombed 183 Feet Deep in Mine, Rescued

By LOYAL GOULD

BROISTEDT, Germany (AP)—Eleven men were rescued today from a flooded iron mine two weeks after they were entombed and given up for dead.

A huge drilling rig broke through early today to the gallery 183 feet below the surface where they had taken refuge when disaster struck Oct. 24.

The shaft was quickly reinforced by steel tubing, and one by one the bearded, haggard men were brought to the surface in a bomb-shaped rescue capsule.

They were located Sunday and since then had been supplied with food through a shaft less than two inches in diameter.

Heinz Kull, 51, was the first miner to reach the surface. As he was taken from the rescue capsule, a hush fell over crowds, kept at a distance of about 30 yards from the shaft.

In the crowd were members of the men's families who had kept the long watch since the electrifying news came five days ago that these 11 men were alive. Many wept.

Millions watched this last act of the mine drama on West German television.

All the miners were placed on a stretcher and carried to a nearby mobile clinic. There teams of Red Cross physicians examined them. The survivors were offered their first real coffee in two weeks and sandwiches.

After happy reunions with their families, the men were taken by ambulances to hospitals for further examination.

The men were brought up in order determined beforehand, apparently based on their age and physical condition.

The oldest miner, Fritz Baer, 53, was the second to be brought up in the rescue capsule.

One of the 11 is not a miner. Adolf Herbst, the only bachelor, is an electrician who was installing equipment in the mine when it was flooded.

When the last man was up, a siren blew, signaling the end of the operation.

The breakthrough to the 11 occurred a few minutes after 6 a.m. (midnight EST).

There were 129 men working in the mine last month when a reservoir dam broke and flooded the works.

In the first 24 hours, 86 men managed to save themselves or were rescued. A week later three others were saved by drilling a shaft to an air pocket where they had crawled to escape the flood water.

Today's rescue brings the total saved to 100. The remaining 29 are given up as dead.

The operations here were similar to the rescue of miners Henry Throne and David Fellin, who were trapped for 14 days in a coal mine near Hazleton, Pa., after a cave-in last August.

LOWER CAPSULE TO TRAPPED MINERS — Rescue workers at Brolistedt, Germany, prepare to lower one of the rescuers in torpedo-like capsule down through a shaft to an underground pocket where 11 miners were trapped for two weeks. Rain Alleviates Drought in Many U.S. Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Much needed rains fell in eastern sections of the nation today, alleviating drought conditions in many areas.

Rain during the night and early morning broke out from the Carolinas northward and also through the Lower Great Lakes and eastern Ohio Valley regions.

Amounts were fairly heavy in many areas with nearly two inches in a six-hour period in Dover, Del. More than one inch of rain splashed on New York City Wednesday and last night, the first real relief from the long drought that has lowered the city's water supplies.

Nearly two inches of rain was reported in Raleigh, N.C., and about 1½ inches in Richmond, Va.

Heavy fog shrouded broad areas from the Middle Mississippi Valley through the western Ohio Valley region and from Tennessee southward to the Gulf. Visibility was reported at zero in many areas, halting and delaying air travel in some cities.

In the West, rain fell in scattered sections from the northern Rockies into the Great Basin region. Snow was reported at higher elevations.

Dry and clear weather was reported in most other sections of the nation.

It was chilly from the northern Great Lakes Region and northern Plains and in northern and central sections in the West, with temperatures in the 30s. The 60s were confined to southern Florida, Texas and in the southwest Desert region. The 40s and 50s prevailed in other areas.

Civil Service Questioned on Pay Hike Plans

DENVER (AP)—Rep. Oakley Wade, R-Las Animas, chairman of the legislature's Joint Budget Committee, said Wednesday the Civil Service Commission will be asked to justify its recommendations for more than $2.2 million in raises for state employes.

The names are those of military vehicles, and the question is to be pondered with the help of a Colorado State University group.

Under a $91,500 contract from the Corps of Engineers, the researchers will design instruments to collect data on the vehicles. The project leader will be Richard Shen, co-ordinator of the SEATO Graduate School of Engineering in Bangkok, Thailand. The school is administered by CSU.

The vehicles worked well in tests made in Florida swamp land. But for some reason they are not meeting expectations in Viet Nam.

Denver Cops Afraid of Voodoo Lady

DENVER (UPI)—A woman called the city attorney's office Wednesday to say that her landlady, a voodoo practitioner, had threatened to kill the woman's daughter by putting a lock of her hair in a green, hollow tree.

Asst. City Atty. Richard Plock asked her if she had called the police.

"Oh, the police are scared to come out here," the woman replied. "My landlady said she'd magic them into toads if they bother her."

Wings on Mars Spaceship May Reduce Travel Time

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Putting wings on a U.S. spaceship to Mars may reduce to 300 days a roundtrip which planners have expected to require 30 months.

Robert B. D. Demoret, program director for advanced Titan launch vehicles for the Martin-Marietta Corp. said Wednesday in a speech that astronauts using a wingless craft would have to wait 405 days on Mars until that planet is in proper orbiting relationship for the return to earth.

By using wings to shorten its own orbiting time and distances, he said the craft could be "orbit hopping" and get home much faster.

No target date has been set for such a flight.

'War No Longer Offers Winner,' Speaker Says

"We can defeat the communists if we help the people of the world achieve the four common dreams of man."

This was the message brought to 195 members of the Knife and Fork Club at their dinner meeting Wednesday night in the Broadmoor Hotel by Dr. John Furbay, noted traveler, lecturer and director of Air World Education in 26 countries for Trans-World Airlines.

Introduced by John C. Young, Jr., president of the club, Dr. Furbay said, "The dreams of men today are shaping the pattern of our century."

The number one dream, he emphasized, was total and permanent peace. "War no longer offers a winner," he said, "because the nature of the weapons used by both sides has changed.

"People around the world ask, 'When will these weapons be used?' "

Communist speakers everywhere talk peace, Dr. Furbay went on, and that is something people will buy — peace.

"In 97 out of 100 organizations," he digressed, "if 'peace' is in their names, you can bet that they have communist affiliations.

"And I wouldn't lend my name to them or support them," he declared.

Dr. Furbay related an experience he had in Southeast Asia, when he was put on the speakers' bill with a communist to address 2,000 students.

The students, he said, didn't care what system they lived under, democratic or communist, as long as they got the kind of world they wanted.

They were the uncommitted. The uncommitted, he went on, number one-third of the world. The other two-thirds are split about equally between the democracies and the communists.

"It is these uncommitted," he said, "whom we want to win."

The communists try to win them by plugging peace. They identify peace with communism, while identifying war with capitalism.

The kind of peace they have behind the Iron Curtain, Dr. Furbay told the Knife and Forkers, consists of high fences, watch towers and guns every two miles for 2,000 miles between the Black Sea and the Baltic.

"The communists keep people captive behind the Iron Curtain," he said, "that's the kind

South Africa Develops New Poison Gas

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—South African scientists are working on "deadly gases known to be capable of massive devastation comparable with the nuclear bomb," L. J. Le Roux, vice president of the National Council for Scientific and Industrial Research told the Association for the Advancement of Science Wednesday.

Le Roux said gas is coming back as a low-cost military weapon and South Africa's defense research council realizes chemical and bacteriological warfare is no longer as impracticable as it was during the early stages of World War II.

Two Rocket Belts Launch U.S. 'Birdmen'

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Bell Aerosystems has developed two rocket belts capable of flying individuals as high as 60 feet and as far as 815 feet, it was announced Wednesday.

Bell produced the first such belt in 1961 for experimental purposes. The second belt was made to enable Bell "birdmen" to make dual flights. The belts can speed an individual along at 60 miles an hour.

Mrs. Nhu Said To Be Clever Businesswoman

WASHINGTON (AP)—A qualified source close to Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu's family today described the former First Lady of South Viet Nam as a clever businesswoman with ample resources in other countries, including a villa on the French Riviera.

Reports from Los Angeles said Mrs. Nhu is deeply concerned about her financial outlook. This was greeted with some skepticism by the source, who asked not to be identified.

Mrs. Nhu recently purchased a villa in Nice on the French Riviera from her brother-in-law, Archbishop Pierre Martin Ngo Dinh Thuc. He is attending the Vatican Ecumenical Council in Rome and also has been looking after Mrs. Nhu's three younger children since their arrival from Saigon.

The archbishop has not been available for comment on Mrs. Nhu's financial status.

A source close to Mrs. Nhu said Tuesday in Los Angeles that when she left Saigon five weeks ago she had $5,000 spending money for herself, her daughter and her secretary. He said she had no money banked abroad and that the only member of the family who had control over large sums of money was the archbishop and that that was "church money."

In London, Ngo Dinh Luyen, Viet Nam's former ambassador to Britain, said Wednesday night he would not be surprised if Mrs. Nhu, who is his sister-in-law, had run out of money in the United States. He said all her wealth probably is held in Viet Nam.

In Washington, State Department officials said they were not informed about Mrs. Nhu's finances, and added: "She doesn't submit her bank statements."

Her mother, Mrs. Tran Van Chuong, wife of the former Vietnamese ambassador to the United States, said "I do not know about her finances, she never told me about that." Mrs. Chuong said.

U.S. foreign aid officials have kept a close watch on South Viet Nam's foreign exchange transactions.

Any substantial changes representing a large transfer of capital funds by the Diem regime to foreign banks would have raised questions and brought an investigation, aid officials said.

Good Outlook Reported for State Revenue

DENVER (UPI)— The Legislature's Joint Budget Committee was told Tuesday that estimates of state revenue for the next fiscal year look good.

State Budget Director Con Shea forecast that general fund revenue for the 1964-65 fiscal year would be about $140 million, compared with $132.8 million this fiscal year. The fund received $119.8 million for the fiscal year ended June 30.

Shea called his estimate conservative and said it may change upward. State Revenue Director Hugh Weed Jr. estimated that revenue would total $144 million.

State Commissioner of Agriculture Paul W. Swisher told the committee that with reasonably good weather state agriculture would recover from the financial losses of this year's drought. Swisher said that total agriculture receipts next year might total—or exceed — $700 million.

Shea said that his estimates showed that about $76.6 million would flow into the general fund next year from the income tax

TOP WESTERN CAST

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —How's this for the cast of a new movie western — Spencer Tracy, Jimmy Stewart, Richard Widmark, Carroll Baker, Karl Malden, Sal Mineo, Dolores Del Rio, Ricardo Montalban and Gilbert Roland? All are to be co-starred in "The Long Flight."

Wagon Wheel Approach Planned for Airplanes

BUNKER HILL AIR FORCE, Ind. (AP) — A television program showing Western settlers pulling their wagon train vehicles into a circle to fight off Indians has led to a new "wagon wheel" instrument approach to the air force base here.

The new method allows the field's supersonic B58 "Hustler" bombers to make direct approaches to the landing field. It eliminates the "stacking" procedure in which airplanes circle at different altitudes until cleared for an instrument approach.

"The "wagon wheel" plan, the only one of its type in existIrwin, chief of the Great Falls, Hill for six months, and it works, the base said today.

It was dreamed up by Charles a 16-mile radius from the air-Mont., center of the Federal Aviation Agency, while he was watching a TV program one night.

The "wagon wheel" approach uses an imaginary circle with a 16-mile radius from the airport. Arriving aircraft are cleared to an electronic fix via this circle, allowing them to descend to 5,000 feet by the time they reach the circle.

They are then turned over to the local radar approach control for a ground control landing.

Under the plan, many aircraft, under radar control, can converge on the airport from all directions at the same altitude. They need to be separated only by radar and can be handled readily at minimum landing intervals.

The "wagon wheel" approach is being studied by the U.S. Air Force for possible world-wide use, base officals said.

BRING HOME BACON

CHARLES CITY, Iowa (UPI) —Citizens who voted Tuesday also brought home the bacon. A livestock buying firm and a suprmarket promised a half-pound of bacon to each person who voted. Spokesmen said the offer was an effort to improve the city's poor voting record. Only 633 of 5,620 persons registered voted in the last city election.

Woman Senator May Seek Spot in Presidential Race

decides to give it a whirl, she will enter only popularity contests where the candidates' names are on the ballots but which do not involve the entry of delegate slates. He said she has no resources to finance campaign organizations needed to elect convention delegates.

The March 10 New Hampshire primary, in which Rockefeller and Goldwater are expected to be contestants, was mentioned as one Mrs. Smith might enter. Delegates there run as individuals, apart from the popularity poll, which is only advisory.

Mrs. Smith has been telling Republicans it is going to be an uphill battle to defeat President Kennedy. She has been urging them to pick a "fighting" candidate.

that growers will take such action.

The requirement applies only to wheat and wheat flour sold to Soviet bloc countries. Other dollar buyers of wheat and flour may ship any way they desire. The Soviets regard the ship requirement as discriminatory.

Under present U.S. regulations, Soviet bloc countries can buy most any other farm product and ship it on foreign vessels. This applies to farm products which move abroad under government export subsidies, except wheat and flour, and to farm products for which government export subsidies are not offered.

Some grain experts in the Agriculture Department— while declining to comment publicly— do not hesitate to say in private conversations that they are at a loss to understand why the ship condition was attached to sales of wheat and wheat flour only.

There have been reports the President imposed the requirements to avoid possible trouble with the American maritime unions. Also, at the time Kennedy made his decision, it was reported in government circles that the President wanted American ships to move the grain to prevent possible diversion to Cuba and to Communist areas in the Far East.

Government farm officials have looked upon the potential sales as presidential election year help in strengthening wheat prices in important farm voting areas and in reducing criticism of federal farm programs by taxpayers concerned with cost of storing surplus grain.

Girl Admits Calling False Fire Alarms

An 11-year old girl who has admitted calling in two false fire alarums to the Stratton Meadows Fire Department and another to the sheriff's office is being dealt with by the juvenille department, the sheriff's office reported Wednesday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bernard Barry, he received a call to contact a woman on Florence Ave. regarding a house prowl. When he arrived she told him she had not telephoned the sheriff's office and said that the previous week the fire department had been sent to her home. She gave the officer the name of a young girl whom she suspected.

Barry asked the sheriff's dispatcher to call the girl at her home and when he did he recognized her voice as the same which had called in a false fire report a few days previously. The girl was interviewed by the deputy and admitted calling in false reports. She also implicated another 11-year old girl who was with her at the time.

Two Women Jailed for Shoplifting

Two women were in County Jail this morning after they admitted shoplifting at a King Soopers Inc. store Wednesday afternoon, police reported.

The women, both of Canon City, were arrested at the store, which is located at 2727 Palmer Park Blvd.

The store manager Rex Jones, told officers he saw the women put shoes, nylon hose, greeting cards and other items in their hand bags and try to leave the store without paying for them.

first requested that the passengers dismount, then said they would be satisfied if the tailgates of some of the vehicles were lowered. Both requests were refused.

The basis for this refusal is Western insistence that the Soviets can make a head count of passengers by simply looking into the vehicles if the troops number fewer than 30. If there are more, Western convoy commanders have instructions to let their men dismount for a headcount.

Premier Khrushchev, in talking Wednesday with a group of American businessmen, maintained that the trouble had been caused by an American attempt to change "established procedures." He also claimed the dispute had been solved only when the U.S. commander agreed to "observe the established procedure."

Khrushchev's first remark simply does not correspond with the truth, American officials said. Procedures were established years ago and were spelled out in writing to the Soviet Union Oct. 29, the officials said.

Concerning the Soviet leader's second remark, the comment in Washington is that the convoy commander had insisted on the "established procedure" right from the outset.

Above all, Washington insisted that the United States had made no concessions.

Opposition Seen To Weakening of Powers of Pope

fining a proposal approved by council fathers in preliminary voting—the possibility of parceling some of the Pope's power to his bishops.

In the two days that the schema has been discussed on the council floor it has run into almost unanimous opposition. Conservatives denounced it as a threat to papal powers; progressives criticized it for not going far enough in defining a new relationship between bishops and pontiff.

But by a 3 to 1 margin Wednesday, the council voted to go on with the issue, making it clear the question is too vital to be left unresolved.

In the view of many theologians, the question could have been resolved at the first Vatican Council 93 years ago.

But before that council could begin discussing what bearing papal primacy has on bishops' powers, it was interrupted by the nationalist revolution which unified Italy. The council never resumed.

"In a sense, then, that First Vatican Council was abortive," said Archbishop Karl Alter of Cincinnati, a member of the council's commission responsible for the schema on diocesan government. "It never had the chance to get to the problem of how the bishops fit in with the Pope's exercise of power."

There are presently no intermediate bodies with jurisdiction power between the Pope's offices—or curia—in Rome and the individual bishop.

Thus the Pope in effect rules the church like a monarch. Many bishops insist this is the way it should remain. But others hold that sharing his governing powers with bishops would be a natural extension of the pontiff's authority and would not weaken his primacy.

Father Gustave Weigel, an American Jesuit theologian of Woodstock, Md., says those who do not support the "monarchist" view want the bishops to operate with the Pope as a kind of aristocracy.

"The question is, do you want to establish ecclesiastical power on the absolute monarchy of the Pope alone or not?" he said.

Many non-Catholic Christians oppose the church because they regard the present system of papal power as dictatorial. They will be watching closely for any signs of change.

Judge Jails Man on Second Drunk Charge

A 20-day jail sentence, which had previously been suspended, was invoked Thursday by Judge Allan Asher against a Wheeling W. Va. man.

Jack Bowman, 38, had received the suspended sentence on a charge of drunkness. Judge Asher suspended it on condition that the man leave town.

Bowman was brought into court Thursday on another drunkeness charge and the sentence was invoked. Bowman was also fined $25 on the second drunk charge.

Dale Thompson, 48, of the St. Charles Hotel, pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkeness and was sentenced to 10 days in the City Jail.

Also pleading guilty to charges of drunkeness were Walter Krause, 37, of the Rex Hotel and Daniel Street, 18, of Ft. Carson.

Krause was fined $25. The case against Street was dismissed since it was his first offense.

The judge dismissed a charge of drunkeness against Jacquelyn Lightner, 53, of 440 E. Pikes Peak Ave., when the complaining witness did not appear in court. Mrs. Lightner had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Adolph Miranda, 29, of 2927 W. Colorado Ave., forfeited a $25 bond when he failed to appear in court to answer a charge of drunkeness.

George Pedrie, 27, of 726 S. Circle Dr., was found not guilty of careless driving.

Clarence Eubank, 77, of 1333 N. Cascade Ave., was found guilty of taking the right of way after Colorado Springs Police Officer J. W. Poyner testified against him.

Eubank was fined $10. He was represented by attorner John Bennett.

Children Seek Lost Kitten

Tabby is just a Calico kitten but to the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Keith, 623 Williams Ave., Stratton Meadows, she was just like one of the family.

The children and their mother raised the kitten from birth, feeding her from a bottle and watching her grow.

But Tabby strayed from home Wednesday night and the children are frantic.

"If Tabby died, Mommy, I guess I'll have to die and go to heaven too," the Keith's two-year old daughter and the youngest of the children said.

The kitten is just three and a half months old.

"But she doesn't look it," Mrs. Keith said. "She's smaller than most kittens her age."

Anyone seeing the kitten is asked to call the Keith family at 633-1516.

"My daughter looked all over for Tabby. She's just heartbroken. And so am I. After all, Mommy was the one who had to get up for the 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. feedings."

Deitz Found Legally Sane By District Court Jury

John C. Deitz was found legally sane Wednesday night by a District Court jury after 45 minutes deliberation.

Deitz, 44, of 226 S. Cascade Ave. was accused of forgery and alleged to have given a $35 check to Gold Acres Liquors, March 7 signing his mother's name.

He pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity and the two-day trial was on the sanity issue only.

Two psychiatrists for the prosecution, Dr. Richard Conde and Dr. Glenn V. Karcher, agreed he was legally sane but disagreed on the nature of his mental condition.

Dr. Conde said he was schizophrenic while Dr. Karcher said he was not psychotic.

"Dr. Karcher's diagnosis agrees with my formulations of one level," said Conde. "We fundamentally agree on the kind of person we are dealing with. Some people take society's laws more seriously. Some don't, and those we call criminals."

The witness told the court that the defendant "hated his mother." He had a deep and abiding aversion towards her yet he depended on her. He wished to get away from her influence and this was a characteristic of the schizophrenic. The doctor quoted an occasion when Dietz drove to New York to escape his mother but then telephoned her from there.

Dr. Karcher testified Dietz knew forgery was wrong. "He knew the difference from right and wrong and had no disease of the mind which would have made him unable to follow the right."

Dr. Harold C. Hobbs, chief psychologist at Brady's Hospital was a witness for the defense and told the court the defendant was mentally ill. "He has an impairment in ability to determine what is real and what is fancy."

During the doctor's examination of the defendant he found suggestions of "delusional thinking, evidence of persecution and believing the world was against him and that people were out to get him."

There was also, added the witness, "evidence of overprotection by a female figure during the formative years, evidence of hostility and withdrawal from the world into fantasy and a marked fear of being attacked."

Dietz was represented by attorneys Brian Mullett and Gary Herbert who have been given 10 days in which to file a motion for a new trial. The presiding judge was Hunter D. Hardeman and Deputy District Attorneys Herman A. Ratner and Richard Webster appeared for the State.

'War No Longer Offers Winner,' Speaker Says

of peace they have.

"We need to talk more about the kind of peace we have. We Americans are making a big mistake in not doing so."

Dream No. 2, Dr. Furbay said, was the Dream of Food.

He told the audience that only 24 hours away by air, one billion persons suffer from hunger pains, not today but every day, from the time they were born until they died.

Because man has eliminated space, bringing all peoples closer to one another, "these hungry people know about us. They know about our paying the farmer not to plant, they know about our surpluses and our reducing pills.

"And," he emphasized, "they will listen to anyone who will eliminate their hunger pains, whether he be communist or free-worlder.

"No communist country," he went on, "has an answer to hunger. No communist country can feed itself. They all have rationing."

But we have the answer, he said, and it is agricultural science. Science does not work well except in the hands of free men. The communists do not have this.

Thus, we have the unbeatable weapon of the free world.

We should give more foreign aid to these hungry people by helping them to attain our knowledge of the science of agriculture.

"This will constitute a scientific revolution," he said, "not a violent one, which we shall surely have if we do not help these people to help themselves.

"As for myself," he said, "I would rather support a scientific revolution by payment of taxes than have my head chopped off in a revolution of violence."

The third dream of man is the Dream of Self-Government.

Dr. Furbay compared the state of the new countries emerging in the world — the former colonies of the 18th and 19th centuries — with the adolescence of children.

"These countries," he said, "actually are not 'children' but neither are they 'adults.'

"We all know the problems we have with adolescents', and we shall have our problems with these new countries, 66 of them already since World War II.

"We must be patient with them. We must see them thru.

"Who is going to be the friend of these adolescent countries— we or the communists? We should tell the world how we liberated the Philippines and Liberia, befriended them, and still are friends.

"The communists," he emphasized, "have never given freedom to any country."

The last of the four dreams, Dr. Furbay said, "is the Dream of Human Dignity."

Every country, he said, has its second class citizens. That's what people want, he continued, somebody to look down on.

The answer to that problem, Dr. Furbay said, is being provided by children. The older people still have their prejudices, Dr. Furbay told his audience, "but everywhere in the world I have traveled, I have found the children extremely broad-minded."

To conclude his talk, Dr. Furbay said, "Communists cannot fulfill the four dreams of men. If the free world is to survive, we must provide answers better than the communists can."

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field)

Widespread rain, drizzle and fog covered most of the eastern half of the nation this morning.

Mostly fair skies prevailed in the southern half of the plains and west-central United States.

Elsewhere partly cloudy to cloudy skies were the rule.

A rather intense storm centered along the southern Maryland coast produced heavy rain to part of the drouth area. Extensive heavy rains will result in local flash flooding. Precipitation has been locally heavy in the northeastern United States with numerous locations reporting over an inch of rain during the night.

Some of the heavier amounts fell at Blackstone, Va., recording 2.28 inches and Altoona, Pa., with 1.68 inches of rain during the past 24 hours.

officials in South Viet Nam to grant asylum to another member of the deposed family, President Ngo Dinh Diem's brother, Ngo Dinh Can.

Can sought protection in the American Consulate at Hue, capital of central Viet Nam. But U.S. officials refused it and flew him to Saigon, 400 miles south, in an American military plane. Buddhist opponents of the ousted Ngo Dinh Diem regime charged that Can ruled the central region as a tyrant.

No additional details of the reported conversation between Nixon and Mrs. Nhu were disclosed.

Mrs. Nhu moved into spacious quarters Wednesday in the lavish hillside home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Chase in the wealthy Los Angeles residential district of Bel Air. With her was her eldest child, Le Thuy, 18, and her secretary Nguyen Thi Tuan.

There they hope to be reunited with Mrs. Nhu's three younger children, ages 15, 11 and 5 who were flown from Viet Nam to Rome. They are being cared for by Mrs. Nhu's brother-in-law Archbishop Pierre Martin Ngo Dinh Thuc who is attending the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Mrs. Nhu sent a cable Wednesday to the Archbishop expressing her concern at not being able to reach him or her children by telephone.

Mrs. Nhu had originally sought to have the children flown to Rome via Los Angeles. But the U.S. Department of State said the message was received after the children were on their way to Rome via Bangkok. They arrived there Tuesday.

Mrs. Nhu's host is a businessman with extensive land holdings in the Orient and Australia. Her hostess is a clinical psychologist.

"Our home is open to her as are our hearts," said Mrs. Chase. "She is welcome to stay as long as necessary." The home is a pink stucco mansion with white shutters situated on a 4-acre site amid trees and formal gardens.

Prowler Steals Gage From Parked Car

Elbert S. Throckmorton of the Medalion Apts. Hotel told police a vacuum gage was stolen from his car Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

Police said the 1963 model car was parked in a lot east of the Medalion when thieves broke a vent window and removed the gage from the dash board.

Russians Want U.S. Wheat, Alcohol for War Reserves

portation costs of additional millions.

Deputy Trade Minister Sergei Borisov, heading the Russian negotiating delegation, has told U.S. officials the 300,000 tons of industrial alcohol are wanted for making fertilizer.

That's intriguing news to Agriculture Department scientists. They point out alcohol is not used for this purpose in the U.S. They also are very skeptical about its being used for manufacturing fertilizer in Russia unless a new process has been developed there about which nothing is know — which they doubt very much.

Pentagon authorities, who consider industrial alcohol a strategic commodity, stress that it is an important ingredient in the production of ammunition and missile fuel.

Military officials are decidedly cool toward such a sale.

Industrial alcohol is made from a variety of ingredients, among them molasses. A number of plants producing the commodity are currently shut down, and a sale of this magnitude would be a big bonanza for them.

Unlike the wheat negotiations, the Soviet delegation is indicating there will be no haggling over the price and transportation costs of the alcohol.

WHAT'S BEHIND WHEAT DEAL?

It's becoming increasingly evident there is much more behind the Kremlin's immense grain purchases than poor crops and possible food shortages.

Agriculture Department experts have definitely established that the Soviet so far has bought a total of $14.1 million tons of wheat. This does not include the 5 million tons being sought from the U.S.

The 14.1 million tons of purchased grain is more than one-fourth of Russia's estimated total annual production. In recent years that has been between 50 and 55 million tons.

U.S. intelligence and military authorities are inclining strongly to the view that much of this grain is for building up the Reds' war reserves.

Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, at a closed-door meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, expressed the opinion that upwards of 50 per cent of the Soviet's grain purchases would go to fill commitments to Communist bloc countries.

"What about the other 50 per cent?" he was asked. "Any of that going into the military or war reserves?"

"We have no hard information on that," replied Freeman. "It might well be used for that purpose. Some of the Pentagon people are convinced of that, and they may be right."

MAN TO WATCH

Remember the name Nguyen ton Hoan?

He's a man to keep an eye on in the seething South Vietnamese cauldron.

Hoan is head of the Democratic League of Vietnam, with headquarters in New Haven, Conn. He is returning to his homeland soon to play a leading role there.

A leftist - leaning politician Hoan was sent into exile by the late President Diem for "anti-government" activities. He is credited with favoring the establishment of a so-called coalition government to seek "unity" with Communist-ruled North Vietnam.

Several months ago the State Department gave Hoan a visa to come to the U.S. from Paris. He was there in the early days of the Buddhists' protests. Two Saigon leaders of that stormy anti-Diem movement are close associates of Hoan. They are Tam Chau and Tri Quang. The latter studied at Yale, and sought asylum in the U.S. embassy after Diem cracked down on the Buddhists.

After leaving Hanoi University in 1940, Hoan was tied up with French intelligence.

CRYSTAL BALL

The Joint Atomic Committee will issue a report vigorously upholding the Navy's contention that the new super aircraft carrier should be atomic powered. This congressional committee has no authority to legislate on this matter. But it has been holding hearings on the hotly controversial issue, and will unanimously recommend that the carrier be atomic powered—as strong advocated by Admiral Hyman Rickover, "father" of the steadily growing nuclear-powered submarine fleet. . . . Congress has dragged its feet all year on numerous important bills affecting the country at large, but there is one that is certain of speedy action — to give senators and representatives a $10,000 pay increase. Backstage plan of House and Senate leaders is to push this bill thru before the Christmas adjournment as a Christmas present to themselves. Senator Olin Johnston, D-S.C., chairman of the Postoffice Committee that has jurisdiction over this legislation, is confidently forecasting this happy event — for them.

Gov. Rockefeller Formally Enters Presidency Race

as the underdog in what has been the undeclared contest for the nomination.

Nor did he refer to his divorce and remarriage which have been largely blamed for his currently poor standing in polls on the nomination.

Rockefeller proposed that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and other potential candidates also enter the New Hampshire primary.

"It is my hope that other candidates will make use of the (primary) so that all of their views will be clearly known," he said.

"The New Hampshire primary presents an excellent opportunity to do so, forthrightly and undiluted by fence-straddling or doubletalk of any kind."

Rockefeller, who did not mention Goldwater by name, has been challenging the Arizona senator to join him in a series of debates to determine what positions the Republican party should take on major issues. Goldwater has refused on grounds of party unity.

The governor arranged to leave for New Hampshire immediately after his announcement.

Rockefeller, who has sought in recent months to associate Goldwater with extremism, said he was certain Republican convention delegates woud "write a platform and select a candidate consistent with the basic principles of the Republican party and the realities of the world in which we live."

He began reading his prepared statement without any "Thank you" and swept out of the room before newsmen could buttonhole him for questioning.

The announcement was televised live on a national network (NBC's "Today" show).

The New Hampshire primary March 10 will be the first in the nation.

Rockefeller manifested interest in winning the presidential nomination in 1959 but abandoned that effort before reaching a formal announcement.

Teamsters Seek Nationwide New Contract

sions and $1 more a week for health and welfare.

3. Other fringe benefits including three days off with pay in case of death in a union member's immediate family, better vacation benefits, pay for jury service, two more paid holidays and 10 cents an hour for dental care.

Hoffa had previously announced a demand that management build and maintain a $1-million dental and optical care center for union members.

Hoffa called the proposals "a tremendous step forward" for his union.

Teamsters truck drivers, helpers, mechanics, clerks and other employes to be covered by $3.17 an hour plus $6 a week in the contract now average about $3.17 an hour plus $6 a week in pension benefits and $3.50 a week for health and welfare.

Hoffa, at a news conference Wednesday, repeated earlier statements that there is no danger of a nationwide truck strike.

He also said he does not expect the trucking industry to absorb the Teamsters' demands without raising rates.

He said he hopes to start negotiations early in December in 50-man policy committee and a five-man negotiating committee in talks with industry representatives.

Another demand in the Teamsters' proposal would require trucking firms that use the railroads to "piggyback" a loaded truck trailer to make penalty payments to any driver on the seniority list who does not have a job scheduled for that particular day.

The penalty pay would apply to at least one idle Teamster driver for every truck loaded onto a train.

He said truck firms in the past took advantage of a technicality in previous contracts to ship by rail.

The Teamsters now have a provision requiring a payment of $5 into a Teamsters local pension fund for every piggybacked truck.

Hoffa said the contract would also tighten up "hot cargo" agreements in line with latest court decisions. This, he said, would be to ensure the Teamsters' "right to follow strike-bound goods to the place of delivery and set up pickets."

Teamsters pay scales, now set up under regional contracts, range from $3.06 an hour to $3.28 an hour.

The new demands would raise the minimum scale in the first year to $3.21, the second year to $3.38 and the third year to $3.55.

The maximum scale over the period would rise to $3.73.

The nationwide contract would expire Feb. 1, 1967.

The requirement applies only to wheat and wheat flour sold to Soviet bloc countries. Other dollar buyers of wheat and flour may ship any way they desire. The Soviets regard the ship requirement as discriminatory.

Under present U.S. regulations, Soviet bloc countries can buy most any other farm product and ship it on foreign vessels. This applies to farm products which move abroad under government export subsidies, except wheat and flour, and to farm products for which government export subsidies are not offered.

Some grain experts in the Agriculture Department— while declining to comment publicly— do not hesitate to say in private conversations that they are at a loss to understand why the ship condition was attached to sales of wheat and wheat flour only.

There have been reports the President imposed the requirements to avoid possible trouble with the American maritime unions. Also, at the time Kennedy made his decision, it was reported in government circles that the President wanted American ships to move the grain to prevent possible diversion to Cuba and to Communist areas in the Far East.

Government farm officials have looked upon the potential sales as presidential election year help in strengthening wheat prices in important farm voting areas and in reducing criticism of federal farm programs by taxpayers concerned with cost of storing surplus grain.

Girl Admits Calling False Fire Alarms

An 11-year old girl who has admitted calling in two false fire alarums to the Stratton Meadows Fire Department and another to the sheriff's office is being dealt with by the juvenille department, the sheriff's office reported Wednesday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bernard Barry, he received a call to contact a woman on Florence Ave. regarding a house prowl. When he arrived she told him she had not telephoned the sheriff's office and said that the previous week the fire department had been sent to her home. She gave the officer the name of a young girl whom she suspected.

Barry asked the sheriff's dispatcher to call the girl at her home and when he did he recognized her voice as the same which had called in a false fire report a few days previously. The girl was interviewed by the deputy and admitted calling in false reports. She also implicated another 11-year old girl who was with her at the time.

The women, both of Canon City, were arrested at the store, which is located at 2727 Palmer Park Blvd.

The store manager Rex Jones, told officers he saw the women put shoes, nylon hose, greeting cards and other items in their hand bags and try to leave the store without paying for them.

first requested that the passengers dismount, then said they would be satisfied if the tailgates of some of the vehicles were lowered. Both requests were refused.

The basis for this refusal is Western insistence that the Soviets can make a head count of passengers by simply looking into the vehicles if the troops number fewer than 30. If there are more, Western convoy commanders have instructions to let their men dismount for a headcount.

Premier Khrushchev, in talking Wednesday with a group of American businessmen, maintained that the trouble had been caused by an American attempt to change "established procedures." He also claimed the dispute had been solved only when the U.S. commander agreed to "observe the established procedure."

Khrushchev's first remark simply does not correspond with the truth, American officials said. Procedures were established years ago and were spelled out in writing to the Soviet Union Oct. 29, the officials said.

Concerning the Soviet leader's second remark, the comment in Washington is that the convoy commander had insisted on the "established procedure" right from the outset.

Above all, Washington insisted that the United States had made no concessions.

fining a proposal approved by council fathers in preliminary voting—the possibility of parceling some of the Pope's power to his bishops.

In the two days that the schema has been discussed on the council floor it has run into almost unanimous opposition. Conservatives denounced it as a threat to papal powers; progressives criticized it for not going far enough in defining a new relationship between bishops and pontiff.

But by a 3 to 1 margin Wednesday, the council voted to go on with the issue, making it clear the question is too vital to be left unresolved.

In the view of many theologians, the question could have been resolved at the first Vatican Council 93 years ago.

But before that council could begin discussing what bearing papal primacy has on bishops' powers, it was interrupted by the nationalist revolution which unified Italy. The council never resumed.

"In a sense, then, that First Vatican Council was abortive," said Archbishop Karl Alter of Cincinnati, a member of the council's commission responsible for the schema on diocesan government. "It never had the chance to get to the problem of how the bishops fit in with the Pope's exercise of power."

There are presently no intermediate bodies with jurisdiction power between the Pope's offices—or curia—in Rome and the individual bishop.

Thus the Pope in effect rules the church like a monarch. Many bishops insist this is the way it should remain. But others hold that sharing his governing powers with bishops would be a natural extension of the pontiff's authority and would not weaken his primacy.

Father Gustave Weigel, an American Jesuit theologian of Woodstock, Md., says those who do not support the "monarchist" view want the bishops to operate with the Pope as a kind of aristocracy.

"The question is, do you want to establish ecclesiastical power on the absolute monarchy of the Pope alone or not?" he said.

Many non-Catholic Christians oppose the church because they regard the present system of papal power as dictatorial. They will be watching closely for any signs of change.

Judge Jails Man on Second Drunk Charge

A 20-day jail sentence, which had previously been suspended, was invoked Thursday by Judge Allan Asher against a Wheeling W. Va. man.

Jack Bowman, 38, had received the suspended sentence on a charge of drunkness. Judge Asher suspended it on condition that the man leave town.

Bowman was brought into court Thursday on another drunkeness charge and the sentence was invoked. Bowman was also fined $25 on the second drunk charge.

Dale Thompson, 48, of the St. Charles Hotel, pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkeness and was sentenced to 10 days in the City Jail.

Also pleading guilty to charges of drunkeness were Walter Krause, 37, of the Rex Hotel and Daniel Street, 18, of Ft. Carson.

Krause was fined $25. The case against Street was dismissed since it was his first offense.

The judge dismissed a charge of drunkeness against Jacquelyn Lightner, 53, of 440 E. Pikes Peak Ave., when the complaining witness did not appear in court. Mrs. Lightner had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Adolph Miranda, 29, of 2927 W. Colorado Ave., forfeited a $25 bond when he failed to appear in court to answer a charge of drunkeness.

George Pedrie, 27, of 726 S. Circle Dr., was found not guilty of careless driving.

Clarence Eubank, 77, of 1333 N. Cascade Ave., was found guilty of taking the right of way after Colorado Springs Police Officer J. W. Poyner testified against him.

Eubank was fined $10. He was represented by attorner John Bennett.

Children Seek Lost Kitten

Tabby is just a Calico kitten but to the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Keith, 623 Williams Ave., Stratton Meadows, she was just like one of the family.

The children and their mother raised the kitten from birth, feeding her from a bottle and watching her grow.

But Tabby strayed from home Wednesday night and the children are frantic.

"If Tabby died, Mommy, I guess I'll have to die and go to heaven too," the Keith's two-year old daughter and the youngest of the children said.

The kitten is just three and a half months old.

"But she doesn't look it," Mrs. Keith said. "She's smaller than most kittens her age."

Anyone seeing the kitten is asked to call the Keith family at 633-1516.

"My daughter looked all over for Tabby. She's just heartbroken. And so am I. After all, Mommy was the one who had to get up for the 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. feedings."

Deitz Found Legally Sane By District Court Jury

John C. Deitz was found legally sane Wednesday night by a District Court jury after 45 minutes deliberation.

Deitz, 44, of 226 S. Cascade Ave. was accused of forgery and alleged to have given a $35 check to Gold Acres Liquors, March 7 signing his mother's name.

He pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity and the two-day trial was on the sanity issue only.

Two psychiatrists for the prosecution, Dr. Richard Conde and Dr. Glenn V. Karcher, agreed he was legally sane but disagreed on the nature of his mental condition.

Dr. Conde said he was schizophrenic while Dr. Karcher said he was not psychotic.

"Dr. Karcher's diagnosis agrees with my formulations of one level," said Conde. "We fundamentally agree on the kind of person we are dealing with. Some people take society's laws more seriously. Some don't, and those we call criminals."

The witness told the court that the defendant "hated his mother." He had a deep and abiding aversion towards her yet be depended on her. He wished to get away from her influence and this was a characteristic of the schizophrenic. The doctor quoted an occasion when Dietz drove to New York to escape his mother but then telephoned her from there.

Dr. Karcher testified Dietz knew forgery was wrong. "He knew the difference from right and wrong and had no disease of the mind which would have made him unable to follow the right."

Dr. Harold C. Hobbs, chief psychologist at Brady's Hospital was a witness for the defense and told the court the defendant was mentally ill. "He has an impairment in ability to determine what is real and what is fancy."

During the doctor's examination of the defendant he found suggestions of "delusional thinking, evidence of persecution and believing the world was against him and that people were out to get him."

There was also, added the witness, "evidence of overprotection by a female figure during the formative years, evidence of hostility and withdrawal from the world into fantasy and a marked fear of being attacked."

Dietz was represented by attorneys Brian Mullett and Gary Herbert who have been given 10 days in which to file a motion for a new trial. The presiding judge was Hunter D. Hardeman and Deputy District Attorneys Herman A. Ratner and Richard Webster appeared for the State.

'War No Longer Offers Winner,' Speaker Says

of peace they have.

"We need to talk more about the kind of peace we have. We Americans are making a big mistake in not doing so."

Dream No. 2, Dr. Furbay said, was the Dream of Food.

He told the audience that only 24 hours away by air, one billion persons suffer from hunger pains, not today but every day, from the time they were born until they died.

Because man has eliminated space, bringing all peoples closer to one another, "these hungry people know about us. They know about our paying the farmer not to plant, they know about our surpluses and our reducing pills.

"And," he emphasized, "they will listen to anyone who will eliminate their hunger pains, whether he be communist or free-worlder.

"No communist country," he went on, "has an answer to hunger. No communist country can feed itself. They all have rationing."

But we have the answer, he said, and it is agricultural science. Science does not work well except in the hands of free men. The communists do not have this.

Thus, we have the unbeatable weapon of the free world.

We should give more foreign aid to these hungry people by helping them to attain our knowledge of the science of agriculture.

"This will constitute a scientific revolution," he said, "not a violent one, which we shall surely have if we do not help these people to help themselves.

"As for myself," he said, "I would rather support a scientific revolution by payment of taxes than have my head chopped off in a revolution of violence."

The third dream of man is the Dream of Self-Government.

Dr. Furbay compared the state of the new countries emerging in the world — the former colonies of the 18th and 19th centuries — with the adolescence of children.

"These countries," he said, "actually are not 'children' but neither are they 'adults.'

"We all know the problems we have with adolescents', and we shall have our problems with these new countries, 66 of them already since World War II.

"We must be patient with them. We must see them thru.

"Who is going to be the friend of these adolescent countries— we or the communists? We should tell the world how we liberated the Philippines and Liberia, befriended them, and still are friends.

"The communists," he emphasized, "have never given freedom to any country."

The last of the four dreams, Dr. Furbay said, "is the Dream of Human Dignity."

Every country, he said, has its second class citizens. That's what people want, he continued, somebody to look down on.

The answer to that problem, Dr. Furbay said, is being provided by children. The older people still have their prejudices, Dr. Furbay told his audience, "but everywhere in the world I have traveled, I have found the children extremely broad-minded."

To conclude his talk, Dr. Furbay said, "Communists cannot fulfill the four dreams of men. If the free world is to survive, we must provide answers better than the communists can."

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field)

Widespread rain, drizzle and fog covered most of the eastern half of the nation this morning.

Mostly fair skies prevailed in the southern half of the plains and west-central United States.

Elsewhere partly cloudy to cloudy skies were the rule.

A rather intense storm centered along the southern Maryland coast produced heavy rain to part of the drouth area. Extensive heavy rains will result in local flash flooding. Precipitation has been locally heavy in the northeastern United States with numerous locations reporting over an inch of rain during the night.

Some of the heavier amounts fell at Blackstone, Va., recording 2.23 inches and Altoona, Pa., with 1.68 inches of rain during the past 24 hours.

officials in South Viet Nam to grant asylum to another member of the deposed family, President Ngo Dinh Diem's brother, Ngo Dinh Can.

Can sought protection in the American Consulate at Hue, capital of central Viet Nam. But U.S. officials refused it and flew him to Saigon, 400 miles south, in an American military plane. Buddhist opponents of the ousted Ngo Dinh Diem regime charged that Can ruled the central region as a tyrant.

No additional details of the reported conversation between Nixon and Mrs. Nhu were disclosed.

Mrs. Nhu moved into spacious quarters Wednesday in the lavish hillside home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Chase in the wealthy Los Angeles residential district of Bel Air. With her was her eldest child, Le Thuy, 18, and her secretary Nguyen Thi Tuan.

There they hope to be reunited with Mrs. Nhu's three younger children, ages 15, 11 and 5 who were flown from Viet Nam to Rome. They are being cared for by Mrs. Nhu's brother-in-law Archbishop Pierre Martin Ngo Dinh Thuc who is attending the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Mrs. Nhu sent a cable Wednesday to the Archbishop expressing her concern at not being able to reach him or her children by telephone.

Mrs. Nhu had originally sought to have the children flown to Rome via Los Angeles. But the U.S. Department of State said the message was received after the children were on their way to Rome via Bangkok. They arrived there Tuesday.

Mrs. Nhu's host is a businessman with extensive land holdings in the Orient and Australia. Her hostess is a clinical psychologist.

"Our home is open to her as are our hearts," said Mrs. Chase. "She is welcome to stay as long as necessary." The home is a pink stucco mansion with white shutters situated on a 4-acre site amid trees and formal gardens.

Russians Want U.S. Wheat, Alcohol for War Reserves

portation costs of additional millions.

Deputy Trade Minister Sergei Borisov, heading the Russian negotiating delegation, has told U.S. officials the 300,000 tons of industrial alcohol are wanted for making fertilizer.

That's intriguing news to Agriculture Department scientists. They point out alcohol is not used for this purpose in the U.S. They also are very skeptical about its being used for manufacturing fertilizer in Russia unless a new process has been developed there about which nothing is know — which they doubt very much.

Pentagon authorities, who consider industrial alcohol a strategic commodity, stress that it is an important ingredient in the production of ammunition and missile fuel.

Military officials are decidedly cool toward such a sale.

Industrial alcohol is made from a variety of ingredients, among them molasses. A number of plants producing the commodity are currently shut down, and a sale of this magnitude would be a big bonanza for them.

Unlike the wheat negotiations, the Soviet delegation is indicating there will be no haggling over the price and transportation costs of the alcohol.

WHAT'S BEHIND WHEAT DEAL?

It's becoming increasingly evident there is much more behind the Kremlin's immense grain purchases than poor crops and possible food shortages.

Agriculture Department experts have definitely established that the Soviet so far has bought a total of $14.1 million tons of wheat. This does not include the 5 million tons being sought from the U.S.

The 14.1 million tons of purchased grain is more than one-fourth of Russia's estimated total annual production. In recent years that has been between 50 and 55 million tons.

U.S. intelligence and military authorities are inclining strongly to the view that much of this grain is for building up the Reds' war reserves.

Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, at a closed-door meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, expressed the opinion that upwards of 50 per cent of the Soviet's grain purchases would go to fill commitments to Communist bloc countries.

"What about the other 50 per cent?" he was asked. "Any of that going into the military or war reserves?"

"We have no hard information on that," replied Freeman. "It might well be used for that purpose. Some of the Pentagon people are convinced of that, and they may be right."

MAN TO WATCH

Remember the name Nguyen ton Hoan?

He's a man to keep an eye on in the seething South Vietnamese cauldron.

Hoan is head of the Democratic League of Vietnam, with headquarters in New Haven, Conn. He is returning to his homeland soon to play a leading role there.

A leftist - leaning politician Hoan was sent into exile by the late President Diem for "anti-government" activities. He is credited with favoring the establishment of a so-called coalition government to seek "unity" with Communist-ruled North Vietnam.

Several months ago the State Department gave Hoan a visa to come to the U.S. from Paris. He was there in the early days of the Buddhists' protests. Two Saigon leaders of that stormy anti-Diem movement are close associates of Hoan. They are Tam Chau and Tri Quang. The latter studied at Yale, and sought asylum in the U.S. embassy after Diem cracked down on the Buddhists.

After leaving Hanoi University in 1940, Hoan was tied up with French intelligence.

CRYSTAL BALL

The Joint Atomic Committee will issue a report vigorously upholding the Navy's contention that the new super aircraft carrier should be atomic powered. This congressional committee has no authority to legislate on this matter. But it has been holding hearings on the hotly controversial issue, and will unanimously recommend that the carrier be atomic powered—as strong advocated by Admiral Hyman Rickover, "father" of the steadily growing nuclear-powered submarine fleet. . . . Congress has dragged its feet all year on numerous important bills affecting the country at large, but there is one that is certain of speedy action — to give senators and representatives a $10,000 pay increase. Backstage plan of House and Senate leaders is to push this bill thru before the Christmas adjournment as a Christmas present to themselves. Senator Olin Johnston, D-S.C., chairman of the Postoffice Committee that has jurisdiction over this legislation, is confidently forecasting this happy event — for them.

Gov. Rockefeller Formally Enters Presidency Race

as the underdog in what has been the undeclared contest for the nomination.

Nor did he refer to his divorce and remarriage which have been largely blamed for his currently poor standing in polls on the nomination.

Rockefeller proposed that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and other potential candidates also enter the New Hampshire primary.

"It is my hope that other candidates will make use of the (primary) so that all of their views will be clearly known," he said.

"The New Hampshire primary presents an excellent opportunity to do so, forthrightly and undiluted by fence-straddling or doubletalk of any kind."

Rockefeller, who did not mention Goldwater by name, has been challenging the Arizona senator to join him in a series of debates to determine what positions the Republican party should take on major issues. Goldwater has refused on grounds of party unity.

The governor arranged to leave for New Hampshire immediately after his announcement.

Rockefeller, who has sought in recent months to associate Goldwater with extremism, said he was certain Republican convention delegates woud "write a platform and select a candidate consistent with the basic principles of the Republican party and the realities of the world in which we live."

He began reading his prepared statement without any "Thank you" and swept out of the room before newsmen could buttonhole him for questioning.

The announcement was televised live on a national network (NBC's "Today" show).

The New Hampshire primary March 10 will be the first in the nation.

Rockefeller manifested interest in winning the presidential nomination in 1959 but abandoned that effort before reaching a formal announcement.

Teamsters Seek Nationwide New Contract

sions and $1 more a week for health and welfare.

3. Other fringe benefits including three days off with pay in case of death in a union member's immediate family, better vacation benefits, pay for jury service, two more paid holidays and 10 cents an hour for dental care.

Hoffa had previously announced a demand that management build and maintain a $1-million dental and optical care center for union members.

Hoffa called the proposals "a tremendous step forward" for his union.

Teamsters truck drivers, helpers, mechanics, clerks and other employes to be covered by $3.17 an hour plus $6 a week in the contract now average about $3.17 an hour plus $6 a week in pension benefits and $3.50 a week for health and welfare.

Hoffa, at a news conference Wednesday, repeated earlier statements that there is no danger of a nationwide truck strike.

He also said he does not expect the trucking industry to absorb the Teamsters' demands without raising rates.

He said he hopes to start negotiations early in December in 50-man policy committee and a five-man negotiating committee in talks with industry representatives.

Another demand in the Teamsters' proposal would require trucking firms that use the railroads to "piggyback" a loaded truck trailer to make penalty payments to any driver on the seniority list who does not have a job scheduled for that particular day.

The penalty pay would apply to at least one idle Teamster driver for every truck loaded onto a train.

He said truck firms in the past took advantage of a technicality in previous contracts to ship by rail.

The Teamsters now have a provision requiring a payment of $5 into a Teamsters local pension fund for every piggybacked truck.

Hoffa said the contract would also tighten up "hot cargo" agreements in line with latest court decisions. This, he said, would be to ensure the Teamsters' "right to follow strike-bound goods to the place of delivery and set up pickets."

Teamsters pay scales, now set up under regional contracts, range from $3.06 an hour to $3.28 an hour.

The new demands would raise the minimum scale in the first year to $3.21, the second year to $3.38 and the third year to $3.55.

The maximum scale over the period would rise to $3.73.

The nationwide contract would expire Feb. 1, 1967.

State Patrolman Nathan Boals said the car was going south when it hit the barricade at a construction site.

Some grain experts in the Agriculture Department— while declining to comment publicly— do not hesitate to say in private conversations that they are at a loss to understand why the ship condition was attached to sales of wheat and wheat flour only.

There have been reports the President imposed the requirements to avoid possible trouble with the American maritime unions. Also, at the time Kennedy made his decision, it was reported in government circles that the President wanted American ships to move the grain to prevent possible diversion to Cuba and to Communist areas in the Far East.

Government farm officials have looked upon the potential sales as presidential election year help in strengthening wheat prices in important farm voting areas and in reducing criticism of federal farm programs by taxpayers concerned with cost of storing surplus grain.

Girl Admits Calling False Fire Alarms

An 11-year old girl who has admitted calling in two false fire alarums to the Stratton Meadows Fire Department and another to the sheriff's office is being dealt with by the juvenille department, the sheriff's office reported Wednesday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bernard Barry, he received a call to contact a woman on Florence Ave. regarding a house prowl. When he arrived she told him she had not telephoned the sheriff's office and said that the previous week the fire department had been sent to her home. She gave the officer the name of a young girl whom she suspected.

Barry asked the sheriff's dispatcher to call the girl at her home and when he did he recognized her voice as the same which had called in a false fire report a few days previously. The girl was interviewed by the deputy and admitted calling in false reports. She also implicated another 11-year old girl who was with her at the time.

Two Women Jailed for Shoplifting

Two women were in County Jail this morning after they admitted shoplifting at a King Soopers Inc. store Wednesday afternoon, police reported.

The women, both of Canon City, were arrested at the store, which is located at 2727 Palmer Park Blvd.

The store manager Rex Jones, told officers he saw the women put shoes, nylon hose, greeting cards and other items in their hand bags and try to leave the store without paying for them.

Allies Expect Roadblocks By Reds on Berlin Road

first requested that the passengers dismount, then said they would be satisfied if the tailgates of some of the vehicles were lowered. Both requests were refused.

The basis for this refusal is Western insistence that the Soviets can make a head count of passengers by simply looking into the vehicles if the troops number fewer than 30. If there are more, Western convoy commanders have instructions to let their men dismount for a headcount.

Premier Khrushchev, in talking Wednesday with a group of American businessmen, maintained that the trouble had been caused by an American attempt to change "established procedures." He also claimed the dispute had been solved only when the U.S. commander agreed to "observe the established procedure."

Khrushchev's first remark simply does not correspond with the truth, American officials said. Procedures were established years ago and were spelled out in writing to the Soviet Union Oct. 29, the officials said.

Concerning the Soviet leader's second remark, the comment in Washington is that the convoy commander had insisted on the "established procedure" right from the outset.

Above all, Washington insisted that the United States had made no concessions.

fining a proposal approved by council fathers in preliminary voting—the possibility of parceling some of the Pope's power to his bishops.

In the two days that the schema has been discussed on the council floor it has run into almost unanimous opposition. Conservatives denounced it as a threat to papal powers; progressives criticized it for not going far enough in defining a new relationship between bishops and pontiff.

But by a 3 to 1 margin Wednesday, the council voted to go on with the issue, making it clear the question is too vital to be left unresolved.

In the view of many theologians, the question could have been resolved at the first Vatican Council 93 years ago.

But before that council could begin discussing what bearing papal primacy has on bishops' powers, it was interrupted by the nationalist revolution which unified Italy. The council never resumed.

"In a sense, then, that First Vatican Council was abortive," said Archbishop Karl Alter of Cincinnati, a member of the council's commission responsible for the schema on diocesan government. "It never had the chance to get to the problem of how the bishops fit in with the Pope's exercise of power."

There are presently no intermediate bodies with jurisdiction power between the Pope's offices—or curia—in Rome and the individual bishop.

Thus the Pope in effect rules the church like a monarch. Many bishops insist this is the way it should remain. But others hold that sharing his governing powers with bishops would be a natural extension of the pontiff's authority and would not weaken his primacy.

Father Gustave Weigel, an American Jesuit theologian of Woodstock, Md., says those who do not support the "monarchist" view want the bishops to operate with the Pope as a kind of aristocracy.

"The question is, do you want to establish ecclesiastical power on the absolute monarchy of the Pope alone or not?" he said.

Many non-Catholic Christians oppose the church because they regard the present system of papal power as dictatorial. They will be watching closely for any signs of change.

Judge Jails Man on Second Drunk Charge

A 20-day jail sentence, which had previously been suspended, was invoked Thursday by Judge Allan Asher against a Wheeling W. Va. man.

Jack Bowman, 38, had received the suspended sentence on a charge of drunkness. Judge Asher suspended it on condition that the man leave town.

Bowman was brought into court Thursday on another drunkeness charge and the sentence was invoked. Bowman was also fined $25 on the second drunk charge.

Dale Thompson, 48, of the St. Charles Hotel, pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkeness and was sentenced to 10 days in the City Jail.

Also pleading guilty to charges of drunkeness were Walter Krause, 37, of the Rex Hotel and Daniel Street, 18, of Ft. Carson.

Krause was fined $25. The case against Street was dismissed since it was his first offense.

The judge dismissed a charge of drunkeness against Jacquelyn Lightner, 53, of 440 E. Pikes Peak Ave., when the complaining witness did not appear in court. Mrs. Lightner had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Adolph Miranda, 29, of 2927 W. Colorado Ave., forfeited a $25 bond when he failed to appear in court to answer a charge of drunkeness.

George Pedrie, 27, of 726 S. Circle Dr., was found not guilty of careless driving.

Children Seek Lost Kitten

Tabby is just a Calico kitten but to the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Keith, 623 Williams Ave., Stratton Meadows, she was just like one of the family.

The children and their mother raised the kitten from birth, feeding her from a bottle and watching her grow.

But Tabby strayed from home Wednesday night and the children are frantic.

"If Tabby died, Mommy, I guess I'll have to die and go to heaven too," the Keith's two-year old daughter and the youngest of the children said.

The kitten is just three and a half months old.

"But she doesn't look it," Mrs. Keith said. "She's smaller than most kittens her age."

Anyone seeing the kitten is asked to call the Keith family at 633-1516.

"My daughter looked all over for Tabby. She's just heartbroken. And so am I. After all, Mommy was the one who had to get up for the 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. feedings."

Deitz Found Legally Sane By District Court Jury

John C. Deitz was found legally sane Wednesday night by a District Court jury after 45 minutes deliberation.

Deitz, 44, of 226 S. Cascade Ave. was accused of forgery and alleged to have given a $35 check to Gold Acres Liquors, March 7 signing his mother's name.

He pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity and the two-day trial was on the sanity issue only.

Two psychiatrists for the prosecution, Dr. Richard Conde and Dr. Glenn V. Karcher, agreed he was legally sane but disagreed on the nature of his mental condition.

Dr. Conde said he was schizophrenic while Dr. Karcher said he was not psychotic.

"Dr. Karcher's diagnosis agrees with my formulations of one level," said Conde. "We fundamentally agree on the kind of person we are dealing with. Some people take society's laws more seriously. Some don't, and those we call criminals."

The witness told the court that the defendant "hated his mother." He had a deep and abiding aversion towards her yet he depended on her. He wished to get away from her influence and this was a characteristic of the schizophrenic. The doctor quoted an occasion when Deitz drove to New York to escape his mother but then telephoned her from there.

Dr. Karcher testified Deitz knew forgery was wrong. "He knew the difference from right and wrong and had no disease of the mind which would have made him unable to follow the right."

Dr. Harold C. Hobbs, chief psychologist at Brady's Hospital was a witness for the defense and told the court the defendant was mentally ill. "He has an impairment in ability to determine what is real and what is fancy."

During the doctor's examination of the defendant he found suggestions of "delusional thinking, evidence of persecution and believing the world was against him and that people were out to get him."

There was also, added the witness, "evidence of overprotection by a female figure during the formative years, evidence of hostility and withdrawal from the world into fantasy and a marked fear of being attacked."

Dietz was represented by attorneys Brian Mullett and Gary Herbert who have been given 10 days in which to file a motion for a new trial. The presiding judge was Hunter D. Hardeman and Deputy District Attorneys Herman A. Ratner and Richard Webster appeared for the State.

'War No Longer Offers Winner,' Speaker Says

of peace they have.

"We need to talk more about the kind of peace we have. We Americans are making a big mistake in not doing so."

Dream No. 2, Dr. Furbay said, was the Dream of Food.

He told the audience that only 24 hours away by air, one billion persons suffer from hunger pains, not today but every day, from the time they were born until they died.

Because man has eliminated space, bringing all peoples closer to one another, "these hungry people know about us. They know about our paying the farmer not to plant, they know about our surpluses and our reducing pills.

"And," he emphasized, "they will listen to anyone who will eliminate their hunger pains, whether he be communist or free-worlder.

"No communist country," he went on, "has an answer to hunger. No communist country can feed itself. They all have rationing."

But we have the answer, he said, and it is agricultural science. Science does not work well except in the hands of free men. The communists do not have this.

Thus, we have the unbeatable weapon of the free world.

We should give more foreign aid to these hungry people by helping them to attain our knowledge of the science of agriculture.

"This will constitute a scientific revolution," he said, "not a violent one, which we shall surely have if we do not help these people to help themselves.

"As for myself," he said, "I would rather support a scientific revolution by payment of taxes than have my head chopped off in a revolution of violence."

The third dream of man is the Dream of Self-Government.

Dr. Furbay compared the state of the new countries emerging in the world — the former colonies of the 18th and 19th centuries — with the adolescence of children.

"These countries," he said, "actually are not 'children' but neither are they 'adults.'

"We all know the problems we have with adolescents', and we shall have our problems with these new countries, 66 of them already since World War II.

"We must be patient with them. We must see them thru.

"Who is going to be the friend of these adolescent countries— we or the communists? We should tell the world how we liberated the Philippines and Liberia, befriended them, and still are friends.

"The communists," he emphasized, "have never given freedom to any country."

The last of the four dreams, Dr. Furbay said, "is the Dream of Human Dignity."

Every country, he said, has its second class citizens. That's what people want, he continued, somebody to look down on.

The answer to that problem, Dr. Furbay said, is being provided by children. The older people still have their prejudices, Dr. Furbay told his audience, "but everywhere in the world I have traveled, I have found the children extremely broad-minded."

To conclude his talk, Dr. Furbay said, "Communists cannot fulfill the four dreams of men. If the free world is to survive, we must provide answers better than the communists can."

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Petersen Field)

Widespread rain, drizzle and fog covered most of the eastern half of the nation this morning.

Mostly fair skies prevailed in the southern half of the plains and west-central United States.

Elsewhere partly cloudy to cloudy skies were the rule.

A rather intense storm centered along the southern Maryland coast produced heavy rain to part of the drouth area. Extensive heavy rains will result in local flash flooding. Precipitation has been locally heavy in the northeastern United States with numerous locations reporting over an inch of rain during the night.

Some of the heavier amounts fell at Blackstone, Va., recording 2.28 inches and Altoona, Pa., with 1.68 inches of rain during the past 24 hours.

officials in South Viet Nam to grant asylum to another member of the deposed family, President Ngo Dinh Diem's brother, Ngo Dinh Can.

Can sought protection in the American Consulate at Hue, capital of central Viet Nam. But U.S. officials refused it and flew him to Saigon, 400 miles south, in an American military plane. Buddhist opponents of the ousted Ngo Dinh Diem regime charged that Can ruled the central region as a tyrant.

No additional details of the reported conversation between Nixon and Mrs. Nhu were disclosed.

Mrs. Nhu moved into spacious quarters Wednesday in the lavish hillside home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Chase in the wealthy Los Angeles residential district of Bel Air. With her was her eldest child, Le Thuy, 18, and her secretary Nguyen Thi Tuan.

There they hope to be reunited with Mrs. Nhu's three younger children, ages 15, 11 and 5 who were flown from Viet Nam to Rome. They are being cared for by Mrs. Nhu's brother-in-law Archbishop Pierre Martin Ngo Dinh Thuc who is attending the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Mrs. Nhu sent a cable Wednesday to the Archbishop expressing her concern at not being able to reach him or her children by telephone.

Mrs. Nhu had originally sought to have the children flown to Rome via Los Angeles. But the U.S. Department of State said the message was received after the children were on their way to Rome via Bangkok. They arrived there Tuesday.

Mrs. Nhu's host is a businessman with extensive land holdings in the Orient and Australia. Her hostess is a clinical psychologist.

"Our home is open to her as are our hearts," said Mrs. Chase. "She is welcome to stay as long as necessary." The home is a pink stucco mansion with white shutters situated on a 4-acre site amid trees and formal gardens.

Russians Want U.S. Wheat, Alcohol for War Reserves

portation costs of additional millions.

Deputy Trade Minister Sergei Borisov, heading the Russian negotiating delegation, has told U.S. officials the 300,000 tons of industrial alcohol are wanted for making fertilizer.

That's intriguing news to Agriculture Department scientists. They point out alcohol is not used for this purpose in the U.S. They also are very skeptical about its being used for manufacturing fertilizer in Russia unless a new process has been developed there about which nothing is know — which they doubt very much.

Pentagon authorities, who consider industrial alcohol a strategic commodity, stress that it is an important ingredient in the production of ammunition and missile fuel.

Military officials are decidedly cool toward such a sale.

Industrial alcohol is made from a variety of ingredients, among them molasses. A number of plants producing the commodity are currently shut down, and a sale of this magnitude would be a big bonanza for them.

Unlike the wheat negotiations, the Soviet delegation is indicating there will be no haggling over the price and transportation costs of the alcohol.

WHAT'S BEHIND WHEAT DEAL?

It's becoming increasingly evident there is much more behind the Kremlin's immense grain purchases than poor crops and possible food shortages.

Agriculture Department experts have definitely established that the Soviet so far has bought a total of $14.1 million tons of wheat. This does not include the 5 million tons being sought from the U.S.

The 14.1 million tons of purchased grain is more than one-fourth of Russia's estimated total annual production. In recent years that has been between 50 and 55 million tons.

U.S. intelligence and military authorities are inclining strongly to the view that much of this grain is for building up the Reds' war reserves.

Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, at a closed-door meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, expressed the opinion that upwards of 50 per cent of the Soviet's grain purchases would go to fill commitments to Communist bloc countries.

"What about the other 50 per cent?" he was asked. "Any of that going into the military or war reserves?"

"We have no hard information on that," replied Freeman. "It might well be used for that purpose. Some of the Pentagon people are convinced of that, and they may be right."

MAN TO WATCH

Remember the name Nguyen ton Hoan?

He's a man to keep an eye on in the seething South Vietnamese cauldron.

Hoan is head of the Democratic League of Vietnam, with headquarters in New Haven, Conn. He is returning to his homeland soon to play a leading role there.

A leftist - leaning politician Hoan was sent into exile by the late President Diem for "anti-government" activities. He is credited with favoring the establishment of a so-called coalition government to seek "unity" with Communist-ruled North Vietnam.

Several months ago the State Department gave Hoan a visa to come to the U.S. from Paris. He was there in the early days of the Buddhists' protests. Two Saigon leaders of that stormy anti-Diem movement are close associates of Hoan. They are Tam Chau and Tri Quang. The latter studied at Yale, and sought asylum in the U.S. embassy after Diem cracked down on the Buddhists.

After leaving Hanoi University in 1940, Hoan was tied up with French intelligence.

CRYSTAL BALL

The Joint Atomic Committee will issue a report vigorously upholding the Navy's contention that the new super aircraft carrier should be atomic powered. This congressional committee has no authority to legislate on this matter. But it has been holding hearings on the hotly controversial issue, and will unanimously recommend that the carrier be atomic powered—as strong advocated by Admiral Hyman Rickover, "father" of the steadily growing nuclear-powered submarine fleet. . . . Congress has dragged its feet all year on numerous important bills affecting the country at large, but there is one that is certain of speedy action — to give senators and representatives a $10,000 pay increase. Backstage plan of House and Senate leaders is to push this bill thru before the Christmas adjournment as a Christmas present to themselves. Senator Olin Johnston, D-S.C., chairman of the Postoffice Committee that has jurisdiction over this legislation, is confidently forecasting this happy event — for them.

Gov. Rockefeller Formally Enters Presidency Race

as the underdog in what has been the undeclared contest for the nomination.

Nor did he refer to his divorce and remarriage, which have been largely blamed for his currently poor standing in polls on the nomination.

Rockefeller proposed that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and other potential candidates also enter the New Hampshire primary.

"It is my hope that other candidates will make use of the (primary) so that all of their views will be clearly known," he said.

"The New Hampshire primary presents an excellent opportunity to do so, forthrightly and undiluted by fence-straddling or doubletalk of any kind."

Rockefeller, who did not mention Goldwater by name, has been challenging the Arizona senator to join him in a series of debates to determine what positions the Republican party should take on major issues. Goldwater has refused on grounds of party unity.

The governor arranged to leave for New Hampshire immediately after his announcement.

Rockefeller, who has sought in recent months to associate Goldwater with extremism, said he was certain Republican convention delegates woud "write a platform and select a candidate consistent with the basic principles of the Republican party and the realities of the world in which we live."

He began reading his prepared statement without any "Thank you" and swept out of the room before newsmen could buttonhole him for questioning.

The announcement was televised live on a national network (NBC's "Today" show).

The New Hampshire primary March 10 will be the first in the nation.

Rockefeller manifested interest in winning the presidential nomination in 1959 but abandoned that effort before reaching a formal announcement.

Teamsters Seek Nationwide New Contract

sions and $1 more a week for health and welfare.

3. Other fringe benefits including three days off with pay in case of death in a union member's immediate family, better vacation benefits, pay for jury service, two more paid holidays and 10 cents an hour for dental care.

Hoffa had previously announced a demand that management build and maintain a $1-million dental and optical care center for union members.

Hoffa called the proposals "a tremendous step forward" for his union.

Teamsters truck drivers, helpers, mechanics, clerks and other employes to be covered by $3.17 an hour plus $6 a week in the contract now average about $3.17 an hour plus $6 a week in pension benefits and $3.50 a week for health and welfare.

Hoffa, at a news conference Wednesday, repeated earlier statements that there is no danger of a nationwide truck strike.

He also said he does not expect the trucking industry to absorb the Teamsters' demands without raising rates.

He said he hopes to start negotiations early in December in 50-man policy committee and a five-man negotiating committee in talks with industry representatives.

Another demand in the Teamsters' proposal would require trucking firms that use the railroads to "piggyback" a loaded truck trailer to make penalty payments to any driver on the seniority list who does not have a job scheduled for that particular day.

The penalty pay would apply to at least one idle Teamster driver for every truck loaded onto a train.

He said truck firms in the past took advantage of a technicality in previous contracts to ship by rail.

The Teamsters now have a provision requiring a payment of $5 into a Teamsters local pension fund for every piggybacked truck.

Hoffa said the contract would also tighten up "hot cargo" agreements in line with latest court decisions. This, he said, would be to ensure the Teamsters' "right to follow strike-bound goods to the place of delivery and set up pickets."

Teamsters' pay scales, now set up under regional contracts, range from $3.06 an hour to $3.28 an hour.

The new demands would raise the minimum scale in the first year to $3.21, the second year to $3.38 and the third year to $3.55.

The maximum scale over the period would rise to $3.73.

The nationwide contract would expire Feb. 1, 1967.

Looking At Hollywood

BROADWAY HAS A SHOW ABOUT OUR PRESIDENTS

Hollywood—If Gregory Peck wants Broadway again, he can have it in Gilbert Miller's offbeat production of "The White House Story," which stars Helen Hayes and four other actors. We've glorified the leaders of every country; now we're getting around to our own. A. E. Hotchner dug thru the archives and fished out letters written by our Presidents and their wives, revealing human things about them not generally known. The setting will be the Green room of the White House with Helen and a younger actress playing the wives, and three actors portraying the Presidents. The main problem is to find a Hollywood star with enough stature and personal dignity to match the roles.

I'm sure Dolores wasn't ordering proceries all that time. When I cautioned Bob to slow down he said: "I'm fine. Sometimes my ham outweighs my good sense, but look who's talking."

Hope was threatened with legal action over his last show when attorneys for Rodgers and Hammerstein saw a picture of him in that Yul Brynner getup before the show was aired. They warned CBS they would not permit Bob to do a satire on "The King and I." They were sent a script. The legal eagles wired back, Ha, ha."

Patty Duke takes time out from her hit TV show next March to make a movie of "Time Out for Ginger."

ANGRY NURSE — Why is the pretty nurse bawling out the patient? She's Marge Howard, an ardent lover of animals, and he's Derek Camien, world famous big game hunter, who was getting all set to begin his biggest African safari when he was hospitalized. Camien is a sicker man than he realizes. Dr. Ben Casey wants to operate, but Camien will have none of it. He wants to get back to killing animals. Does this give you an idea of why Miss Howard is angry? For a gripping story, ready the new continuity beginning in BEN CASEY Monday, November 11.

Rocky Proved in New York He Can Overcome Foes

By ROBERT T .GRAY

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller closed his eyes and ears to reasons why he could not be elected governor of New York State and, five years ago this week, won a smashing victory.

Now, against his presidential aspirations, the chorus that "you can't win" has increased tenfold. The reasons advanced are more numerous, more personal and graver.

And the odds against him are far greater.

But Rockefeller, 55, a little grayer and not quite so bouncy as during his first political campaign, began another uphill battle today.

Most people who have followed his career assumed from the beginning that his goal was the presidency. He made an abortive try three years ago.

Few political experts give him any chance of victory this time.

The talk sounds much as it did in 1958, when Rockefeller decided, after 18 years in appointive government posts, to run for governor.

With the help of skillful, experienced Republican leaders, Rockefeller developed a smiling, hand-shaking "just folks" approach to campaigning.

Political experts were surprised at the ease with which the grandson of John D. Rockefeller Sr. charmed voters.

Rockefeller eliminated his opponents for the nomination, including Leonard W. Hall, former GOP national chairman. Some observers thought they detected a bit of retribuion when Hall recently rejected an offer to help Rockefeller, now sorely in need of Republican big-name support.

When 1958 began, Gov. Averell Harriman appeared to be unbeatable. Polls gave him a strong position. New York State had a tradition of giving second terms to governors. Under Harriman, Democrats had even made some inroads in GOP strongholds upstate.

But Rockefeller won and, at 50, he was a bright new star in the GOP horizon.

Nelson Rockefeller was born July 8, 1908, in Bar Harbor, Maine, son of the late John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Abby Aldrich Rockefeller. He is named for a maternal uncle, the late Republican Sen. Nelson Aldrich of Rhode Island.

Rockefeller attended a progressive school in Manhattan, and was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1930 with a Phi Beta Kappa key and a B.A. degree in economics. A few days later, he married Mary Todhunter Clark, a Philadelphia socialite.

In the next 10 years, Rockefeller worked in various family enterprises. The Rockefellers had five children, including twins Mary and Michael, born in 1938.

He developed a deep interest in Latin America, where the family's oil interests took him. He learned Spanish and uses the language when campaigning in Puerto Rican sections of New York City.

Rockefeller's recommendations for improving the lot of South Americans and developing closer ties between the United States and that continent came to the attention of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In 1940, Rockefeller became coordinator of Inter - American affairs, the first of a series of posts he held under three presidents, including special assistant for foreign affairs to President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Since 1958 Rockefeller's career has been marked by political problems, surprising personal developments and a family tragedy.

Rockefeller has acquired the reputation of a leader of the liberal wing of the Republican party because of his strong stands on civil rights, medical care for the aged and other social legislation, public housing and labor.

State spending has gone up 60 per cent under Rockefeller, to nearly $3 billion a year. Critics say he has avoided tax increases only by deferring the time when new revenues will have to be found.

Some critics contend his career as governor has been devoted largely to forging a record on which to run for president, rather than dealing forcefully with state problems.

Rockefeller was a leading prospect for the presidential nomination after the GOP lost in 1960. The governor had grasped for it that year, incurring the displeasure of many Republicans who thought he was trying to move too fast too soon.

But he was gaining support for 1964 when, in late 1961, it was announced that he and his wife were to be divorced.

Almost simultaneously, his youngest son, Michael, then 23, disappeared while exploring in New Guinea. No trace of him ever was found and he is presumed dead.

Despite the divorce and state problems, Rockefeller won re-election last year. Democrats had nominated a political novice who waged what most observers considered one of the worst campaigns in recent years. And a new Conservative party, formed by dissident Republicans, pulled 141,000 votes for its candidate.

While Rockefeller's victory margin dipped from its 1958 point, it remained above a half-nomination.

He tumbled almost out of the race on May 4, when he married Margaretta "Happy" Murphy, 36, mother of four young children, whose divorce had become final a month before the marriage.

Almost immediately Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, conservative GOP leader, surged ahead in polls. He has had a commanding lead ever since.

He has reacted to the Goldwater lead by saying:

"When the going gets tough, then it's time to fight harder, not run for cover."

Light Fare Does Not Offer Wide Choice on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television viewers seeking soothing light entertainment after dinner on Wednesday nights this season are not given much of a choice by the three major networks.

They can brace themselves for 90 minutes of "The Virginian," a classic Western on NBC. Or they can turn to ABC for family-style situation comedy, "Ozzie and Harriett" and then "The Patty Duke Show."

CBS' early evening schedule is invariably occupied with more serious or intellectual shows, "CBS Reports" or, as Wednesday night, "Chronicle."

One result is that the new "Patty Duke Show," handcrafted for teen-age attention, is one of the season's big successes. It really doesn't deserve its high Nielsen ratings, for it is both trite and tired in concept and execution.

Miss Duke is certainly one of the most talented young actresses around, worthy of finer material. In this series, she plays a dual role—the usual TV idea of a typical American teen-ager raucous and ill-mannered, and her prim, studious look-alike cousin who sports an Irish or Scottish accent.

The series is busily exploring every tired cliche of the gendre. Wednesday night it was the old bit about the big, dumb star basketball player who must pass his English exam in order to save the honor of old Brooklyn Heights High on the gym floor.

It was unbelievable and unfunny despite the canned laughter. One hopes Miss Duke makes enough money from the series so that she can return to the acting profession which she graces.

NBC, as anticipated, has officially lowered the boom on "Harry's Girls," which will conclude its short, feeble existence in December.

Number one candidate for its replacement is Jack Paar, who could extend his present hour variety show to 90 minutes, if he wants to.

NBC also will cancel "People Will Talk," a complicated audience participation show, next month — and replace it with a game show. The daytime half-hour has Dennis James as master of ceremonies.

An NBC camera was trained on the Wallenda high-wire act on Tuesday when it suffered a second fall. The film, showing the troupe attempting their dangerous seven-man stunt for the first time since its tragic accident in Detroit last year, was to have been part of a "Show of the Week" actuality report.

Work on the projected program, showing the rebuilding of the act, started last July. The big question now, of course, is whether the Wallendas will go ahead with comeback plans.

CBS is reported to be considering doing its annual "Wizard of Oz" telecast in color—which would be a nice holiday gift to color set owners.

Looking At Hollywood

BROADWAY HAS A SHOW ABOUT OUR PRESIDENTS

Hollywood—If Gregory Peck wants Broadway again, he can have it in Gilbert Miller's off-beat production of "The White House Story," which stars Helen Hayes and four other actors. We've glorified the leaders of every country; now we're getting around to our own. A. E. Hotchner dug thru the archives and fished out letters written by our Presidents and their wives, revealing human things about them not generally known. The setting will be the Green room of the White House with Helen and a younger actress playing the wives, and three actors portraying the Presidents. The main problem is to find a Hollywood star with enough stature and personal dignity to match the roles.

Olivia De Havilland's evasive explanation of why she left town the day after husband Pierre Galante arrived: She flew from Paris on a 21-day excursion rate which was up on Friday. Would have had to shell out extra dollars to delay. "That is how French I have become," said Livvy.

Bob Hope's doctor told him to take it easy for three weeks (eye trouble but not serious as before), so he's in Palm Springs. As for resting, I was three hours getting him on the phone. Busy line. I'm sure Dolores wasn't ordering proceries all that time. When I cautioned Bob to slow down he said: "I'm fine. Sometimes my ham outweighs my good sense, but look who's talking."

Hope was threatened with legal action over his last show when attorneys for Rodgers and Hammerstein saw a picture of him in that Yul Brynner getup before the show was aired. They warned CBS they would not permit Bob to do a satire on "The King and I." They were sent a script. The legal eagles wired back, Ha, ha."

Jim Backus' wife, Henny, should be in "Mad World." She has one of her own. Gave up flying after her luggage was lost on five consecutive flights; came home from England on the Queen Liz, which caught the wake of that big hurricane; took the Super Chief west riding over the wheels (the diesel conked out and they were pushed across country); got off in Chicago, checked into the Ambassador and the room began to rock. Workmen were blasting underneath the building. Finally Henny got home in one piece, took an elevator and got stuck between floors for 45 minutes.

Eva Marie Saint will represent her alma mater, Bowling Green State university in Ohio, on the TV program Alumni Fun.

I'm laughing now. Virginia O'Brien, Jack Oakie, and Patsy Kelly join up for a plot about E.S.P. Viriginia may do some records to try out her silly deadpan sound on teen-agers.

When I congratulated Eleanor Powell on her enagagement to Hotel Executive Manfredo Sepia. I asked how she met him. After she divorced Glenn Ford in '57, Eleanor went into a shell and stayed there except for her nightclub appearances. While appearing in Miami, Fla., some friends insisted she go to a party with them. She met Sepia, forgot all about it. After playing Puerto Rico, she got a charming note from him asking if he could meet her at the airport on her return to Florida. They dined and fell in love. Eleanor has a tour coming up and a possible trip to Russia before they can wed ... Albert Finney is wearing Tammy Grimes, in a full length white mink, on his arm in New York these late evenings.

Jack Benny sent me the book "Robinson Crusoe" with a note: "Hope you will reread it so you will better understand the nuances of our version on Nov. 19. Any similiarity between the characters contained herein and my television show is purely a figment of my writers—who have no imagination."

Maurice Chevalier's coming over to play Sandra Dee's wealthy grandfather in "Richest Girl in Town."

Patty Duke takes time out from her hit TV show next March to make a movie of "Time Out for Ginger."

And a new Conservative party, formed by dissident Republicans, pulled 141,000 votes for its candidate.

While Rockefeller's victory margin dipped from its 1958 point, it remained above a half-nomination.

He tumbled almost out of the race on May 4, when he married Margaretta "Happy" murphy, 36, mother of four young children, whose divorce had become final a month before the marriage.

Almost immediately Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, conservative GOP leader, surged ahead in polls. He has had a commanding lead ever since.

He has reacted to the Goldwater lead by saying:

"When the going gets tough, then it's time to fight harder, not run for cover."

Light Fare Does Not Offer Wide Choice on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television viewers seeking soothing light entertainment after dinner on Wednesday nights this season are not given much of a choice by the three major networks.

They can brace themselves for 90 minutes of "The Virginian," a classic Western on NBC. Or they can turn to ABC for family-style situation comedy, "Ozzie and Harriett" and then "The Patty Duke Show."

CBS' early evening schedule is invariably occupied with more serious or intellectual shows, "CBS Reports" or, as Wednesday night, "Chronicle."

One result is that the new "Patty Duke Show," handcrafted for teen-age attention, is one of the season's big successes. It really doesn't deserve its high Nielsen ratings, for it is both trite and tired in concept and execution.

Miss Duke is certainly one of the most talented young actresses around, worthy of finer material. In this series, she plays a dual role—the usual TV idea of a typical American teen-ager raucous and ill-mannered, and her prim, studious look-alike cousin who sports an Irish or Scottish accent.

The series is busily exploring every tired cliche of the gendre. Wednesday night it was the old bit about the big, dumb star basketball player who must pass his English exam in order to save the honor of old Brooklyn Heights High on the gym floor.

It was unbelievable and unfunny despite the canned laughter. One hopes Miss Duke makes enough money from the series so that she can return to the acting profession which she graces.

NBC, as anticipated, has officially lowered the boom on "Harry's Girls," which will conclude its short, feeble existence in December.

Number one candidate for its replacement is Jack Paar, who could extend his present hour variety show to 90 minutes, if he wants to.

NBC also will cancel "People Will Talk," a complicated audience participation show, next month — and replace it with a game show. The daytime half-hour has Dennis James as master of ceremonies.

An NBC camera was trained on the Wallenda high-wire act on Tuesday when it suffered a second fall. The film, showing the troupe attempting their dangerous seven-man stunt for the first time since its tragic accident in Detroit last year, was to have been part of a "Show of the Week" actuality report.

Work on the projected pro-program, showing the rebuilding of the act, started last July. The big question now, of course, is whether the Wallendas will go ahead with comeback plans.

CBS is reported to be considering doing its annual "Wizard of Oz" telecast in color—which would be a nice holiday gift to color set owners.

Representatives of the State Department of Health and El Paso County Health Department met recently with Teller County Commissioners Ray Primm and Harold Ellis to discuss possibilities of a Public Health Nursing Program in Teller County. The Commissioners were favorably impressed with the project.

Mrs. Eleanore McKnight nursing consultant of the Colorado Department of Public Health, and Miss Eleanor Maguire, head of the Department of Public Nursing in El Paso County met with the Teller County Home Demonstration Council October 24 and presented the functions of a Public Health Nursing program. Slides were used to show what a visiting nurse does. The public health nurse gives part time care to patients, and teaches the family how to care of the patient and how to provide proper nutrition, does bedside nursing under the direction of a doctor, helps to care for old people, helps with the mentally ill and helps the family work with the handicapped.

Under this program the nurse would be paid by the county. Seven twelveths of the funds are already available.

When the county has a home nursing program patients may be released from the hospital earlier than usual because the visiting nurse can give shots, change dressings, etc. Besides making it possible for patients to leave the hospital sooner, a visiting nurse can save many people from having to spend time in nursing homes. It is surprising how much money is saved with this type program.

In order to have a program of this type a board of ten persons interested in this work needs to be formed. County Dr. Denman would be head of the board.

Brucellosis Progress Seen in Prowers County

LAMAR (UPI)—James Reed, Prowers County extension agent, said Monday the State Department of Agriculture has designated Prowers County as an area in the process of brucellosis certification.

No female cattle or breeding bulls over four months of age may be moved into the county. Certain exceptions will be made after extensive testing. Cattle will be allowed to leave under the previous restrictions.

Certification is expected to take about six months during which time a selected percentage of the county's 18,938 head of adult cattle are checked. Following certification cattle can be shipped to other certified counties or states without the extensive and costly testing now required.

There are an estimated 40 counties in Colorado which have been certified. The cattle-carried disease can cause fever to humans.

Democrat Gets Narrow Margin In Kentucky

By SY RAMSEY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Heavily favored Democrat Edward T. Breathitt Jr. emerged today with a narrow victory as governor over Republican Louie B. Nunn, who had repeatedly denounced the Kennedys and a state integration order.

Breathitt, the choice of retiring Gov. Bert Combs, predicted his final margin would be at least 15,000 in a record turnout exceeding 860,000.

Nunn produced the strongest GOP gubernatorial effort in 20 years. Some Republicans held slight hope he might pick up enough votes from the 120 uncounted precincts to overcome Breathitt's majority.

With 2,863 of 2,982 precincts reporting, Breathitt had 438,273 votes and Nunn had 423,039. The remaining precincts, mostly Republican, were to be tallied today.

Nunn, 39, a former county judge from Glasgow, conceded a few hours after the polls closed when he was 30,000 votes behind.

Then after a dramatic late turn which brought him ever closer to Breathitt, Nunn issued another statement saying he had received reports of widespread voting irregularities and declaring the race was not over, after all.

Breathitt countered with a midnight statement that "There is no doubt I've been elected."

The GOP-dominated Louisville area, with one-fourth the state's votes, was regarded as Nunn's vital sector. The GOP hoped for a 20,000-vote cushion, but led by less than 5,000 with returns almost complete. It was the deciding factor.

Breathitt, 39, is a former legislator, and former state official Combs plucked him out of obscurity two years ago and groomed him against former Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler, seeking a third term last May. He stunned Chandler by some 60,000 votes and was expected to sail through the general election.

For the first time since the Civil War, a racial controversy crept into the governor's race.

Combs issued an executive order June 26 which called for integration of public accommodations in Kentucky. Now bogged down in court, it has not been enforced.

Nevertheless, Nnun hammered at the order as dictatorial and designed to get the votes of Negroes, who comprise about 7 per cent of Kentucky's population.

Breathitt defended Combs' economic and educational policies and accused Nunn of fostering racial disharmony.

Kentucky has gone Republican in national elections during the past decade and now has two GOP senators. It last chose a Republican governor during World War II.

Democrat Gets Narrow Margin In Kentucky

By SY RAMSEY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Heavily favored Democrat Edward T. Breathitt Jr. emerged today with a narrow victory as governor over Republican Louie B. Nunn, who had repeatedly denounced the Kennedys and a state integration order.

Breathitt, the choice of retiring Gov. Bert Combs, predicted his final margin would be at least 15,000 in a record turnout exceeding 860,000.

Nunn produced the strongest GOP gubernatorial effort in 20 years. Some Republicans held slight hope he might pick up enough votes from the 120 uncounted precincts to overcome Breathitt's majority.

With 2,863 of 2,982 precincts reporting, Breathitt had 438,272 votes and Nunn had 423,039. The remaining precincts, mostly Republican, were to be tallied today.

Nunn, 39, a former county judge from Glasgow, conceded a few hours after the polls closed when he was 30,000 votes behind.

Then after a dramatic late turn which brought him ever closer to Breathitt, Nunn issued another statement saying he had received reports of widespread voting irregularities and declaring the race was not over, after all.

Breathitt countered with a midnight statement that "There is no doubt I've been elected."

The GOP-dominated Louisville area, with one-fourth the state's votes, was regarded as Nunn's vital sector. The GOP hoped for a 20,000-vote cushion, but led by less than 5,000 with returns almost complete. It was the deciding factor.

Breathitt, 39, is a former legislator, and former state official. Combs plucked him out of obscurity two years ago and groomed him against former Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler, seeking a third term last May. He stunned Chandler by some 60,000 votes and was expected to sail through the general election.

For the first time since the Civil War, a racial controversy crept into the governor's race. Combs issued an executive order June 26 which called for integration of public accommodations in Kentucky. Now bogged down in court, it has not been enforced.

Nevertheless, Nunn hammered at the order as dictatorial and designed to get the votes of Negroes, who comprise about 7 per cent of Kentucky's population.

Breathitt defended Combs' economic and educational policies and accused Nunn of fostering racial disharmony.

Kentucky has gone Republican in national elections during the past decade and now has two GOP senators. It last chose a Republican governor during World War II.

Gasoline Tax Increase Is Seen in State

STERLING (AP) — An increase in Colorado's gasoline tax is contemplated as a possible means of meeting interstate highway construction costs, Gov. John Love said Tuesday.

He said he may ask the legislature in 1965 to increase the gasoline tax by one-half cent a gallon.

The increase would raise $3 4 million annually. Without it, the state would be about $2.5 million a year shy of paying its share of federal-state highway requirements.

The state pays 10 per cent of the cost of Colorado routes in the interstate system.

The system is scheduled for completion in Colorado by late 1972. Lawrence Bower, deputy chief state highway engineer, said that if Colorado does not pay its share of the cost the 900 miles of interstate highways being built in Colorado will not be completed in the scheduled year.

The increase would put the state gasoline tax at 6½ cents and the federal tax at 4 cents a gallon.

Love disclosed the possible tax increase during a discussion at his seventh Governor's Forum here. He had not previously made a postive statement on any specific tax increase.

CAPITOL STUFF

Washington,—Three years ago in the first week of November John F. Kennedy was elected President and began almost immediately an image-projecting job which still goes on.

This Kennedy buildup, which whether or not it was so devised

in the first place, has resulted in a national watch on the way he performs rather than on the depth of his performance.

From the start there were friendly suggestions that his careful effort to project a certain image and use all means of communication to do it was a most risky business. The danger of overexposure was emphasized. This was supposed to come at some point in his White House career, altho no one was sure just when.

That particular moment may not have arrived, altho it might be a valid explanation for what happened in Philadelphia last week.

There was a dismal lack of street crowds when Kennedy motorcaded through the city. The reception was frosty, to say the least.

If the moment of overexposure has arrived, it means that curiosity has been satiated, that the idol has been shown too often on the TV screen and in printed or photographed "documentaries" about his life and family.

Philadelphia is not a clincher, but it may be a tipoff. Regardless, the question of whether the nation has become a little weary of the Kennedy image and of the concomitant activities of all the Kennedys, big and small, is definitely of prime political significance.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, who invariably is refreshingly frank on certain political subjects, makes no bones about what he thinks of the importance of the Kennedy image question.

HAS NATION GROWN TIRED OF KENNEDYS?

In an interview with this reporter Goldwater said he considered that the key question in the 1964 Presidential election would be "whether the country is tired of the Kennedys."

"If so," he said, "any good Republican can win."

Now, neither the President nor those lieutenants who are assiduously cooperating in projecting his image have shown signs yet that they are distrubed about this problem.

But certainly it must be faced up to as long as Kennedy remains delicately sensitive to public reaction to whatever he does and tries to manipulate his image accordingly.

This image business appears sometimes to be close to an obsession. It is the reason, for example, why pains were taken last month to see to it that no pictures were taken of the President and Marshal Tito shaking hands.

It figured in Saturday's cancellation of Kennedy's flight to Chicago for the Army-Air Force football game. The Viet Nam situation was the same revolutionary mess Saturday morning as it was Friday night when the President's trip was on as scheduled. But it was decided that there would be bad public reaction if the trip were made after the apparent murders of Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother, although the deaths themselves did not pose a new problem in the crisis.

PRESIDENT'S IMAGE FULL OF VIM AND VIGOR

The fact that Kennedy is most conscious of his image before the public has never been open to question. He is probably more so than any President in our time.

The kind of image projected is that of an activist president, jamful of vim and vigor, smart and alert mentally. It definitely does not have the warmth of Ike's "father image" nor of Truman's "bull in the china shop" image—neither of which, incidentally, Eisenhower or Truman ever tried to develop. Both came naturally.

This alone may be a solid reason why the question is being raised by politicians like Goldwater as to the lasting quality of the Kennedy image and whether in 1964 the voters may turn out to be tired of it all and want a new face in the White House.

Back in April, 1961, James MacGregor Burns warned in a magazine article that the Kennedy buildup "will not last." Burns was the author of a friendly but penetraing 1960 biography of Kennedy, and what he said in 1961 in analyzing the image buildup is equally appropriate today.

"The public can be cruel," said Burns, "and so can the press. Behind the people's adulation for the President is partiality for seeing the pendulum swing—and they will give it a shove. The swing will be all the stronger because of the intensity of the buildup."

PREDICTS SUPPORTERS WILL TURN ON FK

A lot of those who were for Kennedy then, Burns predicted, would later be among "the first to turn on him" when his momentum slackened or "when the people grow bored."

Whether the people are already getting "bored" or "tired" d" from the Kennedy image operation is a matter of partisan point of view. But what Julius A. Leetham, GOP county chairman in Los Angeles, told a pulse feeler should be taken notice of by Democratic National Committee Chairman John Bailey.

Said Leetham: "It seems as if Kennedy's been in office longer than he has. He's so active, and there's so much about the family in the papers all the time."

Should the 1964 voters have the same reaction that four years of Kennedy seem like eight, he certainly would run on the real risk of being our first one-term President since Herbert Hoover.

NEW YORK (AP) — A total of almost 100,000 hotel and motel rooms are available in the New York metropolitan area, according to the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, giving the city more transient facilities than any other city on earth and making way for the influx of visitors for the Worlds Fair in 1964.

The Manhattan area has added 9,019 rooms in the past four years and Queens, Brooklyn and the Bronx another 3,425.

Russians Show Anti-Missile Parade Rocket

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union's top secret "anti-missile missile" may be shown Thursday during Moscow's massive parade marking the 46th anniversary of the Russian revolution.

Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev once boasted it could "hit a fly in outer space."

A giant missile, covered by canvas on a truck bed, has been seen at midnight dress rehearsals for the annual military view in Red Square. It appears to be 50 to 55 feet long — much longer than the first and second generation surface-to-air missiles displayed in previous parades.

The Communists claim one of the earlier types shot down Francis Gary Power's U2 over the Soviet Union in 1960.

The canvas-covered model apparently has extra large fins, presumably for intricate maneuvering at high speeds and altitudes.

Almost nightly, tanks, rocket launchers and military hardware of all description have rumbled through the streets in preparation for the show before Khrushchev and other members of the Communist hierarchy.

More than a year ago Khrushchev claimed Russia possessed a missile which could "shot down an aircraft at any altitude."

During an interview with some visiting American editors a few days later he also claimed that no anti-rocket weapons could stop Russia's global rocket. He said he had planned to show movies of the anti-rocket rocket in action to delegates at a Communist-backed "peace conference."

"But when I talked with some participants in the congress they advised me against doing that because that might have been misunderstod," he said. "But had people been shown this machine it is. You can say our rockets could hit a fly in outer space."

Gasoline Tax Increase Is Seen in State

STERLING (AP) — An increase in Colorado's gasoline tax is contemplated as a possible means of meeting interstate highway construction costs, Gov. John Love said Tuesday.

He said he may ask the legislature in 1965 to increase the gasoline tax by one-half cent a gallon.

The increase would raise $3 4 million annually. Without it, the state would be about $2.5 million a year shy of paying its share of federal-state highway requirements.

The state pays 10 per cent of the cost of Colorado routes in the interstate system.

The system is scheduled for completion in Colorado by late 1972. Lawrence Bower, deputy chief state highway engineer, said that if Colorado does not pay its share of the cost the 900 miles of interstate highways being built in Colorado will not be completed in the scheduled year.

The increase would put the state gasoline tax at 6½ cents and the federal tax at 4 cents a gallon.

Love disclosed the possible tax increase during a discussion at his seventh Governor's Forum here. He had not previously made a postive statement on any specific tax increase.

CAPITOL STUFF

Washington,—Three years ago in the first week of November John F. Kennedy was elected President and began almost immediately an image-projecting job which still goes on.

This Kennedy buildup, which whether or not it was so devised

in the first place, has resulted in a national watch on the way he performs rather than on the depth of his performance.

From the start there were friendly suggestions that his careful effort to project a certain image and use all means of communication to do it was a most risky business. The danger of overexposure was emphasized. This was supposed to come at some point in his White House career, altho no one was sure just when.

That particular moment may not have arrived, altho it might be a valid explanation for what happened in Philadelphia last week.

There was a dismal lack of street crowds when Kennedy motorcaded through the city. The reception was frosty, to say the least.

If the moment of overexposure has arrived, it means that curiosity has been satiated, that the idol has been shown too often on the TV screen and in printed or photographed "documentaries" about his life and family.

Philadelphia is not a clincher, but it may be a tipoff. Regardless, the question of whether the nation has become a little weary of the Kennedy image and of the concomitant activities of all the Kennedys, big and small, is definitely of prime political significance.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, who invariably is refreshingly frank on certain political subjects, makes no bones about what he thinks of the importance of the Kennedy image question.

HAS NATION GROWN TIRED OF KENNEDYS?

In an interview with this reporter Goldwater said he considered that the key question in the 1964 Presidential election would be "whether the country is tired of the Kennedys."

"If so," he said, "any good Republican can win."

Now, neither the President nor those lieutenants who are assiduously cooperating in projecting his image have shown signs yet that they are distrubed about this problem.

But certainly it must be faced up to as long as Kennedy remains delicately sensitive to public reaction to whatever he does and tries to manipulate his image accordingly.

This image business appears sometimes to be close to an obsession. It is the reason, for example, why pains were taken last month to see to it that no pictures were taken of the President and Marshal Tito shaking hands.

It figured in Saturday's cancellation of Kennedy's flight to Chicago for the Army-Air Force football game. The Viet Nam situation was the same revolutionary mess Saturday morning as it was Friday night when the President's trip was on as scheduled. But it was decided that there would be bad public reaction if the trip were made after the apparent murders of Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother, although the deaths themselves did not pose a new problem in the crisis.

PRESIDENT'S IMAGE FULL OF VIM AND VIGOR

The fact that Kennedy is most conscious of his image before the public has never been open to question. He is probably more so than any President in our time.

The kind of image projected is that of an activist president, jamful of vim and vigor, smart and alert mentally. It definitely does not have the warmth of Ike's "father image" nor of Truman's "bull in the china shop" image—neither of which, incidentally, Eisenhower or Truman ever tried to develop. Both came naturally.

This alone may be a solid reason why the question is being raised by politicians like Goldwater as to the lasting quality of the Kennedy image and whether in 1964 the voters may turn out to be tired of it all and want a new face in the White House.

Back in April, 1961, James MacGregor Burns warned in a magazine article that the Kennedy buildup "will not last." Burns was the author of a friendly but penetraing 1960 biography of Kennedy, and what he said in 1961 in analyzing the image buildup is equally appropriate today.

"The public can be cruel," said Burns, "and so can the press. Behind the people's adulation for the President is partiality for seeing the pendulum swing—and they will give it a shove. The swing will be all the stronger because of the intensity of the buildup."

PREDICTS SUPPORTERS WILL TURN ON FK

A lot of those who were for Kennedy then, Burns predicted, would later be among "the first to turn on him" when his momentum slackened or "when the people grow bored."

Whether the people are already getting "bored" or "tired" d" from the Kennedy image operation is a matter of partisan point of view. But what Julius A. Leetham, GOP county chairman in Los Angeles, told a pulse feeler should be taken notice of by Democratic National Committee Chairman John Bailey.

Said Leetham: "It seems as if Kennedy's been in office longer than he has. He's so active, and there's so much about the family in the papers all the time."

Should the 1964 voters have the same reaction that four years of Kennedy seem like eight, he certainly would run on the real risk of being our first one-term President since Herbert Hoover.

READY FOR '64 FAIR

NEW YORK (AP) — A total of almost 100,000 hotel and motel rooms are available in the New York metropolitan area, according to the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, giving the city more transient facilities than any other city on earth and making way for the influx of visitors for the Worlds Fair in 1964.

The Manhattan area has added 9,019 rooms in the past four years and Queens, Brooklyn and the Bronx another 3,425.

Russians Show Anti-Missile Parade Rocket

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union's top secret "anti-missile missile" may be shown Thursday during Moscow's massive parade marking the 46th anniversary of the Russian revolution.

Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev once boasted it could "hit a fly in outer space."

A giant missile, covered by canvas on a truck bed, has been seen at midnight dress rehearsals for the annual military view in Red Square. It appears to be 50 to 55 feet long — much longer than the first and second generation surface-to-air missiles displayed in previous parades.

The Communists claim one of the earlier types shot down Francis Gary Power's U2 over the Soviet Union in 1960.

The canvas-covered model apparently has extra large fins, presumably for intricate maneuvering at high speeds and altitudes.

Almost nightly, tanks, rocket launchers and military hardware of all description have rumbled through the streets in preparation for the show before Khrushchev and other members of the Communist hierarchy.

More than a year ago Khrushchev claimed Russia possessed a missile which could "shot down an aircraft at any altitude."

During an interview with some visiting American editors a few days later he also claimed that no anti-rocket weapons could stop Russia's global rocket. He said he had planned to show movies of the anti-rocket rocket in action to delegates at a Communist-backed "peace conference."

"But when I talked with some participants in the congress they advised me against doing that because that might have been misunderstod," he said. "But had people been shown this machine it is. You can say our rockets could hit a fly in outer space."

'Christian Communists' Run Own Farm

WASHINGTON, Ontario (AP) —Karl Marx and Christianity find a common ground on a 1,200-acre farm near this western Ontario village.

A sect known as the Brethren of Early Christianity practices communal living to a degree that forbids any of the 95 persons living on the farm from possessing either money or property.

Brother Alexander Bago, one of three elected trustees who administer the community, quotes Marx in defining its aims: "From each according to his ability; to each according to his need."

But he emphasizes that the farm is operated in conformity with the word of God and in the style of early Christianity.

"All things, all things in common, so doth the Bible read; all things, all things in common, the spirit gently pleads," the brethren sing, convinced they are living by the Book of Acts.

The sect, derived from the Hutterites, was founded in 1931 on a farm near Kitchener, 10 miles northeast of here, by Brother Julius Kubasek. There were only three adults and three children in the first community.

During the depression the community transferred its holdings to Bremen, Sask., and later to Yarrow, B.C., where membership grew to 21. In 1940 a farm was bought near here.

The community, with its central treasury providing for the needs of all its members, is almost self-supporting. Women pack and freeze produce for the table. Homemade bread and farm-produced meat are served.

There is a modern, two-room school building providing elementary educaton to the eighth grade level. Those who continue on may take Department of Education correspondence courses.

The brethren use all the latest equipment—there is even an automatic bread-slicer in the kitchen—and teams of men operate threshing machines on an hourly basis for neighboring farmers.

The doors are open for any who want to leave and there is a welcome—along with a year-long preparatory period — for those who want to join the brethren.

Power Vacuum Reported New Viet Nam Danger

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON South Viet Nam (AP)—The passing of the Diem government in South Viet Nam has created a power vacuum that could lead to more instability and upheaval.

The transition from family dictatorship to military junta has been immediate, smooth and relatively bloodless. Army units were back fighting the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas within hours after the Saigon government was overturned. Civil administration has been almost undisturbed; with few exceptions, the same faces were in the same government offices Monday morning.

The big change is that the nation is now ruled by a committee instead of a family.

But there is no guarantee this committee will work harmoniously.

Although civilians are in the provisional government, the generals hold the real power.

One general on the junta said Wednesday he thought it might be 6 to 12 months before a civilian government with full power could be elected.

This leaves a lot of time for political juggling or even a counter coup.

"There have been many recent historical examples of what oftens happens in cases like this. For example, there was Nasser in Egypt," a foreign diplomat said.

"I'm going to keep my eye on the young colonels around here."

The provisional government is not made up of strong political personalities. Nguyen Ngoc Tho, the premier, has been a career bureaucrat since 1930. Although he was President Ngo Dinh Diem's vice president, he never has exercised any real authority.

Other civilians in the caretaker cabinet are similarly qualified. While competent civil servants, they are strongly lacking in leadership qualities.

All national policies for the time being will be made by the military revolutionary committee of generals headed by Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh.

Minh, 47, while highly respected, is difficult to identify as a national leader. In his own words he is "a soldier, not a politician."

Other generals in the junta perhaps have more political potential, but none so far has displayed the ability to catch the popular imagination.

The junta unquestionably will fight hard to crush the Communist guerrillas they have been fighting for the past four years. And the generals will continue to be good friends of the United States.

But their problems are massive. They still must face huge deficit spending and a precarious economy, even with massive U.S. aid.

The Viet Cong has by no means tossed in the towel.

The junta will have to do some unpopular things, the sting of which will be noticeable after the honeymoon of freedom from the Ngo family is over.

Beauty Contest Will Remain Closely Guarded

LONDON (AP)—When the 40 contestants in the Miss World contest parade before the judges, the cameras and the public tonight, all will be smiling on cue.

When the winner of the crown and the 2,500-pound ($7,000) is named, the overwhelming feeling among the 39 losers probably will be relief rather than disappointment.

The girls have been cut off from all outside contacts in London. Organizers of the Miss World and other beauty contests do this to preserve an aura of respectability. Actually, there's little to worry about.

"The wolves — and ther really aren't many — won't get anywhere with these girls," said the chaperone. "Not because the girls aren't interested in men. It's because they're just too busy.

Some of the girls are competing in a beauty contest for the first time, and a few find the continued posing with a toothpaste smile something of a chore.

Michele Metrinko, Miss U.S.A. from New York City, is not disturbed by the contest routine.

"You feel the way you want to feel when you're walking past the audience and the judges. It's all in what you think about yourself," she said.

"But," she added, "a little smile at the end of the ramp always helps."

The average length of stay in the hospital for each patient last year was 7.6 days, medical economists report.

Instant Beer Is Facing Strong U.S. Opposition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Perhaps you have been dreaming of a brave new world where you can go to the kitchen sink, turn on a water spigot, open a box of capsules and mix yourself a glass of "instant beer."

If so, you are in for a rude awakening.

It is my sad duty to report that this type of home brewing, while theoretically possible, is not likely to come about any time soon.

For one thing, the Internal Revenue Service is against it on grounds that it would enormously complicate the collection of beer taxes.

For another, there are fears that turning the United States into a nation of do-it-yourself brewmatsers would create further turmoil in the beer industry, which has enough troubles already.

It appears, therefore, that in the foreseeable future beer drinkers will have to be content to buy the stuff in bottles and cans.

The pros and cons of instant beer came up for discussion this week at a hearing by the House Ways & Means Committee on the taxation of beer concentrates.

Beginning next month, the revenue service will, for the first time, permit beer companies to ship beer in concentrated form from one place to another.

Under the new regulations, a brewery can whip up a batch of beer, remove a portion of the water by a freezing process, and send what is left to a bottling plant.

At that point the water would be put back again and the reconstituted beer would then be bottled and sold.

Like most innovations, the concept of instant beer has become hotly controversial. Even the use of the term "instant" is an issue in the dispute.

At the committee hearing, spokesmen for the Union Carbide Corp., which developed the quick freeze process, and the Miller Brewing Co., which intends to use it, pictured instant beer as the greatest thing since sarsaparilla.

They contend that reduced transportation costs for concentrates would make it possible for American breweries to compete in overseas markets for the first time.

The committee was assured that reconstituted beer would be as tasty as ever, if not more so, and that the flavor would last even longer.

On the other hand, spokesmen for the Pabst Brewing Co., and for an association of small breweries insisted that instant beer would create havoc in the industry and promote monopolies.

The way it looks now, this argument could go on for years. So I think I'll go out for a short beer.

Child Health Day has been observed in the United States each year since 1928, when President Herbert Hoover signed the first proclamation.

'Christian Communists' Run Own Farm

WASHINGTON, Ontario (AP)—Karl Marx and Christianity find a common ground on a 1,200-acre farm near this western Ontario village.

A sect known as the Brethren of Early Christianity practices communal living to a degree that forbids any of the 95 persons living on the farm from possessing either money or property.

Brother Alexander Bago, one of three elected trustees who administer the community, quotes Marx in defining its aims: "From each according to his ability; to each according to his need."

But he emphasizes that the farm is operated in conformity with the word of God and in the style of early Christianity.

"All things, all things in common, so doth the Bible read; all things, all things in common, the spirit gently pleads," the brethren sing, convinced they are living by the Book of Acts.

The sect, derived from the Hutterites, was founded in 1931 on a farm near Kitchener, 10 miles northeast of here, by Brother Julius Kubasek. There were only three adults and three children in the first community.

During the depression the community transferred its holdings to Bremen, Sask., and later to Yarrow, B.C., where membership grew to 21. In 1940 a farm was bought near here.

The community, with its central treasury providing for the needs of all its members, is almost self-supporting. Women pack and freeze produce for the table. Homemade bread and farm-produced meat are served.

There is a modern, two-room school building providing elementary educaton to the eighth grade level. Those who continue on may take Department of Education correspondence courses.

The brethren use all the latest equipment—there is even an automatic bread-slicer in the kitchen—and teams of men operate threshing machines on an hourly basis for neighboring farmers.

The doors are open for any who want to leave and there is a welcome—along with a year-long preparatory period — for those who want to join the brethren.

Power Vacuum Reported New Viet Nam Danger

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON South Viet Nam (AP)—The passing of the Diem government in South Viet Nam has created a power vacuum that could lead to more instability and upheaval.

The transition from family dictatorship to military junta has been immediate, smooth and relatively bloodless. Army units were back fighting the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas within hours after the Saigon government was overturned. Civil administration has been almost undisturbed; with few exceptions, the same faces were in the same government offices Monday morning.

The big change is that the nation is now ruled by a committee instead of a family.

But there is no guarantee this committee will work harmoniously.

Although civilians are in the provisional government, the generals hold the real power.

One general on the junta said Wednesday he thought it might be 6 to 12 months before a civilian government with full power could be elected.

This leaves a lot of time for political juggling or even a counter coup.

"There have been many recent historical examples of what oftens happens in cases like this. For example, there was Nasser in Egypt," a foreign diplomat said.

"I'm going to keep my eye on the young colonels around here."

The provisional government is not made up of strong political personalities. Nguyen Ngoc Tho, the premier, has been a career bureaucrat since 1930. Although he was President Ngo Dinh Diem's vice president, he never has exercised any real authority.

Other civilians in the caretaker cabinet are similarly qualified. While competent civil servants, they are strongly lacking in leadership qualities.

All national policies for the time being will be made by the military revolutionary committee of generals headed by Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh.

Minh, 47, while highly respected, is difficult to identify as a national leader. In his own words he is "a soldier, not a politician."

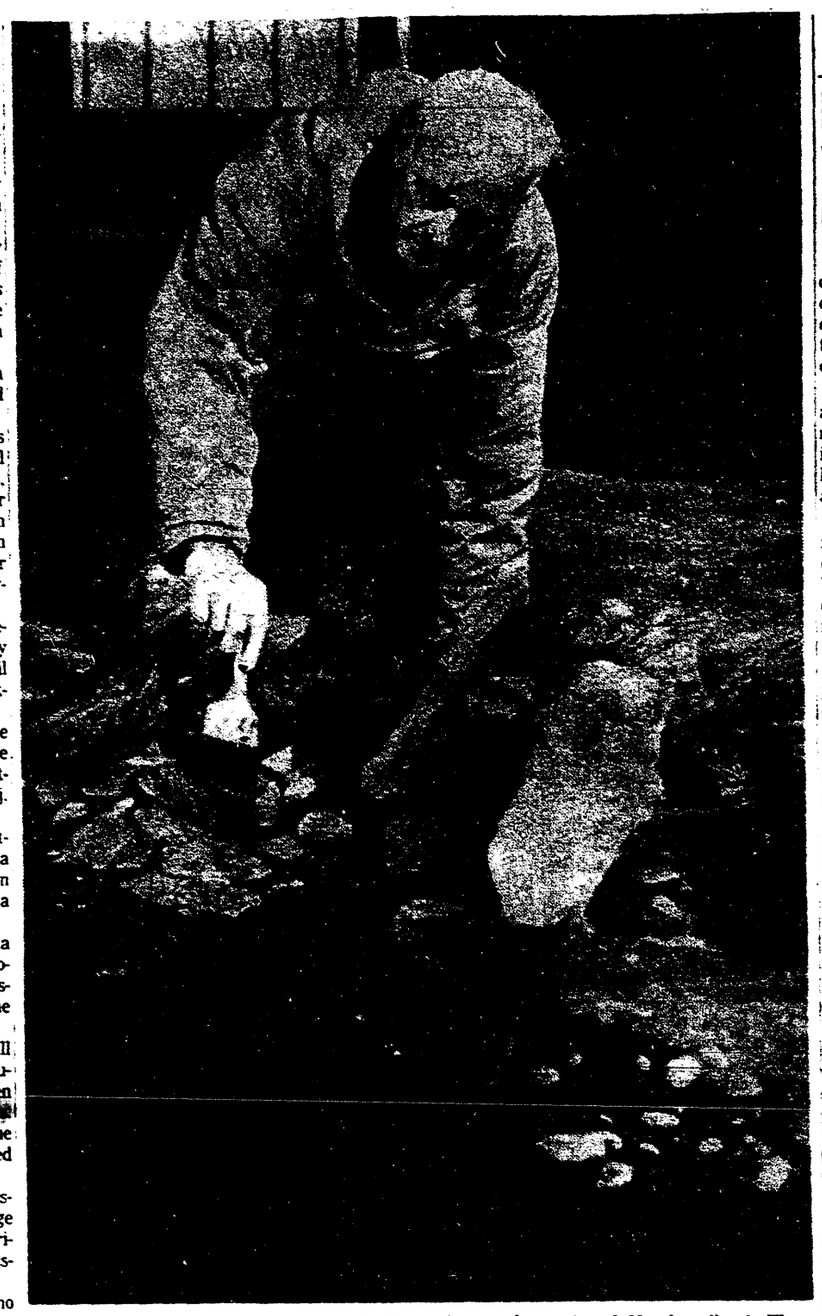
Other generals in the junta perhaps have more political potential, but none so far has displayed the ability to catch the popular imagination.

The junta unquestionably will fight hard to crush the Communist guerrillas they have been fighting for the past four years. And the generals will continue to be good friends of the United States.

But their problems are massive. They still must face huge deficit spending and a precarious economy, even with massive U.S. aid.

The Viet Cong has by no means tossed in the towel.

The junta will have to do some unpopular things, the sting of which will be noticeable after the honeymoon of freedom from the Ngo family is over



EXPLORER AT NORSE SETTLEMENT — Dr. Helge Ingstad, veteran Norwegian explorer, brushes off the remains of a fireplace in a large house in what may be a Norse settlement, dating from A.D. 1000, at L'Anse aux Meadows on the northern tip of Newfoundland. The house had five rooms and a great hall in Viking style. Dr. Ingstad believes it is possible Leif Ericson founded the settlement, which consists of nine houses. (AP Wirephoto)

Beauty Contest Will Remain Closely Guarded

LONDON (AP)—When the 40 contestants in the Miss World contest parade before the judges, the cameras and the public tonight, all will be smiling on cue.

When the winner of the crown and the 2,500-pound ($7,000) is named, the overwhelming feeling among the 39 losers probably will be relief rather than disappointment.

The girls have been cut off from all outside contacts in London. Organizers of the Miss World and other beauty contests do this to preserve an aura of respectability. Actually, there's little to worry about.

"The wolves — and ther really aren't many — won't get anywhere with these girls," said the chaperone. "Not because the girls aren't interested in men. It's because they're just too busy.

Some of the girls are competing in a beauty contest for the first time, and a few find the continued posing with a toothpaste smile something of a chore.

Michele Metrinko, Miss U.S.A. from New York City, is not disturbed by the contest routine.

"You feel the way you want to feel when you're walking past the audience and the judges. It's all in what you think about yourself," she said.

"But," she added, "a little smile at the end of the ramp always helps."

The average length of stay in the hospital for each patient last year was 7.6 days, medical economists report.

Instant Beer Is Facing Strong U.S. Opposition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Perhaps you have been dreaming of a brave new world where you can go to the kitchen sink, turn on a water spigot, open a box of capsules and mix yourself a glass of "instant beer."

If so, you are in for a rude awakening.

It is my sad duty to report that this type of home brewing, while theoretically possible, is not likely to come about any time soon.

For one thing, the Internal Revenue Service is against it on grounds that it would enormously complicate the collection of beer taxes.

For another, there are fears that turning the United States into a nation of do-it-yourself brewmatsers would create further turmoil in the beer industry, which has enough troubles already.

It appears, therefore, that in the foreseeable future beer drinkers will have to be content to buy the stuff in bottles and cans.

The pros and cons of instant beer came up for discussion this week at a hearing by the House Ways & Means Committee on the taxation of beer concentrates.

Beginning next month, the revenue service will, for the first time, permit beer companies to ship beer in concentrated form from one place to another.

Under the new regulations, a brewery can whip up a batch of beer, remove a portion of the water by a freezing process, and send what is left to a bottling plant.

At that point the water would be put back again and the reconstituted beer would then be bottled and sold.

Like most innovations, the concept of instant beer has become hotly controversial. Even the use of the term "instant" is an issue in the dispute.

At the committee hearing, spokesmen for the Union Carbide Corp., which developed the quick freeze process, and the Miller Brewing Co., which intends to use it, pictured instant beer as the greatest thing since sarsaparilla.

They contend that reduced transportation costs for concentrates would make it possible for American breweries to compete in overseas markets for the first time.

The committee was assured that reconstituted beer would be as tasty as ever, if not more so, and that the flavor would last even longer.

On the other hand, spokesmen for the Pabst Brewing Co., and for an association of small breweries insisted that instant beer would create havoc in the industry and promote monopolies.

The way it looks now, this argument could go on for years. So I think I'll go out for a short beer.

Child Health Day has been observed in the United States each year since 1928, when President Herbert Hoover signed the first proclamation.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HEOLISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I am about to be married and I want to know what type of pots and pans and cookware I should buy? Some are beautiful, but are rather expensive. I would love to have them all matching. —Engaged

Dear Engaged:

Congratulations!

When I was first married, I bought one of those complete sets of expensive cookware, too. I wanted everything in my kitchen to match, as I knew I would have lots of company and friends coming in and I wanted everything perfect.

As the years rolled by, it dawned on me what a foolish mistake I had made.

When I visited older people's homes I found out that they used cast iron skillets for frying chicken, aluminum pots for some items, stainless steel for others and glass type casserole dishes for other things. And their cooking always tasted better than mine!

I suggest that new brides not buy one complete set of any particular type of cookware.

Why not buy a basic set of small pots and pans, perhaps three or four at the most. The reason I state "small," is because this is what you're going to use the first few years; kiddies haven't come yet and there is no need for a new bride to buy the huge pots and pans . . . "yet"!)

I highly recommend two or three cast iron skillets. One large, one medium and one small. You will find you will use these most of all.

I do not think there is anything like glass casserole dishes. These may be freezer-to-oven type or the dime store variety. The latter are inexpensive, but worth their weight in gold.

I am a stainless steel lover myself. This is especially good for cooking vegetables. If you burn them they are easy to scour. They are clean and neat looking. I have never had one dent, warp, or turn dark when certain foods are boiled in them. So easy to care for . . .

Another thing I think you should spend good money on is a set of "good" mixing bowls. Again, one does not have to buy the huge papa bear size. Mama bear and baby bear size are perfect for small families.

Some wives boil everything, others fry, others bake . . . not knowing you or your new husband's preference, I could not tell you exactly what to buy.

It is a good suggestion to look around in your mother's kitchen and see what she has.

And if you can possibly beat her out of one of those cast iron, black, "broken-in" skillets . . . for goodness sake do so. You will find that's the best thing in your kitchen cabinet. —Heloise

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

I've heard of being penny wise and pound foolish. That's me!

But did you know if we weren't penny wise, we could "never" be pound foolish? —Reader

Dear Heloise:

We live in a rural area where boys wear blue jeans to school.

When the knees and seat get white looking . . . I just spray the jeans with dark blue upholstery coloring! They look like new and the coloring does not wash out. —Dorothy Wege

Dear Heloise:

For those who want to find a way to utilize leftover tablecloths and old napkins . .

One can always use an odd napkin wrapped around hot breads which are served in a basket.

Some of the good materials left in odd and unused tablecloths can be used to make shorts and peddle-pushers, etc. especially if you can pull threads and make an interesting fringe trim for a little girl!

They can also be made into blouse tops for small tots, or aprons, pinafores . . . and if you have enough napkins a cute little gathered skirt! These can be trimmed.

These odd napkins may also be used to make darling cafe-type curtains for any room if you use a little imagination in the trim. Add some pretty rick-rack for a kitchen window for instance . . . and these are wonderful ideas to utilize all those too large or too small tablecloths which are in every linen closet and no one ever uses.—Mrs. P. Kotsifakis

Dear Heloise:

Whenever I buy a washable item I detach the little tag bearing washing instructions from the garment and attach it to the clothes hanger on which the garment is hung. After wearing the garment I make sure I return it to the same hanger.

When the garment needs to be laundered, the "how-to-do-it" instructions are right there. This is far less trouble than trying to determine "later" which tag belongs to which garment.

This may also be applied to garments which are to be dry cleaned. —Macie Wolford

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

No Longer Under His Hat!

DEAR ABBY: I am in hot water with a very good friend of mine. I have known for years that he has worn a toupee, which is the only toupee I've ever seen that looks like the person's own hair. I told a group of men at my club that he wore a toupee. (Some were surprised, and many were not.) Later, when I saw my friend, he let me know in no uncertain terms that he did not appreciate my telling people that he wore a toupee. I did not mean to be unkind. I simply stated a fact. I didn't think he'd mind. Was I wrong? —CHECKING

DEAR CHECKING: Yes. You should have checked with him first. If he didn't "mind"—why do you think he would wear a toupee?

DEAR ABBY: So often when I am eating my lunch at a counter, two or three people will come in and ask if I would move down a seat or two so they can all sit together. I don't always feel like moving because it involves moving my purse and perhaps some packages. Also, I am usually absorbed in reading something, and I don't like to be interrupted. I used to move without a moment's hesitation, but the more I thought about it, the more I realized that it was just plain rude of people to ask me to move, and I quit doing it. Now when I refuse the request, everyone in the place (especially the waitresses) glare at me as though I were the rude one. Why do strangers feel it is owed them to be accommodated in this way? Or am I wrong? —NOT MOVING

DEAR NOT: Moving over a seat or two in order to accomodate people who wish to sit together is, in my opinion, so slight an inconvenience that it is rude to refuse.

Dear Abby:

Three weeks ago my husband died of cancer. I can't find the words to tell you how much I loved him. When it became obvious to him that he was dying, he asked me to promise him that I would not grieve and that I yould not let others who loved him grieve over his death. I am 36. He was 39. It was his last wish that there be no public type funeral. He requested that our minister say a little prayer with only those present who had to do the actual labor in burying him. He did not want me, our children, or even his parnts to "see" him buried. I promised him and he died in my arms. I discussed it with our minister and everything was carried out according to my husband's family and even friends and neighbors are saying hateful things about me. Abby, I thought I was doing the right thing. Did I? —KEPT MY PROMISE

DEAR KEPT PROMISE: Yes. Have no regrets.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Willie: Some bachelors change, but it's not a natural process. It usually takes a good woman to change them.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HEOLISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I am about to be married and I want to know what type of pots and pans and cookware I should buy? Some are beautiful, but are rather expensive. I would love to have them all matching. —Engaged

Dear Engaged:

Congratulations!

When I was first married, I bought one of those complete sets of expensive cookware, too. I wanted everything in my kitchen to match, as I knew I would have lots of company and friends coming in and I wanted everything perfect.

As the years rolled by, it dawned on me what a foolish mistake I had made.

When I visited older people's homes I found out that they used cast iron skillets for frying chicken, aluminum pots for some items, stainless steel for others and glass type casserole dishes for other things. And their cooking always tasted better than mine!

I suggest that new brides not buy one complete set of any particular type of cookware.

Why not buy a basic set of small pots and pans, perhaps three or four at the most. The reason I state "small," is because this is what you're going to use the first few years; kiddies haven't come yet and there is no need for a new bride to buy the huge pots and pans . . . "yet"!)

I highly recommend two or three cast iron skillets. One large, one medium and one small. You will find you will use these most of all.

I do not think there is anything like glass casserole dishes. These may be freezer-to-oven type or the dime store variety. The latter are inexpensive, but worth their weight in gold.

I am a stainless steel lover myself. This is especially good for cooking vegetables. If you burn them they are easy to scour. They are clean and neat looking. I have never had one dent, warp, or turn dark when certain foods are boiled in them. So easy to care for . . .

Another thing I think you should spend good money on is a set of "good" mixing bowls. Again, one does not have to buy the huge papa bear size. Mama bear and baby bear size are perfect for small families.

Some wives boil everything, others fry, others bake . . . not knowing you or your new husband's preference, I could not tell you exactly what to buy.

It is a good suggestion to look around in your mother's kitchen and see what she has.

And if you can possibly beat her out of one of those cast iron, black, "broken-in" skillets . . . for goodness sake do so. You will find that's the best thing in your kitchen cabinet. —Heloise

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

I've heard of being penny wise and pound foolish. That's me!

But did you know if we weren't penny wise, we could "never" be pound foolish? —Reader

Dear Heloise:

We live in a rural area where boys wear blue jeans to school.

When the knees and seat get white looking . . . I just spray the jeans with dark blue upholstery coloring! They look like new and the coloring does not wash out. —Dorothy Wege

Dear Heloise:

For those who want to find a way to utilize leftover tablecloths and old napkins . .

One can always use an odd napkin wrapped around hot breads which are served in a basket.

Some of the good materials left in odd and unused tablecloths can be used to make shorts and peddle-pushers, etc. especially if you can pull threads and make an interesting fringe trim for a little girl!

They can also be made into blouse tops for small tots, or aprons, pinafores . . . and if you have enough napkins a cute little gathered skirt! These can be trimmed.

These odd napkins may also be used to make darling cafe-type curtains for any room if you use a little imagination in the trim. Add some pretty rick-rack for a kitchen window for instance . . . and these are wonderful ideas to utilize all those too large or too small tablecloths which are in every linen closet and no one ever uses.—Mrs. P. Kotsifakis

Dear Heloise:

Whenever I buy a washable item I detach the little tag bearing washing instructions from the garment and attach it to the clothes hanger on which the garment is hung. After wearing the garment I make sure I return it to the same hanger.

When the garment needs to be laundered, the "how-to-do-it" instructions are right there. This is far less trouble than trying to determine "later" which tag belongs to which garment.

This may also be applied to garments which are to be dry cleaned. —Macie Wolford

LaSertoma Names Deadline For Youth Service Award

For the third year, the Pikes Peak LaSertoma will proclaim February as "Youth Service Award" month to honor and present a citation to an outstanding young person or youth organization in the region.

Local citizens are asked to help select a worthy youth or organization setting a pattern of leadership and service in the community.

Judging will be based on the following shown talents of leadership and unselfish devotion to service in home, school and community.

Nominations must be written and mailed before Dec. 20 to Mrs. Bill Smartt, 14 N. Gale. Additional information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Smartt 633-6496, or Mrs. Woody Sorensen 632-7165.

The award was won in February, 1962, by the American Red Cross-sponsored Teenage Monitors, and in 1961 by twins Charlie and Chauncie Todd for service and leadership in the Boys' Club. This year's award went to Raymond Dukes and Eddie Anderson.

Other LaSertoma chapters across the country sponsor identical programs.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

No Longer Under His Hat!

DEAR ABBY: I am in hot water with a very good friend of mine. I have known for years that he has worn a toupee, which is the only toupee I've ever seen that looks like the person's own hair. I told a group of men at my club that he wore a toupee. (Some were surprised, and many were not.) Later, when I saw my friend, he let me know in no uncertain terms that he did not appreciate my telling people that he wore a toupee. I did not mean to be unkind. I simply stated a fact. I didn't think he'd mind. Was I wrong? —CHECKING

DEAR CHECKING: Yes. You should have checked with him first. If he didn't "mind"—why do you think he would wear a toupee?

DEAR ABBY: So often when I am eating my lunch at a counter, two or three people will come in and ask if I would move down a seat or two so they can all sit together. I don't always feel like moving because it involves moving my purse and perhaps some packages. Also, I am usually absorbed in reading something, and I don't like to be interrupted. I used to move without a moment's hesitation, but the more I thought about it, the more I realized that it was just plain rude of people to ask me to move, and I quit doing it. Now when I refuse the request, everyone in the place (especially the waitresses) glare at me as though I were the rude one. Why do strangers feel it is owed them to be accommodated in this way? Or am I wrong? —NOT MOVING

DEAR NOT: Moving over a seat or two in order to accomodate people who wish to sit together is, in my opinion, so slight an inconvenience that it is rude to refuse.

Dear Abby:

Three weeks ago my husband died of cancer. I can't find the words to tell you how much I loved him. When it became obvious to him that he was dying, he asked me to promise him that I would not grieve and that I would not let others who loved him grieve over his death. I am 36. He was 39. It was his last wish that there be no public type funeral. He requested that our minister say a little prayer with only those present who had to do the actual labor in burying him. He did not want me, our children, or even his parnts to "see" him buried. I promised him and he died in my arms. I discussed it with our minister and everything was carried out according to my husband's family and even friends and neighbors are saying hateful things about me. Abby, I thought I was doing the right thing. Did I? —KEPT MY PROMISE

DEAR KEPT PROMISE: Yes. Have no regrets.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Willie: Some bachelors change, but it's not a natural process. It usually takes a good woman to change them.

Puerto Ricans Spice Eye Round of Beef

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Puerto Rican food was the lively theme of the recent annual Spice Trade Association dinner for food editors at the Hotel Biltmore in New York. Carne Mechada (stuffed Eye of Round) was the featured dish. It is a chunky piece of beef, slit through the center, then stuffed with ham, salt pork and vegetables, skillfully spiced with onion and garlic salt or powder, then pot-roasted.

Carne Mechada
Stuffed Eye Round
8 to 10 servings

- 3½ to 4 pounds eye round roast
- ½ cup chopped ham
- ¼ cup chopped salt pork
- 1 cup chopped green sweet pepper
- 6 chopped, pitted green olives
- 1 teaspoon capers
- 4 tablespoons instant minced onion
- ½ teaspoon instant minced garlic
- 1 teaspoon oregano leaves
- 1 teaspoon cider vinegar
- 1 tablespoon olive or cooking oil
- 2 tablespoons shortening or olive oil
- 1 cup hot water
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 medium fresh tomato, diced
- 3-ounce can sliced buttered mushrooms

Wipe meat with a damp cloth. With a sharp knife make a deep crosswise (X) cut from both ends of roast, extending to the center. Combine ham, salt pork, green pepper, olives, capers, instant minced onion and garlic, oregano, vinegar and oil. Stuff as much of the mixture as possible into the cavity. Melt shortening in a large heavy skillet. Add meat and brown on all sides. Add hot water, salt and remainder of stuffing. Cover and cook in a slow oven (325 degrees) 2 hours or until meat is tender. Place meat on a warm platter. Skim and discard excess fat from pan drippings. Add undrained mushrooms to drippings. Thicken with 1 tablespoon flour to each cup gravy. Stir and cook 1 minute or until of desired thickness.

Marinating stewing beef in red wine helps to tenderize the meat and also helps to give flavor.

Pretzels Put the Punch In Apple Crunch!

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Everyone likes pretzels. But did you ever use them with apples, now so plentiful, in a baked apple crunch? Try it. It is fun.

Baked Apple Crunch
Serves 6 or more

- 1½ pound cooking apples
- 1½ cups light brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon or orange rind
- 2 cups coarsely crushed pretzels (about 3 dozen twisted regular or thin pretzels
- ½ cup melted unsalted butter or margarine

Wash, peel, core and slice apples to measure six cups. Place in large shallow casserole (1½ to 2 quarts). Blend 1 cup sugar with cinnamon and grated rind; sprinkle over apples. Combine pretzel crumbs with remaining ½ cup sugar and melted butter; blend well. Sprinkle evenly on top of apples. Bake in moderate (375 degrees) oven for about 45 minutes or until apples are tender. Serve either hot or well chilled, with or without cream or milk in separate dish.

The "salty balls" are a stunt. We used an old recipe from friends in Pottsville, Pa., and adapted it to pretzels instead of salt-taffy-chocolate candy. Pretty good, we think.

Salty Balls
About 10 balls

Place 3 dozen twisted thin pretzels between waxed paper or in plastic bag; crush with with rolling pin into coarse crumbs, the size of finely chopped nuts. Meanwhile melt ½ lb. semisweet chocolate and 2 tablespoons butter over hot water; add 2 tablespoons honey and blend. Add pretzel crumbs and mix well. Cool slightly. Using two metal teaspoons (dipped in cold water) form mixture into balls; drop piece by piece on waxed paper; cool until firm.

Opening lead: King of ♣

From the manner in which North and South staggered into their four heart contract, West diagnosed that his opponents had a serious misfit. He doubled the final bid in the hope of scoring a big killing, but North put down a very creditable dummy and South proceeded to complete West's humiliation by chalking up an extra trick.

The first round of bidding was routine but, when South rebid two diamonds, North would have been better advised to show his clubs in preference to making the cheaper rebid of king, ace, there was little reason for him to suppress his distribution for the sake of economy. When South bid three diamonds, North was afraid to carry on in notrump with but one club stopper, so he rebid his spade suit.

South by this time had formed a deep emotional attachment for his hand and, instead of discreetly returning to three notrump and leaving the final decision to his partner, he persisted to four hearts forcing king of clubs and the ace was floundering and he entered into the proceedings with a double.

The opening lead was the edering and he entered into the proceedings with a double. played from dummy. With the trumps obviously massed behind him, South realized the futility of leading hearts himself and he decided to single in as many little trumps as possible by ruffing.

He cashed the top spades throwing away his other club, and then trumped a club with the three of hearts. The ace, king of diamonds came next followed by a diamond ruff in dummy as both defenders obligingly followed suit. A club was trumped for declarer's eighth trick and he led a fourth diamond.

West could have ruffed in with the nine of hearts, but he realized that by so doing he would abandon all chance of defeating the contract, so he discarded his last club in the vague hope that East could overruff the dummy. North's eight of hearts held the trick however, and South proceeded to apply the crowning touch by leading a spade off dummy and discarding a diamond from his hand. West was unable to let his partner hold the trick for he had only trumps left in his hand. West was obliged to ruff with the deuce of hearts and then lead away from his king into South's ace-queen. In all, declarer limited West to two trump tricks.

Some Volkswagen owners look down on other Volkswagen owners.

When you graduate from a Volkswagen Sedan to a Volkswagen Station Wagon, you really step up in the world.

The Station Wagon stands a good foot taller than other cars. And holds more than the biggest conventional wagon you can find.

But the VW Wagon isn't only tall.

It's also short.

We saved 4 feet of hood in front by putting the engine in back.

Big as it is inside, it's only 9 inches longer than the Volkswagen Sedan.

So people who move up to the high-slung model still feel very much at home.

They park in the same little spots.

They still don't worry about freezing or boiling; the engine is air-cooled.

They still go a long way on a gallon of gas (about 24 miles) and a very long way on a set of tires (about 30,000 miles).

And it just tickles them to drive one Volkswagen and look down on a million others.

Wipe meat with a damp cloth. With a sharp knife make a deep crosswise (X) cut from both ends of roast, extending to the center. Combine ham, salt pork, green pepper, olives, capers, instant minced onion and garlic, oregano, vinegar and oil. Stuff as much of the mixture as possible into the cavity. Melt shortening in a large heavy skillet. Add meat and brown on all sides. Add hot water, salt and remainder of stuffing. Cover and cook in a slow oven (325 degrees) 2 hours or until meat is tender. Place meat on a warm platter. Skim and discard excess fat from pan drippings. Add undrained mushrooms to drippings. Thicken with 1 tablespoon flour to each cup gravy. Stir and cook 1 minute or until of desired thickness.

Marinating stewing beef in red wine helps to tenderize the meat and also helps to give flavor.

Pretzels Put the Punch In Apple Crunch!

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Everyone likes pretzels. But did you ever use them with apples, now so plentiful, in a baked apple crunch? Try it. It is fun.

Baked Apple Crunch
Serves 6 or more

1½ pound cooking apples
1½ cups light brown sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg
1 teaspoon grated lemon or orange rind
2 cups coarsely crushed pretzels (about 3 dozen twisted regular or thin pretzels
½ cup melted unsalted butter or margarine

Wash, peel, core and slice apples to measure six cups. Place in large shallow casserole (1½ to 2 quarts). Blend 1 cup sugar with cinnamon and grated rind; sprinkle over apples. Combine pretzel crumbs with remaining ½ cup sugar and melted butter: blend well. Sprinkle evenly on top of apples. Bake in moderate (375 degrees) oven for about 45 minutes or until apples are tender. Serve either hot or well chilled, with or without cream or milk in separate dish.

The "salty balls" are a stunt. We used an old recipe from friends in Pottsville, Pa., and adapted it to pretzels instead of salt-taffy-chocolate candy. Pretty good, we think.

Salty Balls
About 10 balls

Place 3 dozen twisted thin pretzels between waxed paper or in plastic bag; crush with with rolling pin into coarse crumbs, the size of finely chopped nuts. Meanwhile melt ½ lb. semisweet chocolate and 2 tablespoons butter over hot water; add 2 tablespoons honey and blend. Add pretzel crumbs and mix well. Cool slightly. Using two metal teaspoons (dipped in cold water) form mixture into balls; drop piece by piece on waxed paper; cool until firm.

Opening lead: King of ♣

From the manner in which North and South staggered into their four heart contract, West diagnosed that his opponents had a serious misfit. He doubled the final bid in the hope of scoring a big killing, but North put down a very creditable dummy and South proceeded to complete West's humiliation by chalking up an extra trick.

The first round of bidding was routine but, when South rebid two diamonds, North would have been better advised to show his clubs in preference to making the cheaper rebid of king, ace, there was little reason for him to suppress his distribution for the sake of economy When South bid three diamonds, North was afraid to carry on in notrump with but one club stopper, so he rebid his spade suit.

South by this time had formed a deep emotional attachment for his hand and, instead of discreetly returning to three notrump and leaving the final decision to his partner, he persisted to four hearts forcing king of clubs and the ace was floundering and he entered into the proceedings with a double.

The opening lead was the edering and he entered into the proceedings with a double. played from dummy. With the trumps obviously massed behind him, South realized the futility of leading hearts himself and he decided to single in as many little trumps as possible by ruffing.

He cashed the top spades throwing away his other club, and then trumped a club with the three of hearts. The ace, king of diamonds came next followed by a diamond ruff in dummy as both defenders obligingly followed suit. A club was trumped for declarer's eighth trick and he led a fourth diamond.

West could have ruffed in with the nine of hearts, but he realized that by so doing he would abandon all chance of defeating the contract, so he discarded his last club in the vague hope that East could overruff the dummy. North's eight of hearts held the trick however, and South proceeded to apply the crowning touch by leading a spade off dummy and discarding a diamond from his hand. West was unable to let his partner hold the trick for he had only trumps left in his hand. West was obliged to ruff with the deuce of hearts and then lead away from his king into South's ace-queen. In all, declarer limited West to two trump tricks.

Some Volkswagen owners look down on other Volkswagen owners.

When you graduate from a Volkswagen Sedan to a Volkswagen Station Wagon, you really step up in the world.

The Station Wagon stands a good foot taller than other cars. And holds more than the biggest conventional wagon you can find.

But the VW Wagon isn't only tall.

It's also short.

We saved 4 feet of hood in front by putting the engine in back.

Big as it is inside, it's only 9 inches longer than the Volkswagen Sedan.

So people who move up to the high-slung model still feel very much at home.

They park in the same little spots.

They still don't worry about freezing or boiling; the engine is air-cooled.

They still go a long way on a gallon of gas (about 24 miles) and a very long way on a set of tires (about 30,000 miles).

And it just tickles them to drive one Volkswagen and look down on a million others.

Venezuela Is Preparing For Free National Vote

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In Caracas' sprawling Miraflores, Venezuela's white house, and in the guarded interior ministry, President Romulo Betancourt and his aides are preparing the way for free national elections Dec. 1.

The elections are to determine Betancourt's successor and the new congress which will take office next March.

But just outside Maracaibo, Venezuela's oil capital, police pick up a young member of the FALN, the so-called Armed Forces for National Liberation which are aligned with Fidel Castro and which are determined that the elections shall not take place.

The young man carries a small but powerful explosive which may be attached to a vital pipeline. It is the same type of explosive the oil companies themselves use but in the hands of the young FALN member it is intended for sabotage.

Police Seize Terrorist

On a street in Caracas, interior police pick up another suspected terrorist.

In his possession are found detailed plans for a bank robbery.

The plan includes the amount of money which passed through the bank on a given day, the names of cashiers and how much each is paid and how the guards are armed. Beside each name is a notation:

"Friend."

"Brother of cop."

"He's all right."

Others are described by obscenities.

The bank robbery doesn't come off and the plan to sabotage the oil pipeline also fails. But others in the unceasing drive to throw Venezuela into chaos and eventually to transform it into another Castro Cuba have been more successful.

The immediate goal of the FALN is to disrupt the economy and to goad Venezuela's military into overthrowing the elected government and setting up a military dictatorship, against which the Communists could rally a revolution.

Neither Plan Successful

Neither plan has been successful and the betting now is that neither will be.

As Betancourt prepares to become the first president in Venezuelan history to turn his office over to a freely-elected successor, seven candidates have declared themselves for office.

Front - runner is 57-year-old Raul Leoni, head of Betancourt's own party, Accion Democratica. The party claims more than 900,000 votes out of an electorate of around three and a half million. The party gets credit for the government program which by next March will have distributed land to nearly 100,000 families and built close to 5,000 schools.

COATS DO THE JOB

SCHUYLERVILLE, N. Y. (AP)—The Revolutionary Cemetery at the north end of town is neat and clean again, thanks to the efforts of eight goats.

The animals were placed in the cemetery as a Schuylerville Lions Club community service to eat their way through the underbrush and weeds which were making the grounds an eyescore. Previous efforts at clearance were unsuccessul because it was impossible to use lawnmowers and other machinery in the old cemetery.

Racial Leaders Plan Suit in Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Negro leaders said today they would challenge the outcome of Mississippi's governor race — using an old Reconstruction law as the basis for a federal suit.

Bob Moses, a civil rights leader, said a suit was being drawn aimed at voiding the election of Paul B. Johnson, winner in the bitterly fought governor's campaign.

The old federal law allows a defeated candidate in a state or federal election to challenge the outcome of the race if his supporters were unlawfully denied the right to vote because of race.

Moses was campaign manager for Aaron Henry, a Negro druggist who made a campaign for write-in votes as a candidate for governor. By state law, his write-in votes were illegal and not counted.

Moses said the results of the write-in campaign and of a "mock election" indicated that at least 80,000 persons would have voted for Henry if they had not been disenfranchised.

Johnson defeated Republican Rubel Phillips in Tuesday's general election.

More than 6,000 persons die from residential fires and explosions each year, the U.S. Children's Bureau report.

Venezuela Is Preparing For Free National Vote

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In Caracas' sprawling Miraflores, Venezuela's white house, and in the guarded interior ministry, President Romulo Betancourt and his aides are preparing the way for free national elections Dec. 1.

The elections are to determine Betancourt's successor and the new congress which will take office next March.

But just outside Maracaibo, Venezuela's oil capital, police pick up a young member of the FALN, the so-called Armed Forces for National Liberation which are aligned with Fidel Castro and which are determined that the elections shall not take place.

The young man carries a small but powerful explosive which may be attached to a vital pipeline. It is the same type of explosive the oil companies themselves use but in the hands of the young FALN member it is intended for sabotage.

Police Seize Terrorist

On a street in Caracas, interior police pick up another suspected terrorist.

In his possession are found detailed plans for a bank robbery.

The plan includes the amount of money which passed through the bank on a given day, the names of cashiers and how much each is paid and how the guards are armed. Beside each name is a notation:

"Friend."

"Brother of cop."

"He's all right."

Others are described by obscenities.

The bank robbery doesn't come off and the plan to sabotage the oil pipeline also fails. But others in the unceasing drive to throw Venezuela into chaos and eventually to transform it into another Castro Cuba have been more successful.

The immediate goal of the FALN is to disrupt the economy and to goad Venezuela's military into overthrowing the elected government and setting up a military dictatorship, against which the Communists could rally a revolution.

Neither Plan Successful

Neither plan has been successful and the betting now is that neither will be.

As Betancourt prepares to become the first president in Venezuelan history to turn his office over to a freely-elected successor, seven candidates have declared themselves for office.

Front-runner is 57-year-old Raul Leoni, head of Betancourt's own party, Accion Democratica. The party claims more than 900,000 votes out of an electorate of around three and a half million. The party gets credit for the government program which by next March will have distributed land to nearly 100,000 families and built close to 5,000 schools.

COATS DO THE JOB

SCHUYLERVILLE, N. Y. (AP)—The Revolutionary Cemetery at the north end of town is neat and clean again, thanks to the efforts of eight goats.

The animals were placed in the cemetery as a Schuylerville Lions Club community service project. They eat their way through the underbrush and weeds which were making the grounds an eyesore. Previous efforts at clearance were unsuccessful because it was impossible to use lawnmowers and other machinery in the old cemetery.

Racial Leaders Plan Suit in Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Negro leaders said today they would challenge the outcome of Mississippi's governor race — using an old Reconstruction law as the basis for a federal suit.

Bob Moses, a civil rights leader, said a suit was being drawn aimed at voiding the election of Paul B. Johnson, winner in the bitterly fought governor's campaign.

The old federal law allows a defeated candidate in a state or federal election to challenge the outcome of the race if his supporters were unlawfully denied the right to vote because of race.

Moses was campaign manager for Aaron Henry, a Negro druggist who made a campaign for write-in votes as a candidate for governor. By state law, his write-in votes were illegal and not counted.

Moses said the results of the write-in campaign and of a "mock election" indicated that at least 80,000 persons would have voted for Henry if they had not been disenfranchised.

Johnson defeated Republican Rubel Phillips in Tuesday's general election.

More than 6,000 persons die from residential fires and explosions each year, the U.S. Children's Bureau report.

Dr. George Mills Resigns From FAC Museum

Dr. George Mills, curator of the Taylor Museum at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center since 1949, has resigned to accept a faculty position at Lake Forest College, Ill.

Announcement of the resignation was made Wednesday by Fred Bartlett, director of the Center, at the annual membership meeting.

Dr. Mills will be assistant professor of anthropology at the Illinois college.

Eugene Lilly, 14 Alsace Way, was elected president of the Fine Arts Center, succeeding John W. Geary Jr.

Other new officers elected Wednesday are Mrs. William Thayer Tutt, first vice president; C. D. O'Brien, second vice president; Dr. Robert Humphreys, third vice president; and James Russell, treasurer.

New members of the board of directors are C. Alan Cheney, Col. George V. Fagan, Ralph O. Giddings Jr., Orin W. Loo, Gene Marshall, John O. Merrill, Mrs. Earle E. Partridge, and Mrs. Tutt.

Bartlett, in his report to the membership, announced a 1963 attendance record of 151,695 visitors to the Fine Arts Center. He said attendance has showed a steady increase in the past few years because of special tours, classes and children's programs.

The Center held 23 exhibitions this year, 12 of which were organized by the center. Most popular exhibit was the recent "Paintings by Kandinsky" brought here by the Guggenheim Museum of New York City, Bartlett reported.

Bartlett announced the acquisition of five new paintings a $5,000 gift from an anonymous donor thru the American Federation of Arts.

They are "Little-Head Cranberry Isle," by John Helliker; "Sea Garden Light," by William Keinbusch; "From Sicily," by Gene Matthews; "Artist in Studio," by Enrique Montenegro; and "Green and Gray," by George Vander Sluis.

All the artists except Matthews, were associated with the Fine Arts Center's art school at one time, Bartlett said.

Two other oil paintings to be added to the Fine Arts Center's permanent collection were selected from the recent 19th "Artists West of the Mississippi" exhibition.

They are "Women Making Bullets" by Byron Burford, which won the $1,000 purchase prize here; and "Spring Ritual," by Eugene A. Bavinger, which won the $500 Ida Lee Memorial Purchase Award established in honor of a former Fine Arts Center member and artist.

Bartlett also announced the center gained 247 new members in 1963, bringing the membership total to 1,129. Of this number, 860 were renewal memberships, indicating the continued interest in the Center, he said.

Gas Reported Hit at 260 Feet in Well

W. V. (Bill) Harding, of W. V. Harding & Sons, 743 E. Willamette Ave., told the Gazette Telegraph Wednesday that a gas well had come in west of Security near the old Pueblo Road Monday.

Drilling went down 260 feet. Harding estimated that the well is supplying enough gas to supply about 50 homes.

Parasite Killing Power Not Impaired by Deep Freeze

A zoologist from Colorado College today told a group of fellow scientists in Chicago that a year in the deep freeze apparently does not diminish the killing power of certain parasites.

Prof. Robert M. Stabler reported he had frozen the Jones' Barn strain of Trichomonas gallinae at 72 degrees below zero Centigrade for 52 weeks.

Pigeons were exposed to the parasites after they were thawed out, he said. Within a week all the pigeons were dead.

The Colorado College professor also noted that the long freeze apparently does not impair the parasites capacity for reproduction.

Prof. Stabler reported his findings in a paper delivered today before a joint convention of the American Society of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene, and The American Society of Parasitologists meeting Wednesday through Saturday in the LaSalle Hotel.

Working with Prof. Stabler in the deep freeze experiments were B. M. Honigberg and V. M. King of the University of Massachusetts.

The study was conducted under a grant from the U. S. Public Health Service.

"The disease caused by the Jones' Barn parasite", reported Dr. Stabler, "is called "canker" and strikes mainly in the bird's mouth and crop. Until the discovery of Euheptin, the use of which in canker was developed in our laboratories at the Colorado College, the disease caused losses in the millions to the pigeon raisers of the U.S. alone.

The deadly Jones' Barn strain of Trichomonas gallinae was first isolated by Dr. Stabler, professor and chairman of the zoology department at the college in Colorado Springs.

During the past nine years, Prof. Stabler reported, over 1,000 pigeons were infected with parasites of this sfrain, prior to the deep freeze experiments, and only some twelve birds have survived.

Pigeons used in the experiments were ordinary domestic birds, raised by the Colorado College zoologist.

He said the birds were infected by placing drops of the Jones' Barn strain in their mouths. No injections were made.

Prof. Stabler, who earned his doctor of science degree at Johns Hopkins University, was a professor of zoology at the University of Pennsylvania prior to joining the faculty at Colorado College in 1947.

Canon City Band To Be at Carson Game Saturday

Canon City will send its 80-piece high school marching band with five majorettes and a delegation of business leaders to Ft. Carson Saturday night for the 3rd Brigade-5th Division Artillery game.

Lt. Col. Whitney D. Stuart, 6th Battalion, 21st Artillery commander, arranged for the appearance of the 1963 Colorado champion marching musicians before the game and in the halftime period. Game time is 7 p.m.

Two Youths Picked Up for Shoplifting

Two 16-year old boys, both runaways from Riverside, Calif. were picked up Wednesday by the sheriff's office after an alleged shoplifting incident at Millers Food Store, 3141 W. Colorado Ave.

Deputy Sheriffs Charles Dietsche and Bob Newman reported that when they arrived at the store one of the boys had escaped. The other admitted he was on probation from Riverside County in California. He had not taken anything from the store and told the officers he had left Riverside in company with the other 16-year old and got as far as Las Vegas, Nev. where they met up with another youngster.

Their car broke down in Utah and they sold it for $10. All three arrived in Colorado Springs two weeks ago. The other 16-year old was picked up by the officers. City Crime Rate Higher This Year, McKissick Says

Colorado Springs Police Chief Cecil J. McKissick said Wednesday that 3,631 offenses of various kinds have been checked by his department so far this year.

The total was only 3,035 for the same period in 1962, which reflects, in a way, some of the growth the city and region has experienced in the past year.

An increase in population always means more activity for the police department, he added.

It is to be jointly sponsored by all veterans organizations in the region and "it is free," according to Ray Kiger, Post 4051 commander.

Lung Disease Conference Slated Here

A conference on Pulmonary Emphysema, a lung disease, will be held starting at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 20 at the Margery Reed Memorial Residence at Penrose Hospital.

The conference is being sponsored by the El Paso County Tuberculosis Association and the Colorado Nurses Association, District Three.

To be discussed is "The Emphysema Patient and His Special Problems."

Also on the program will be a review of the Physiology and Anatomy of the Lung; Clinical Manifestations and Treatment of Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Emphysema and Pulmonary Function Tests.

Officials said the disease is on the increase in the United States and apparently affects more men than women.

While there has been no actual proof, spokesmen said the disease may be connected with smoking. A high percentage of individuals who have contracted the disease are heavy smokers. A high percentage of those afflicted also live in areas where air pollution is a constant problem.

Emphysema is not a sudden disease, but "creeps up" on its victims, spokesmen said. Symtoms include constant bad colds during winter months, a heavy cough, shortness of breath, damaged air sacs and enlargement of the lungs.

The disease can be checked by modern medicine if it is caught early enough.

Officials said th conference is open to the public as well as practicing professional and practical nurses.

Parasite Killing Power Not Impaired by Deep Freeze

A zoologist from Colorado College today told a group of fellow scientists in Chicago that a year in the deep freeze apparently does not diminish the killing power of certain parasites.

Prof. Robert M. Stabler reported he had frozen the Jones' Barn strain of Trichomonas gallinae at 72 degrees below zero Centigrade for 52 weeks.

Pigeons were exposed to the parasites after they were thawed out, he said. Within a week all the pigeons were dead.

The Colorado College professor also noted that the long freeze apparently does not impair the parasites capacity for reproduction.

Prof. Stabler reported his findings in a paper delivered today before a joint convention of the American Society of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene, and The American Society of Parasitologists meeting Wednesday through Saturday in the LaSalle Hotel.

mouth and crop. Until the discovery of Euheptin, the use of which in canker was developed in our laboratories at the Colorado College, the disease caused losses in the millions to the pigeon raisers of the U.S. alone.

The deadly Jones' Barn strain of Trichomonas gallinae was first isolated by Dr. Stabler, professor and chairman of the zoology department at the college in Colorado Springs.

During the past nine years, Prof. Stabler reported, over 1,000 pigeons were infected with parasites of this strain, prior to the deep freeze experiments, and only some twelve birds have survived.

Pigeons used in the experiments were ordinary domestic birds, raised by the Colorado College zoologist.

He said the birds were infected by placing drops of the Jones' Barn strain in their mouths. No injections were made.

Prof. Stabler, who earned his doctor of science degree at Johns Hopkins University, was a professor of zoology at the University of Pennsylvania prior to joining the faculty at Colorado College in 1947.

Lung Disease Conference Slated Here

A conference on Pulmonary Emphysema, a lung disease, will be held starting at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 20 at the Margery Reed Memorial Residence at Penrose Hospital.

The conference is being sponsored by the El Paso County Tuberculosis Association and the Colorado Nurses Association, District Three.

To be discussed is "The Emphysema Patient and His Special Problems."

Also on the program will be a review of the Physiology and Anatomy of the Lung; Clinical Manifestations and Treatment of Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Emphysema and Pulmonary Function Tests.

Officials said the disease is on the increase in the United States and apparently affects more men than women.

While there has been no actual proof, spokesmen said the disease may be connected with smoking. A high percentage of individuals who have contracted the disease are heavy smokers. A high percentage of those afflicted also live in areas where air pollution is a constant problem.

Emphysema is not a sudden disease, but "creeps up" on its victims, spokesmen said. Symtoms include constant bad colds during winter months, a heavy cough, shortness of breath, damaged air sacs and enlargement of the lungs.

The disease can be checked by modern medicine if it is caught early enough.

Officials said th conference is open to the public as well as practicing professional and practical nurses.

City Crime Rate Higher This Year, McKissick Says

Colorado Springs Police Chief Cecil J. McKissick said Wednesday that 3,631 offenses of various kinds have been checked by his department so far this year.

The total was only 3,035 for the same period in 1962, which reflects, in a way, some of the growth the city and region has experienced in the past year.

An increase in population always means more activity for the police department, he added.

In the more serious crime category, there have been 1,771 such offenses made known to police during the first 10 months of this year as compared with 1,516 for the same period in 1962.

There have been 342 burglaries this year as compared with 259 last year, and there have been 28 robberies in 1963 and there were 16 for the first 10 months of 1962.

On the other hand, there have been 12 fewer auto thefts this year and 28 less larceny cases involving $50 or more. There have also been six less aggravated assaults.

In crimes of a lesser nature, there have been 654 malicious mischief cases this year as compared with 585 last year. Some of the other activities checked by police this year including the following:

Rape, 6 cases; accidental injury, 309; deaths, 48; Arson, 8; assault, 50; disorderly conduct, 54; suicide, 17; attempted suicide, 62; indecent exposure, 48; molesting, 17; forgery, 19; confidence game, 3; embezzlement, 5; bad checks, 48; and assault and battery, 16.

Veterans Day Breakfast Set Monday Morning

A Veterans Day breakfast will be served from 6 to 11 a.m. Monday at Pikes Peak Post 4051, Veterans of Foreign Wars, 430 E. Pikes Peak Ave.

It is to be jointly sponsored by all veterans organizations in the region and "it is free," according to Ray Kiger, Post 4051 commander.

Additionally, Kiger said, there will be an open house with refreshments served Saturday at Post 4051, with a dance starting that night at 9 a.m. This will be on a free basis, too, thanks to the veterans organizations.

All veterans in the region are cordially invited to attend the Monday morning breakfast and the open house and dance Saturday, Kiger said.

Colorado Springs Mayor Harry W. Hoth, who is a Marine Corps veteran, has also urged citizens of the community to take appropriate note of Veterans Day.

He said he hoped all civic groups would join to give expression of loyalty and allegiance to the United States government "and the ideals which it defends and preserves." He said that also went for every man and woman and child.

He reminded that Veterans Day is an opportunity provided annually "for every citizen to reaffirm his faith in the United States of America thru a program sponsored by the veterans organizations."

Lung Disease Conference Slated Here

A conference on Pulmonary Emphysema, a lung disease, will be held starting at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 20 at the Margery Reed Memorial Residence at Penrose Hospital.

The conference is being sponsored by the El Paso County Tuberculosis Association and the Colorado Nurses Association, District Three.

To be discussed is "The Emphysema Patient and His Special Problems."

Also on the program will be a review of the Physiology and Anatomy of the Lung; Clinical Manifestations and Treatment of Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Emphysema and Pulmonary Function Tests.

Officials said the disease is on the increase in the United States and apparently affects more men than women.

While there has been no actual proof, spokesmen said the disease may be connected with smoking. A high percentage of individuals who have contracted the disease are heavy smokers. A high percentage of those afflicted also live in areas where air pollution is a constant problem.

Emphysema is not a sudden disease, but "creeps up" on its victims, spokesmen said. Symtoms include constant bad colds during winter months, a heavy cough, shortness of breath, damaged air sacs and enlargement of the lungs.

The disease can be checked by modern medicine if it is caught early enough.

Officials said th conference is open to the public as well as practicing professional and practical nurses.

The fee for the November series of classes is $3. Those interested must enroll by Friday, at the Vocational Education Building of School District 11 or at the CU Extension offices, 1105 N. Nevada.

High praise for work being done in the photo laboratory and lie detection section of the Colorado Springs police department was handed out today by Chief Cecil J. McKissick.

He said that "excellent work" was being done in this category by Sgt. Charles Jensen and Officer O. E. Kirkbride.

Just during last month, the chief said, 36 tests were made on the polygraph operation, many of which aided tremendously in the police department being able to unravel various crimes.

Additionally, the chief said, the section processed 1,339 photographs last month, not to mention the taking of many pictures.

Ronald Dunlap Hired by Manitou Council

Ronald E. Dulnap, 316 W. Colorado Ave., was hired as police dispatcher Wednesday by the Manitou Springs City Council. Also hired for the police force was Russell Paul, now working with the Littleton police.

Dunlap started work today with the city and Paul, who worked on the Manitou Police staff last summer, is expected to start his duties as patrolman Monday. Both appointments are effective until Jan. 13, 1964 when a new city council is installed.

Council also renewed two liquor licenses, one for the Town House, 907 Manitou Ave., and one for the Pioneer Lounge, 964 Manitou Ave.

The council transferred $2,000 from the 1963 Sanitation and Sewage budget to other departments for expenditures within the next two months. The Police Dept. received $1,000 in the transfer and the other half was designated for the Fire and Light Dept.

Mrs. Mabel Willie, sole incumbent council candidate to be re-elected Tuesday, missed her first council meeting of her two-year term. She chipped a bone in her hip Tuesday afternoon when she slipped and fell in her yard.

Mrs. Georgetta Shaw, city clerk, announced that city hall will be closed Monday in observance of Veteran's Day.

Ozmun said Safeway hopes to double the 3,450 pounds sold last year for Hope House. Funds this year will be used in the proposed $320,000 Hope House construction project. The local goal is $160,000 with the balance being matched by the federal government. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: I am almost eighteen and feel that I should have some contact with religion. I have never joined a church and my parents object to it saying that I'm too young. What is your opinion? —H.T.

ANSWER: I do not believe that you are approaching this problem correctly. Your problem is not so much the age of joining the church, but rather are you spiritually fit for it. You see, we do not join the church to be in contact with some religion, but to have fellowship with those who love Christ, and to participate in the mission of the church. To have such fellowship, you need to find Christ as Saviour and Lord first. The Bible says that "The Lord added unto them (the Church) daily those that were being saved." If you should join the church without a personal faith, you might do damage to both the church and yourself. Take Christ as your Saviour, and then you will be spiritually ready.

QUESTION: Please give me your opinion on eternal security. I believe this is a dangerous doctrine. —M. A.

ANSWER: The words "eternal security" are not to be found in the Scriptures, but there are many promises in the Word of God that give us confidence to believe that the Lord will keep us safe to the end.

Many people object to such a teaching because they believe it is conducive to a rather free kind of living that has no regard for moral or ethics. That is as false as anything could be. There is no security in sin. If anyone thinks that because he has a faith in Christ he can go on sinning, it is the clearest possible evidence his faith is purely a theoretical one. He has never committed his life to Christ.

The Apostle Paul anticipated this problem and in Romans 6: 1-3 he gave the answer to it in advance. Many people would say that if we were saved by the grace of God alone and not by our own works, we could continue in sin. His answer was, "God forbid. How shall we that are dead to sin, live any longer therein?" This is an utter impossibility.

John gave the same answer in I John 3:8, "He that doeth sin is of the devil, for the devil sinneth from the beginning. To this end was the Son of God manifested, that He might destroy the works of the devil." This is not a teaching that lends itself to any kind of licentious living or sinful practice, rather it is to give assurance that Christ is able to keep those who commit their lives to His care.

Men's Party Mows Down Women Racers

SULPHUR ROCK, Ark. (AP) —It's still a man's world at Sulphur Rock—thanks to the women.

The "Men's party" candidates mowed down their foes in the "Women's party" for mayor, treasurer - recorder and four aldermanic posts Tuesday.

Mrs. Ruth Ford won an aldermanic post because the men had only four candidates for the at-large positions after one of their number was disqualified on a technicality.

Mrs. Varna Travis, ramrod of the "Women's party" and defeated candidate for mayor, said:

"Our worst opposition were women."

Mrs. Travis lost to Curtis Gilbert, 64 votes to 34. There are 113 qualified voters at Sulphur Rock.

The political "battle of the sexes" — shaped up in September when no one filed for office. The women, alarmed by the apathy, filed for all open jobs. This alarmed the men, who also filed a full slate.

The women campaigned vociferously, but the men generally were quiet.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: I am almost eighteen and feel that I should have some contact with religion. I have never joined a church and my parents object to it saying that I'm too young. What is your opinion? —H.T.

ANSWER: I do not believe that you are approaching this problem correctly. Your problem is not so much the age of joining the church, but rather are you spiritually fit for it. You see, we do not join the church to be in contact with some religion, but to have fellowship with those who love Christ, and to participate in the mission of the church. To have such fellowship, you need to find Christ as Saviour and Lord first. The Bible says that "The Lord added unto them (the Church) daily those that were being saved." If you should join the church without a personal faith, you might do damage to both the church and yourself. Take Christ as your Saviour, and then you will be spiritually ready.

QUESTION: Please give me your opinion on eternal security. I believe this is a dangerous doctrine. —M. A.

ANSWER: The words "eternal security" are not to be found in the Scriptures, but there are many promises in the Word of God that give us confidence to believe that the Lord will keep us safe to the end.

Many people object to such a teaching because they believe it is conducive to a rather free kind of living that has no regard for moral or ethics. That is as false as anything could be. There is no security in sin. If anyone thinks that because he has a faith in Christ he can go on sinning, it is the clearest possible evidence his faith is purely a theoretical one. He has never committed his life to Christ.

The Apostle Paul anticipated this problem and in Romans 6: 1-3 he gave the answer to it in advance. Many people would say that if we were saved by the grace of God alone and not by our own works, we could continue in sin. His answer was, "God forbid. How shall we that are dead to sin, live any longer therein?" This is an utter impossibility.

John gave the same answer in I John 3:8, "He that doeth sin is of the devil, for the devil sinneth from the beginning. To this end was the Son of God manifested, that He might destroy the works of the devil." This is not a teaching that lends itself to any kind of licentious living or sinful practice, rather it is to give assurance that Christ is able to keep those who commit their lives to His care.

Men's Party Mows Down Women Racers

SULPHUR ROCK, Ark. (AP) —It's still a man's world at Sulphur Rock—thanks to the women.

The "Men's party" candidates mowed down their foes in the "Women's party" for mayor, treasurer - recorder and four aldermanic posts Tuesday.

Mrs. Ruth Ford won an aldermanic post because the men had only four candidates for the at-large positions after one of their number was disqualified on a technicality.

Mrs. Varna Travis, ramrod of the "Women's party" and defeated candidate for mayor, said:

"Our worst opposition were women."

Mrs. Travis lost to Curtis Gilbert, 64 votes to 34. There are 113 qualified voters at Sulphur Rock.

The political "battle of the sexes" — shaped up in September when no one filed for office. The women, alarmed by the apathy, filed for all open jobs. This alarmed the men, who also filed a full slate.

The women campaigned vociferously, but the men generally were quiet.

MARRIAGES LASTED

WELKOM, South Africa (AP) —Teen-age marriages can and do last, according to Mrs. R. Steyn of Welkom.

She should know. Four generations in her family married at the age of 17 and "have no regrets."

She is the great-aunt of an 18-year-old woman, Mrs. B. van Eeden, already a mother. Mrs. van Eeden's great grandmother, her grandmother and her mother all married at 17.

Jack C. Davis, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Conn, has been appointed the new program director and head counselor, at the Brockhurst Boys Ranch in Green Mountain Falls. A milk goat has been added to the "menagerie" at the Boys Ranch, which now includes pigs, sheep, some 40 rabbits at the last count and several dozen chickens, recently given by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Quinn. Richard Rossi, the school teacher at the ranch, is also teaching animal husbandry with the boys and keeping records of costs and profits of the various live stock. During the recent snow the boys enjoyed sledding and tobogganing over the mountain slopes on the Ranch.

The monthly stag dinner meeting of the Woodland Park Lions Club was held Monday night Oct. 28, at the Community Building, with 45 reservations. A colored movie titled, "Lets Take a Ride With Paul," was shown by Paul Kleinschmidt, one of the racing drivers of the Pikes Peak Hill Climb. Views of the annual Pikes Peak Races are to be combined with various other racing events across the country to make an entertainment film for the Firestone Company. Members of Snowflake Chapter, OES, prepared and served the meal, planned by Mrs. Arylene Benge, chairman. She was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sever, Mrs. Fannie Lincoln, Mrs. Henriette Dust, Mrs. Carolyn McAdams, Mrs. Alberta Stout, Mrs. Polly Lamb, Mrs. Betty Reasonover and Vincent Cornett.

Mrs. Mary Linda Mills, president, had a meeting at her home in Paint Pony Country Club Monday evening, Oct. 28, for the executive board of the Lioness Club. Present were Doris Rerick, vice president; Polly Lamb, secretary; Carol Beach, treasurer; Maxine Van Arsdale, membership chairman, and Alberta Stout, project chairman. Members of the Lioness Club will serve the Nov. 25 Lions stag dinner. Christmas plans for the Brockhurst Boys Ranch were discussed, with ideas for projects that the boys could participate in and help plan.

Ladies' volley ball games will be scheduled every Tuesday evening, at 7:30, at the Community Building. All women are welcome to play or come be a spectator and "root" for a favorite player.

Friday evening, November 8, will be Achievement Night for 4-H members in Teller County, at the Divide Hall, Divide, Colo. Guests and friends are invited to come for a box supper at 6:30, preceding the awards presentations.

A wedding of interest took place Tuesday, Oct. 29, at 7 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mathis, Wishing Well Court. Justice of the Peace Carroll, of Woodland Park, performed the marriage ceremony uniting Larry Dale Hayes, of Winslow, Ariz., and Gloria Jean Ramsey, of Yarnell, Ariz. Attendants were Eunice Mathis, matron of honor, and Wayne Chamra, best man. Mr. and Mrs. Withrow Hayes and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ramsey, parents of the bridal couple, were here for the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Gafford of the Alpine Valley Ranch, GMF, were guests. A reception was given immediately after the service. The couple will reside at 103 Ruxton, Ave., Manitou Springs. Mr. Hayes is a Pfc at Fort Carson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Dustin, owners of the popular Dustin's Kitchen on Main Street in Green Mountain Falls for over eleven years, have sold their buiness to Mr. and Mrs. Percy M. Dobbins, 102 Oklahoma Road, Manitou Springs. The new owners will open the Kitchen early next spring for the summer and fall season. Mr. and Mrs. Dustin plan to be in their Denton, Tex. home for the Thanksgiving holidays and return again next summer for a vacation in the mountains with their many friends.

Mrs. Maxine Haynes, secretary for the Ute Pass Hill Bowlies Ladies' League, has reported the following scores for October 29: Huges Excavating, 22 wins, 10 losses, with 15123; Edwards Grocery, 19 wins, 13 losses, with 15324; Kenneth Quinn Builder, 18 wins, 14 losses, and 15137; Haynes TV, 17 wins, 15 losses, scoring 14148; Reeds Indoor Rodeo, 16 wins, 16 losses and 15346 total pins; Fisherman's Inn, 16 wins, 16 losses, with 14866; Browncraft Steakhouse, 13 wins, 19 losses with 14913, and Dillon Construction, 7 wins, 25 losses, with 14626.

High team single games and three game series were won by the same groups, Reed's Indoor Rodeo, with 754 and 2126, which was also the high series for the season; Edwards Grocery, second, with 654 and 1927; third place, Kenneth Quinn, Builder team, 644 and 1907.

Louise Weiman a substitute player, was high in single game, with 223, and also the series, with 592. Phyllis Giles, on the Dillon team, was 208 in single and 555 in the series. Pat Dillon, also on the Dillon team, was second with a 201 and 540 series. Ruth Dilts, on Fisherman Inn team, scored 188 single game and 513 series, putting her in third place. Lucia Church, on Fisherman's team, and Gwen Musser, Kenneth Quinn team, tied for high average for the season with 150 pins each. Pat Penman was also a substitute player last week.

Mrs. Monte Brown, director of the Children's Choir, Church in the Wildoow, had 10 at Thursday's rehearsal, at 4 p.m. The new music books, Anthems for Junior Choirs, have arrived. Preparations are being made for the choir to sing one Sunday a month for the Church Service to present a program at the annual community Christmas party. Registering as new members of the choir were Christine Wahl, Elaine White and Linda Thomson.

Enrolling last week were Jonell Ewart, Helen Quinn, Doris Rerick, Martha Crabbs, Mary Baltzer, Margaret Rockwell, June Pickett, Pat Penman and Susan Carson.

When invitations were mailed from Colorado Springs to outwit the guests, and told a Halloween party was to be held Saturday evening, Nov. 2; "Where-who Knows" and "The Goblins will call for you at your home and take you to the party," all this created quite a puzzle to a group of friends. Guests receiving the novel invitations were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Houchin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Page; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pickett; Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Foresyth, Mr. and Mrs. Larry McDermed. Two escort cars headed the guest cars around the area and finally ended up at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Quinn in GMF, with Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Penman co-hosts. All were in costume disguises and it was agreed the automobiles were more easily identified, than the folks. The evening was spent with games of fun, challenge and charades, refreshments and dancing. It was a most wonderful party, and gives other ideas on what to do.

Helium Production In Paradox Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Interior Secretary Stewart Udall was urged today to open the Paradox Basin area of Utah to the production of helium.

In making the request, Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, told Udall in a letter that the secretary has never declared in writing why he will not allow development of the helium deposits. The lightweight gas would be sold to private industry.

"I feel I must now ask that you clearly state for the record exactly why you will not meet this request," Moss said.

"You surely realize that recovery of this helium provides the potential for a valuable industry for Utah, and that I will not rest until actual development is started or until I am convinced that development is not in the national interest."

Mrs. Monte Brown, director of the Children's Choir, Church in the Wildoow, had 10 at Thursday's rehearsal, at 4 p.m. The new music books, Anthems for Junior Choirs, have arrived. Preparations are being made for the choir to sing one Sunday a month for the Church Service to present a program at the annual community Christmas party. Registering as new members of the choir were Christine Wahl, Elaine White and Linda Thomson.

The Week Day Study Class, held Thursdays at 9 a.m., in Fellowship Hall are to study "Educational Mission of the Church," under the Rev. Conard Pyle. Enrolling last week were Jonell Ewart, Helen Quinn, Doris Rerick, Martha Crabbs, Mary Baltzer, Margaret Rockwell, June Pickett, Pat Penman and Susan Carson.

When invitations were mailed from Colorado Springs to outwit the guests, and told a Halloween party was to be held Saturday evening, Nov. 2; "Where-who Knows" and "The Goblins will call for you at your home and take you to the party," all this created quite a puzzle to a group of friends. Guests receiving the novel invitations were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Houchin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Page; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pickett; Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Foresyth, Mr. and Mrs. Larry McDermed. Two escort cars headed the guest cars around the area and finally ended up at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Quinn in GMF, with Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Penman co-hosts. All were in costume disguises and it was agreed the automobiles were more easily identified, than the folks. The evening was spent with games of fun, challenge and charades, refreshments and dancing. It was a most wonderful party, and gives other ideas on what to do.

Helium Production In Paradox Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Interior Secretary Stewart Udall was urged today to open the Paradox Basin area of Utah to the production of helium.

In making the request, Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, told Udall in a letter that the secretary has never declared in writing why he will not allow development of the helium deposits. The lightweight gas would be sold to private industry.

"I feel I must now ask that you clearly state for the record exactly why you will not meet this request," Moss said.

"You surely realize that recovery of this helium provides the potential for a valuable industry for Utah, and that I will not rest until actual development is started or until I am convinced that development is not in the national interest."

The ending of hunting season meant disappointment to most of the too numerous hunters who swarmed about the hills here. The deer population has either decreased or taken off to the high peaks. There have been more lucky elk hunters reportedly in the area south of Florissant.

Mrs. Earl Fyler reports an interesting session at the State Teachers Convention in Pueblo. House guests for hunting at the Fyler ranch were Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fyler and son of Canon City.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Raines moved from their summer home at Lake George to Canon City where they spend their winters.

Mrs. Ray Weaver has returned to her home after being hospitalized following a car accident.

House guests at the Vernon Thatcher ranch and joining in hunting were the Ralph Thatchers of Colorado Springs and the Robert Stacys of Denver.

The school attendance at Lake George has dropped, as the three Morrow boys have returned to their Denver home. The Spears family have moved back to Colorado Springs from lower Tarryall.

A Halloween party at the school Thursday was enjoyable to parents and children alike with a large crowd attending despite the snowy day. The youngsters were masked in varied costumes. A musical program and lavish refreshments entertained the crowd. In the evening, the younger children made the usual rounds trick or treatin'.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Sumner report a pleasant trip to the Walden area elk hunting, tho it was too warm and dry for success. Art Ecklund and Carl Quist are among those hunting on the Western Slope.

A heavy snow brought badly needed moisture here last Wednesday night, piling up to 10 inches in places, followed by a 5 above zero temperature.

Clyve Foulke entertained his daughter and family from Woodland Park, and other guests over hunting season.

A speedy recovery is wished for Mrs. Jack Rodgers who is hospitalized at Penrose, and for Wylie Barr who has been disabled at his home.

U.S. Will Have More Rockets Than Russians

LONDON (AP) — The United States will have nearly five times as many intercontinental ballistic missiles ready to deliver nuclear warheads as the Soviets by the end of this year, says the Institute for Strategic Studies.

The institute, an authoritative nongovernmenal agency whose backers include the Ford and Rockefeller foundations, said U.S. ICBM strength will reach 475 rockets against an armory of about 100 similar Soviet missiles.

In a defense survey made public today, the institute said the Soviets are continuing their slow buildup of intercontinental ballistic missiles and added: "Soviet policy still lays stress on high-yield warheads for the smaller number of missiles available."

The institute said a Soviet claim it had developed a true Polaris-type missile that can be fired from a submerged submarine "must be treated with caution."

It added, however, the Russians have a 400-mile rocket that can be fired from a surfaced submarine. It said about 90 such submarines are in service along with 12 missile-firing destroyers.

Allies Quarrel Over Wheat Sales to Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI)— The proposed sale of $250 million worth of American surplus wheat to the Soviet Union is drawing fire from an unexpected quarter—the United States' maritime allies.

A dozen leading maritime nations are expected to protest jointly against President Kennedy's insistence that U.S. vessels get preference in transporting the wheat to Russian ports.

Some of the nations, led by Norway, already have protested individually to the State Department. They argue that the America-first policy is a breach of customary practice in a purely commercial deal.

Real Headaches Reported by Television Stars

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Eyes strained after years of television viewing? Jittery this morning because of a late, late show? Don't complain, you television fans. You're lucky.

Television stars are the ones who really have the headaches. Never before in show business have so many suddenly become so rich, so famous—and so unhappy.

Call it the day of the unhappy television millionaires.

The hectic, high-tension demand of television blended with the highly emotional natures of talented people is the foundation for the unhappiness. Television's demands are insatiable, but as capricious as a roulette wheel.

To be liked is the goal of the entertainer. To be versatile is the actor's dream. To be "wanted" means even more than money to both.

In television's shower of gold, however, actors and entertainers alike are facing hurdles new to the world of show business.

Television popularity rating systems still dictate life and death for the young hopeful or the old pro. The sudden end of a show because of low rating or a sponsor's change of mind breeds bitterness and unhappiness.

For the entertainer who becomes a hit there is the risk of overexposure killing off a career years in the making.

It happened to Milton Berle and Sid Caesar, once the kingpins of the little screen, today they are rich, but unhappy. Berle craves straight dramatic roles and Sid hopes a new movie will renew his one bright career.

As a spectator to the rise and fall of Berle and Caesar on television, Danny Kaye resisted weekly show offers until this season. "How long will it last?" is a question Danny is already asking himself.

Judy Garland's desire to be liked on her new show has cued a series of backstage flare-ups which have brought changes in production and personnel.

When the "Burns & Allen Show" faded from the air, Gracie went into reitrement. But the lure of the spotlight was too much for George. He doesn't need the money, but today he is on the road with a night club singing act.

With more money than he'll ever need, a pouting Jack Benny is leaving CBS because of the time spot given his show. He'll be on NBC next season.

For the actor, television blends riches with type casting so indelible that stars lose personal identity in the characters they play—a fate they look upon as worse than death.

For instance, seven years as the Paladin of "Have Gun, Will Travel" made Richard Boone a millionaire, gave him the chance to retire and enjoy the sason, working harder than ever on "The Richard Boone Show."

"Gunsmoke" put Dennis Weaver in the big money. But being typed as the limping Chester has turned his career into miserable frustration.

In attempting to escape from Dodge City, Weaver has made three bids for a series of his own far from the West. He has appeared, in white tie and tails, as a singer on a television variety show.

He's still playing Chester. He's rich, but unhappy and bitter.

Old Walter Brennan, a movie Oscar winner way back in 1936, became a millionaire for the second time via "The Real McCoys." Gone fishing now? Nope, returns to home screens next season in a new series in which he plays a business tycoon.

"I'd be miserable in retirement," he says, and he's probably right. He's the essence of unhappiness when he's not working.

A rich man today, Raymond Burr is worried about the image of "Perry Mason" haunting his acting career when the series ends—and all series eventually do end, you know. The quick end of the "Betty Hutton Show" left the one-time Hollywood star in such an emotional state that friends worried about her health.

At the more personal level, television's long working hours and nervous strain cost Lucille Ball and Desi Arnez their marriage. Jim Arness' marriage ended in a legal separation. His "Gunsmoke" fame and fortune were blamed.

Modern supermarkets in Lancaster, Pa., provide hitching posts for the buggies of Amish farm families.

Bruins May Combine Lessons For Upset of Falcon Eleven

NAMED STARTER—Mike Haffner, 185-pound junior, was named a probable starter at quarterback for UCLA's game against the Air Force Academy this Saturday in Falcon Stadium. Up until about three weeks ago Haffner was playing left halfback for the Bruins. However, he was switched by Coach Bill Barnes to quarter and since that time has made vast improvement. The last-minute change could be an indication UCLA will try to run against the Falcons instead of sticking with the pass-dominated game they have used so far this season. Haffner is one of four converted from tailback under the old single-wing system at UCLA.

This Saturday could very well be graduation time in Falcon Stadium for a group of visiting students from Los Angeles.

That's the opinion of those who have watched the Bruins of UCLA come thru the school of hard knocks over the past couple years. They could be due to put all their lessons together for an exam at the expense of the scholarly Cadets of the Air Force Academy.

The Uclans and Falcons meet this Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in the AFA's streamlined stadium, in the first visit here by the Bruins. The Air Force has been pegged as a 10-point favorite, but the upset is ripe.

Air Force is still nursing feelings over the 14-10 loss to Army last weekend, in a game that some people considered just about the entire season. There's no doubt that the Falcons have a job on their hands trying to snap back from that disappointing defeat.

On the other hand, UCLA comes into this game as hungry as a wolfpack on the scent of a wounded deer. The Bruins have won only one game in seven so far and they would like to make up for some of those losses real quickly with a prestige win over the Cadets.

The visitors, however, are not nearly the team that their record indicates. They have youth and size on their side and plenty of individual talent.

The trouble, as advance publicist Vic Kelley sees it, is that the Bruins are just starting to get used to the switch from the single wing formation to the T, as installed by Coach Bill Barnes last fall. Each week there have been improvements in the new system, and about now the West Coast squad could be ready to mold themselves into a first class team.

They've certainly been learning the trade against some of the best teachers this nation has to offer. Teams which have added UCLA to the victim list are Illinois, Pittsburgh, Syracuse, Notre Dame, Penn State and California. Four of those have been listed among the Top Ten in the country at one time or another this season, and Illinois is currently No. 2 and Pitt's ninth.

The only team UCLA has been able to best so far has been league rival Stanford, and that by the slimmest of margins, 10-9. Last week they were stunned by another Big Six opponent, California, 25-0.

It should be realized, however that most of the regulars on this year's Bruin team were recruited for play on the single-wing. Now they have been forced to adjust to the different style of the winged-T, much like the formation used by the Falcons.

There are several differences, no matter what position is played. In the line, players must change from the normal two-man blocking of the single-wing power plays to the quick charge and head-to-head blocking of the T. Backs must adjust from the slow-starting runs of the old formation to darting stabs thru small holes under the new system.

Right now, for instance, UCLA has no less than four regulars who were brought to the Los Angeles campus to play tailback. Two of them are now quarterbacks, who will alternate against the Falcons on Saturday, another's a running halfback, and the fourth is an All-America candidate at end. Still another was recruited as a wingback for the single-wing.

Mike Haffner and Larry Zeno, who will be behind center in the pro-type T formation used by Barnes, still can sweep the ends with the run-pass ontion as they did as tailbacks. But big Mel Profit, 209-pound senior tight end, has had to change his tactics completely and he's done an excellent job of it.

Kelley, who expects a crowd-pleasing game between two offensive-minded teams, thinks the Uclans are "only a year away from the Rose Bowl. We've got 18 sophomores and juniors among the first 30 players who are just getting used to the system," he said.

Perhaps typical of those making the steady change over is Haffner, who is slated to start at quarterback this weekend. He has been playing the position only three weeks as Barnes continues to switch personnel, after playing tailback in his freshman year. Last season he was changed to wingback in the T-formation, but proved better at throwing the ball than catching it. So the UCLA coach finally moved him up to quarterback.

Haffner is considered the better runner and Zeno the better passer of the QB duo. This may be an indication that the Bruins figure they can run against the Falcons with more ease than against previous opponents.

Kelley also feels that the 1-2 punch of lefthalf Byron Nelson and fullback Warren Jackson should be ready for their best of the fall. Jackson, rated early in the season as one of the best runners on the Coast, has been slow in healing from a shoulder injury. Nelson is one of those former tailbacks who has had a tough time adjusting to the new alignment, but now is running with authority from halfback.

UCLA, like most teams that have played the Air Force this season, has set its defense to try and stop the triple-threat performance of Terry Isaacson, the quick-footed senior from Oak Park, Ill. Isaacson currently rates ninth in the nation in total offense with 1112 yards in seven games.

As a team, the Air Force ranks 10th in the country in rushing offense with an average of 224.3 yards per game.

DEMON ON DEFENSE — Joe O'Gorman, Air Force Academy's 205-pound starting left end from Dearborn, Mich., has been a thorn in the side of Falcon opponents all season with his heads-up play on defense. Several times last Saturday in Chicago he slashed thru the sturdy Army line to nail runners in the AFA's key game against the Black Knights of the Hudson. The red-headed junior is expected to again play an important role for the Air Force this weekend as the Cadets return to Falcon Stadium to meet UCLA. A crowd of about 33,000 is expected for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Liston-Clay Fight Ruled Out at L.A.

By HAL WOOD
UPI Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A California boxing official warned Los Angeles promoters Wednesday they may be wasting their time in attempting to obtain the Sonny Liston-Cassius Clay heavyweight fight.

Sol Silverman, chairman of the Governor's Committee for Safeguards in Professional Boxing, pointed out that Liston does not have a license to fight in either California or New York — and that both states "are as one in their opposition to mismatches."

And Liston may have trouble getting a license in California.

Silverman said he recently received a letter from Chairman Hayward Plumadore of the New York Joint Legislative Committee stating that his group would "like to hear Mr. Liston state under oath that he has severed all connections with criminal elements."

"And I'm sure our California Athletic Commission, with a fine sensitivity to its responsibilities, and the desire to promote safeguards in boxing, shares New York's urge," he said.

Silverman also expressed doubt about the wisdom of matching the cocky, talkative Clay against the heavyweight champion, who does his talking with hamlike fists in a cold, crushing style.

"If Liston displays the same ferocity against Clay as he did against (former champion Floyd) Patterson, then serious — if not grave — injuries could result from their meeting," he said.

And if the champion "carries" Clay, Silverman said boxing would be "further degraded and the public disgustingly defrauded."

"Boxing cannot stand a setback like this . . .," he said. "Promoters should be aware of the long range pull and not take shortcuts to big gates."

Silverman said no boxing critic or pugilistic expert has commended the Clay-Liston match as a contest of equal gladiatrs — and many ahve spoken out against it.

"Let Clay or Liston or their promoters name one former heavyweight champion among the eleven now living, who regrads Clay as being ready for Liston, despite Clay's potential as a champion," Silverman said.

"Not even Joe Louis, now negotiating for the promotion of the match in Los Angeles, thinks Clay has any chance against Liston," he added.

Louis and promoter George Parnassus both have made bids to stage the bout in Los Angeles.

Silverman said that Clay, already listed as a 4-1 underdog, might well point to the Jimmy Braddock-Max Baer fight of 1935. Braddock won the title, although Baer was a 10 to 1 afvorite.

"But Clay should be reminded that Sonny Liston is a "bear" —an ugly bear, as he (Clay) says — and not a clown in the ring," Silverman said.

Denver Promoter Offers $1.2 Million for Fight

DENVER (UPI) — Backers of world heavyweight champion Sonny Liston and challenger Cassius Clay were weighing offers today ranging up to $1.2 million to stage their title fight next February.

Denver promoter and restaurant owner Milt Willner announced Wednesday he had formed a syndicate to offer $1.2 million to hold the bout "in Denver or other places." Earlier, three $1 million offers were made — two from Los Angeles interests and one from Miami. Lesser bids have been made from Chicago, Las Vegas and Minneapolis.

Willner said Shelden Wollman, owner of Pal Joe's restaurant in New York, was a principal member of the syndicate. He did not name any others.

"We mean business and are prepared to put a half million dollars on deposit right now," Willner said.

Kicks From Joy Juice

It should have been no surprise after spotting smoke signals puffing above Mt. Manitou in figure eights rather than the usual rings from ole Chief Ute's peace pipe.

But on reaching our wooden friend at the foot of Ute Pass, it was pretty obvious that our weekly consultant for this nutty business of picking football winners around the country had been nipping at his handy kickapoo joy juice.

Course Chief Ute dates back to the era when it was highly illegal for an Indian to taste firewater. But rumor has it that his tribe rigged their own still deep in the shadows of the Cave of the Winds and a goodly supply still trickles down the hillside to Ute's teepee by the side of Highway 24.

Thus I had to think twice about stringing along with the list of winners he whispered this week. This time Chief Ute had really gone out on a limb. His scrimbling had no less than 10 — count 'em — upsets for what he thinks will be a dizzy weekend.

So without further translation from this leftover from an ancient cigar store. . .let's take a peek at his predictions:

Regional

AFA 27, UCLA 17 — Chief says Flyboys have-um Bruin trap set in Falcon Stadium in what should be a wild pow-wow between two offensive minded teams.

CC 20, DOANE 14 — Coach Jerry Carle's Tigers get back to their own level of student-athletes.

WYOMING 18, N. M. 10 — Pokes still have a good shot at the Western title, but should beware of New Mexico's slow-starting Lobos.

Big Eight

MISSOURI 27, CU 0 — Just a matter of muscle with the Buffs fighting for life this season.

NEBRASKA 20, KANSAS 7—Even if Dennis Claridge is out, the Huskers have too much of everything in another warmup for their big showdown with Oklahoma in the finale.

OKLAHOMA 20, IOWA ST. 13—In a close call for the mighty Sooners.

East

ARMY 41, UTAH 7 — Paul Dietzel now has a smooth offense to go with his traditionally strong defense. . .and momentum from the Air Force win.

HARVARD 21, PRINCETON 14 — The first of Chief's upsets for the week with Cosmo Iacavazzi bustin' holes up the middle.

MARYLAND 20, NAVY 17 — And another surprise right on top of the last one. Dick Shiner to out-shine Jolly Roger Staubach.

Midwest

MICHIGAN 14, ILLINOIS 8 — The brothers Elliott, Pete and Bump, are at it again. A newly discovered aerial attack does the trick in another upset.

PENN ST. 18, OHIO ST. 15—The Buckeyes have been coming up with a new hero weekly . . .but this time a rough and ready Nittany Lion ends the string.

PURDUE 15, MICHIGAN ST. 14 — The Boilermakers seem to come up with a surprise about this time every season, but they'll have to stop State's speedy Sherm Lewis.

South

MISS. ST. 8, AUBURN 6 — All good things must end sometime — and one of the last of the undefeated teams finds State's defense too tough.

OLE MISS 41, TAMPA 0 — Hard core southerners are still plugging for No. 1 in the nation. . .but they ought to refund ticket money on this one. The mis-match of the week.

TCU 25, LSU 14 — Sounds like a bowl of alphabet soup in another upset by the beefy Horned Frogs.

Southwest

BAYLOR 10, TEXAS 8 — The blue plate special. Don Trull to keep is Bears close to the end to stop the Longhorns for the first time this season. The Southwest title hangs in the balance.

RICE 21, ARKANSAS 14 — Another surprise from Chief Ute's pipe dreams with the home team getting the edge.

Far West

STANFORD 23, USC 21 — Another case of head-hunting against last year's national champs. Ole Ute has to stick with his Indians.

OREGON 20, WASH. ST. 14 — Too much Mel Renfro into State's somewhat leaky line.

WASHINGTON 22, CAL 15 — the Huskies have Rose Bowl fever and Junior Coffey's running again.

Kicks From Joy Juice

It should have been no surprise after spotting smoke signals puffing above Mt. Manitou in figure eights rather than the usual rings from ole Chief Ute's peace pipe.

But on reaching our wooden friend at the foot of Ute Pass, it was pretty obvious that our weekly consultant for this nutty business of picking football winners around the country had been nipping at his handy kickapoo joy juice.

Course Chief Ute dates back to the era when it was highly illegal for an Indian to taste firewater. But rumor has it that his tribe rigged their own still deep in the shadows of the Cave of the Winds and a goodly supply still trickles down the hillside to Ute's teepee by the side of Highway 24.

Thus I had to think twice about stringing along with the list of winners he whispered this week. This time Chief Ute had really gone out on a limb. His scrimbling had no less than 10 — count 'em — upsets for what he thinks will be a dizzy weekend.

So without further translation from this leftover from an ancient cigar store. . .let's take a peek at his predictions:

Regional

AFA 27, UCLA 17 — Chief says Flyboys have-um Bruin trap set in Falcon Stadium in what should be a wild pow-wow between two offensive minded teams.

CC 20, DOANE 14 — Coach Jerry Carle's Tigers get back to their own level of student-athletes.

WYOMING 18, N. M. 10 — Pokes still have a good shot at the Western title, but should beware of New Mexico's slow-starting Lobos.

Big Eight

MISSOURI 27, CU 0 — Just a matter of muscle with the Buffs fighting for life this season.

NEBRASKA 20, KANSAS 7— Even if Dennis Claridge is out, the Huskers have too much of everything in another warmup for their big showdown with Oklahoma in the finale.

OKLAHOMA 20, IOWA ST. 13 —In a close call for the mighty Sooners.

East

ARMY 41, UTAH 7 — Paul Dietzel now has a smooth offense to go with his traditionally strong defense. . .and momentum from the Air Force win.

HARVARD 21, PRINCETON 14 — The first of Chief's upsets for the week with Cosmo Iacavazzi bustin' holes up the middle.

MARYLAND 20, NAVY 17 — And another surprise right on top of the last one. Dick Shiner to out-shine Jolly Roger Staubach.

Midwest

MICHIGAN 14, ILLINOIS 8 — The brothers Elliott, Pete and Bump, are at it again. A newly discovered aerial attack does the trick in another upset.

PENN ST. 18, OHIO ST. 15— The Buckeyes have been coming up with a new hero weekly . . .but this time a rough and ready Nittany Lion ends the string.

PURDUE 15, MICHIGAN ST. 14 — The Boilermakers seem to come up with a surprise about this time every season, but they'll have to stop State's speedy Sherm Lewis.

South

MISS. ST. 8, AUBURN 6 — All good things must end sometime — and one of the last of the undefeated teams finds State's defense too tough.

OLE MISS 41, TAMPA 0 — Hard core southerners are still plugging for No. 1 in the nation. . .but they ought to refund ticket money on this one. The mis-match of the week.

TCU 25, LSU 14 — Sounds like a bowl of alphabet soup in another upset by the beefy Horned Frogs.

Southwest

BAYLOR 10, TEXAS 8 — The blue plate special. Don Trull to keep is Bears close to the end to stop the Longhorns for the first time this season. The Southwest title hangs in the balance.

RICE 21, ARKANSAS 14 — Another surprise from Chief Ute's pipe dreams with the home team getting the edge.

Far West

STANFORD 23, USC 21 — Another case of head-hunting against last year's national champs. Ole Ute has to stick with his Indians.

OREGON 20, WASH. ST. 14 — Too much Mel Renfro into State's somewhat leaky line.

WASHINGTON 22, CAL 15 — the Huskies have Rose Bowl fever and Junior Coffey's running again.

Bruins May Combine Lessons For Upset of Falcon Eleven

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

This Saturday could very well be graduation time in Falcon Stadium for a group of visiting students from Los Angeles.

That's the opinion of those who have watched the Bruins of UCLA come thru the school of hard knocks over the past couple years. They could be due to put all their lessons together for an exam at the expense of the scholarly Cadets of the Air Force Academy.

The Uclans and Falcons meet this Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in the AFA's streamlined stadium, in the first visit here by the Bruins. The Air Force has been pegged as a 10-point favorite, but the upset is ripe.

Air Force is still nursing feelings over the 14-10 loss to Army last weekend, in a game that some people considered just about the entire season. There's no doubt that the Falcons have a job on their hands trying to snap back from that disappointing defeat.

On the other hand, UCLA comes into this game as hungry as a wolfpack on the scent of a wounded deer. The Bruins have won only one game in seven so far and they would like to make up for some of those losses real quickly with a prestige win over the Cadets.

The visitors, however, are not nearly the team that their record indicates. They have youth and size on their side and plenty of individual talent.

The trouble, as advance publicist Vic Kelley sees it, is that the Bruins are just starting to get used to the switch from the single wing formation to the T, as installed by Coach Bill Barnes last fall. Each week there have been improvements in the new system, and about now the West Coast squad could be ready to mold themselves into a first class team.

They've certainly been learning the trade against some of the best teachers this nation has to offer. Teams which have added UCLA to the victim list are Illinois, Pittsburgh, Syracuse, Notre Dame, Penn State and California. Four of those have been listed among the Top Ten in the country at one time or another this season, and Illinois is currently No. 2 and Pitt's ninth.

The only team UCLA has been able to best so far has been league rival Stanford, and that by the slimmest of margins, 10-9. Last week they were stunned by another Big Six opponent, California, 25-0.

It should be realized, however that most of the regulars on this year's Bruin team were recruited for play on the single-wing. Now they have been forced to adjust to the different style of the winged-T, much like the formation used by the Falcons.

There are several differences, no matter what position is played. In the line, players must change from the normal two-man blocking of the single-wing power plays to the quick charge and head-to-head blocking of the T. Backs must adjust from the slow-starting runs of the old formation to darting stabs thru small holes under the new system.

Right now, for instance, UCLA has no less than four regulars who were brought to the Los Angeles campus to play tailback. Two of them are now quarterbacks, who will alternate against the Falcons on Saturday, another's a running halfback, and the fourth is an All-America candidate at end. Still another was recruited as a wingback for the single-wing.

Mike Haffner and Larry Zeno, who will be behind center in the pro-type T formation used by Barnes, still can sweep the ends with the run-pass option as they did as tailbacks. But big Mel Profit, 209-pound senior tight end, has had to change his tactics completely and he's done an excellent job of it.

Kelley, who expects a crowd-pleasing game between two offensive-minded teams, thinks the Uclans are "only a year away from the Rose Bowl. We've got 18 sophomores and juniors among the first 30 players who are just getting used to the system," he said.

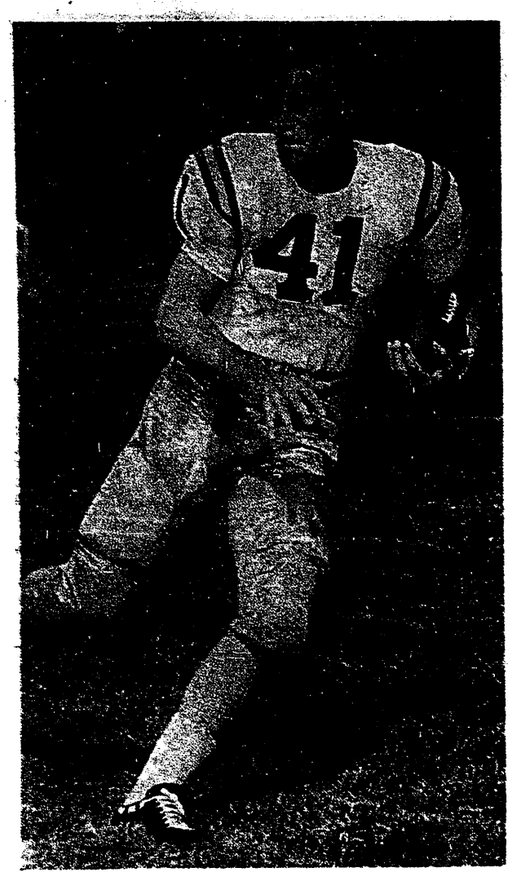
Perhaps typical of those making the steady change over is Haffner, who is slated to start at quarterback this weekend. He has been playing the position only three weeks as Barnes continues to switch personnel, after playing tailback in his freshman year. Last season he was changed to wingback in the T-formation, but proved better at throwing the ball than catching it. So the UCLA coach finally moved him up to quarterback.

Haffner is considered the better runner and Zeno the better passer of the QB duo. This may be an indication that the Bruins figure they can run against the Falcons with more ease than against previous opponents.

Kelley also feels that the 1-2 punch of lefthalf Byron Nelson and fullback Warren Jackson should be ready for their best of the fall. Jackson, rated early in the season as one of the best runners on the Coast, has been slow in healing from a shoulder injury. Nelson is one of those former tailbacks who has had a tough time adjusting to the new alignment, but now is running with authority from halfback.

UCLA, like most teams that have played the Air Force this season, has set its defense to try and stop the triple-threat performance of Terry Isaacson, the quick-footed senior from Oak Park, Ill. Isaacson currently rates ninth in the nation in total offense with 1112 yards in seven games.

As a team, the Air Force ranks 10th in the country in rushing offense with an average of 224.3 yards per game.



NAMED STARTER—Mike Haffner, 185-pound junior, was named a probable starter at quarterback for UCLA's game against the Air Force Academy this Saturday in Falcon Stadium. Up until about three weeks ago Haffner was playing left halfback for the Bruins. However, he was switched by Coach Bill Barnes to quarter and since that time has made vast improvement. The last-minute change could be an indication UCLA will try to run against the Falcons instead of sticking with the pass-dominated game they have used so far this season. Haffner is one of four converted from tailback under the old single-wing system at UCLA.

DEMON ON DEFENSE — Joe O'Gorman, Air Force Academy's 205-pound starting left end from Dearborn, Mich., has been a thorn in the side of Falcon opponents all season with his heads-up play on defense. Several times last Saturday in Chicago he slashed thru the sturdy Army line to nail runners in the AFA's key game against the Black Knights of the Hudson. The red-headed junior is expected to again play an important role for the Air Force this weekend as the Cadets return to Falcon Stadium to meet UCLA. A crowd of about 33,000 is expected for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Liston-Clay Fight Ruled Out at L.A.

By HAL WOOD
UPI Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A California boxing official warned Los Angeles promoters Wednesday they may be wasting their time in attempting to obtain the Sonny Liston-Cassius Clay heavyweight fight.

Sol Silverman, chairman of the Governor's Committee for Safeguards in Professional Boxing, pointed out that Liston does not have a license to fight in either California or New York — and that both states "are as one in their opposition to mismatches."

And Liston may have trouble getting a license in California.

Silverman said he recently received a letter from Chairman Hayward Plumadore of the New York Joint Legislative Committee stating that his group would "like to hear Mr. Liston state under oath that he has severed all connections with criminal elements."

"And I'm sure our California Athletic Commission, with a fine sensitivity to its responsibilities, and the desire to promote safeguards in boxing, shares New York's urge," he said.

Silverman also expressed doubt about the wisdom of matching the cocky, talkative Clay against the heavyweight champion, who does his talking with hamlike fists in a cold, crushing style.

"If Liston displays the same ferocity against Clay as he did against (former champion Floyd) Patterson, then serious — if not grave — injuries could result from their meeting," he said.

And if the champion "carries" Clay, Silverman said boxing would be "further degraded and the public disgustingly defrauded."

"Boxing cannot stand a setback like this . . .," he said. "Promoters should be aware of the long range pull and not take shortcuts to big gates."

Silverman said no boxing critic or pugilistic expert has commended the Clay-Liston match as a contest of equal gladiatrs — and many ahve spoken out against it.

"Let Clay or Liston or their promoters name one former heavyweight champion among the eleven now living, who regrads Clay as being ready for Liston, despite Clay's potential as a champion," Silverman said.

"Not even Joe Louis, now negotiating for the promotion of the match in Los Angeles, thinks Clay has any chance against Liston," he added.

Louis and promoter George Parnassus both have made bids to stage the bout in Los Angeles.

Silverman said that Clay, already listed as a 4-1 underdog, might well point to the Jimmy Braddock-Max Baer fight of 1935. Braddock won the title, although Baer was a 10 to 1 favorite.

"But Clay should be reminded that Sonny Liston is a "bear" —an ugly bear, as he (Clay) says — and not a clown in the ring," Silverman said.

Denver Promoter Offers $1.2 Million for Fight

DENVER (UPI) — Backers of world heavyweight champion Sonny Liston and challenger Cassius Clay were weighing offers today ranging up to $1.2 million to stage their title fight next February.

Denver promoter and restaurant owner Milt Willner announced Wednesday he had formed a syndicate to offer $1.2 million to hold the bout "in Denver or other places." Earlier, three $1 million offers were made — two from Los Angeles interests and one from Miami. Lesser bids have been made from Chicago, Las Vegas and Minneapolis.

Willner said Shelden Wollman, owner of Pal Joe's restaurant in New York, was a principal member of the syndicate. He did not name any others.

"We mean business and are prepared to put a half million dollars on deposit right now," Willner said.

Broncos Conduct First Drill in Home Stadium

DENVER (AP) — For the first time since the football season opened, the Denver Broncos of the American Football League held a scrimmage in their home stadium Wednesday.

Coach Jack Faulkner said the team got in some badly needed defensive contact work, as well as doing some hitting on offense.

Halfback Donnie Stone was impressive with his running and blocking, Faulkner said.

The Broncos play at Buffalo Saturday night. The Buffalo Bills beat the Denver team 30-28 last week.

Norsemen Top NCAA Poll

By United Press International

Northeastern A&M with just one more game to go, leads the National Junior College Athletic Association coaches poll for the fifth consecutive week.

The Norsemen ran their record to 8-0 hurdling their toughest foe, second ranked Cameron, 14-12. Northeastern A&M, eying a possible Junior Rose Bowl bid, is idle this week, then winds up the regular season against Coffeyville, Kansas.

Cameron (6-2) meets New Mexico Military Institute Saturday.

Mason City of Iowa (7-0) retained its third place.

In an Oklahoma Junior College Conference game on tap for tonight, Oklahoma Military Academy, which has not been beaten in seven games but has been held to two ties, hosts Connors (3-4).

Howard First Negro Named MVP in AL

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP) — Elston Howard, the take-charge catcher who spurred the hobbled New York Yankees to a fourth straight pennant, became the first Negro ever named the American League's Most Valuable Player Thursday.

The National League MVP has been a Negro 11 times in the past 15 years.

Howard amassed 248 points to 148 for runner-up Al Kaline of Detroit. The versatile backstop drew 15 first-place votes and was named on all 20 ballots cast by a Committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Southpaw pitching ace Whitey Ford of the Yankees was third with 125 points, including three firsts. He was followed by Minnesota slugger Harmon Killebrew with 85 and the Boston pair of Carl Yastrzemski and Dick Radatz. Outfielder Yastrzemski was the batting champion and relief pitcher Radatz posted the lowest earned run average of 1.98.

The vote was announced by BBWAA secretary Hy Hurwitz in Boston.

With his MVP predecessors Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris sidelined by injuries for sizable portions of the season, Howard led the league champions with a .287 batting average. The 6-foot-2, 205-pounder paced AL receivers with a .994 fielding average, was fifth in the league with 28 homers and eighth in runs batted in with 85.

"When something likes this happens, it makes baseball worthwhile," said Howard from his Teaneck, N.J. home into which he has just moved. "This is the greatest. You know, I was offered 35 or 40 college scholarships when I was in high school. I'm not sorry about choosing baseball, not now, especially."

The son of a New Madrid, Mo. high school principal, the 33-year-old Howard was master of the big, timely hit throughout the season.

Before the Los Angeles Dodgers swept the Yankees four straight in the World Series, Howard vowed he'd hit National League Most Valuable Player, pitcher Sandy Koufax.

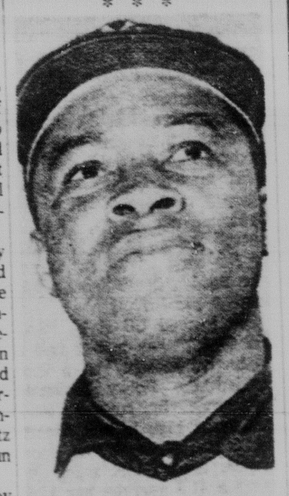
Howard, who led the Yankees at bat against the Dodgers, got four of his five hits off Koufax, spoiling Sandy's bid for a no-hitter in the opener, and fanned only once against the strikeout king.

"I've been kind of on edge waiting to see what would happen in the voting," Howard admitted. "I had hoped I had a chance."

Howard has played the outfield and first base as one of the most versatile of the Yankee multiposition athletes.

Missing 61 games in 1962 with a broken collarbone, outfielder Kaline finished second in the MVP voting, the batting race, .312, and the RBI competition, 101, with 27 homers.

Yastrzemski hit for a .321 average, giving the Red Sox their fourth Silver Bat winner in the past six years. He also led the league in hits, 183, and doubles, 40.



MOST VALUABLE—New York Yankees catcher Elston Howard, above, was named the American League's Most Valuable Player for 1963. Howard, 32, hit 28 home runs for the league champions. (AP Wirephoto)

Howard Surprised By Award

By GEORGE LANGFORD
UPI Sports Writer

TEANECK, N.J. (UPI)—"This is the greatest day of my life," Elston Howard said today, "but the most valuable player on our ball club wasn't even in the lineup — Mickey Mantle."

Howard sat at a card table in the dining room of his new home, boxes and crates piled around the walls, paneling yet unfinished, and his 4-year-old daughter, Karen, hugging his leg.

The 33-year-old New York Yankee catcher had just been informed of his 100-point victory in the American League's Most Valuable Player balloting.

"A lot of people kept saying I was going to win it but I really didn't think about it until the other morning I woke up at 5 o'clock and started thinking what an honor it would be," Howard said.

"I thought maybe (Al) Kaline (of Detroit) or Whitey (Ford of the Yankees) might get it," he said, "but I really think Mick is the most valuable—to us anyway."

Mantle was sidelined most of the 1963 season with knee and leg injuries and underwent surgery last month to correct it.

Elston Jr., 8, was creating a commotion in the basement, the door bell sounded, then the telephone rang.

"This is a madhouse," chuckled Howard. "We just moved in six days ago and I've been doing everything from planting shrubbery to building a rock garden."

"This selection makes my choice to play baseball rather than accept a college scholarship worthwhile, added Howard, the son of a high school principal in New Madrid, Mo. Howard was offered numerous college scholarships after an outstanding high school career in football, baseball and basketball.

"Baseball will let me give my children a college education and a nice home. I'll never regret my decision to enter baseball."

"A lot of people have helped me get this far — Bill Dickey, probably the most," he continued. "I've been very fortunate having four catchers — Dickey, Ralph Houk, Jim Hegan and Yogi Berra — to work with me."

Howard rated the 1963 Yankee pitching staff the best he has ever caught and disputed the talk that Berra, the new manager of the Yankees was "on the spot" or would have trouble controlling the Yankees.

"Yogi's got the ball club to win and he knows baseball real good," Howard stated. "He's in no more of a spot than Ralph was. You know he took over for a man (Casey Stengel) who had a few pennant winners himself.

"The players will fall in line," he concluded. "Yogi won't have any trouble."

150 Pro Golfers To Compete in Sinatra Tourney

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Some 150 professional golfers start taking pot-shots today at a pot of $50,000 in the first Sinatra Open invitational at the new Canyon Country Club course.

This is the largest pot ever put up for the opening of a PGA tournament but there's an explanation — sponsor Frank Sinatra is a well-heeled and a well-known singer.

The Sinatra fun-fest — modeled after that of his older pal, Bing Crosby, will be topped by a $10,000 pro-amateur 18-hole event Monday and an evening party at $35 a plate.

Profits go to boys' clubs in this area.

The 72-hole open invitational has attracted most of the nation's top pros who like the idea of the $9,000 first prize.

The field included: veteran Sam Snead who rarely gets his far West but has a nose for dollars; Tony Lema; Bill Casper; Gene Littler; Bob Nichols; Jack Cupit; Tommy Jacobs; George Bayer; and the Cajun brothers from Louisiana, Jay and Lionel Hebert.

Also entered were such relative newcomers as: Al Geiberger, winner of last weekend's Almaden Open; and Mason Rudolph, winner of the Fig Valley Open at Fresno, Calif., two weeks ago.

The National League set an attendance mark by drawing 11,382,233 fans in 1963.

Howard First Negro Named MVP in AL

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP) — Elston Howard, the take-charge catcher who spurred the hobbled New York Yankees to a fourth straight pennant, became the first Negro ever named the American League's Most Valuable Player Thursday.

The National League MVP has been a Negro 11 times in the past 15 years.

Howard amassed 248 points to 148 for runner-up Al Kaline of Detroit. The versatile backstop drew 15 first-place votes and was named on all 20 ballots cast by a Committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Southpaw pitching ace Whitey Ford of the Yankees was third with 125 points, including three firsts. He was followed by Minnesota slugger Harmon Killebrew with 85 and the Boston pair of Carl Yastrzemski and Dick Radatz. Outfielder Yastrzemski was the batting champion and relief pitcher Radatz posted the lowest earned run average of 1.98.

The vote was announced by BBWAA secretary Hy Hurwitz in Boston.

With his MVP predecessors Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris sidelined by injuries for sizable portions of the season, Howard led the league champions with a .287 batting average. The 6-foot-2, 205-pounder paced AL receivers with a .994 fielding average, was fifth in the league with 28 homers and eighth in runs batted in with 85.

"When something likes this happens, it makes baseball worthwhile," said Howard from his Teaneck, N.J. home into which he has just moved. "This is the greatest. You know, I was offered 35 or 40 college scholarships when I was in high school. I'm not sorry about choosing baseball, not now, especially."

The son of a New Madrid, Mo. high school principal, the 33-year-old Howard was master of the big, timely hit throughout the season.

Before the Los Angeles Dodgers swept the Yankees four straight in the World Series, Howard vowed he'd hit National League Most Valuable Player, pitcher Sandy Koufax.

Howard, who led the Yankees at bat against the Dodgers, got four of his five hits off Koufax, spoiling Sandy's bid for a no-hitter in the opener, and fanned only once against the strikeout king.

"I've been kind of on edge waiting to see what would happen in the voting," Howard admitted. "I had hoped I had a chance."

Howard has played the outfield and first base as one of the most versatile of the Yankee multiposition athletes.

Missing 61 games in 1962 with a broken collarbone, outfielder Kaline finished second in the the MVP voting, the batting race, .312, and the RBI competition, 101, with 27 homers.

Yastrzemski hit for a .321 average, giving the Red Sox their fourth Silver Bat winner in the past six years. He also led the league in hits, 183, and doubles, 40.

Howard Surprised By Award

By GEORGE LANGFORD
UPI Sports Writer

TEANECK, N.J. (UPI)—"This is the greatest day of my life," Elston Howard said today, "but the most valuable player on our ball club wasn't even in the lineup — Mickey Mantle."

Howard sat at a card table in the dining room of his new home, boxes and crates piled around the walls, paneling yet unfinished, and his 4-year-old daughter, Karen, hugging his leg.

The 33-year-old New York Yankee catcher had just been informed of his 100-point victory in the American League's Most Valuable Player balloting.

"A lot of people kept saying I was going to win it but I really didn't think about it until the other morning I woke up at 5 o'clock and started thinking what an honor it would be," Howard said.

"I thought maybe (Al) Kaline (of Detroit) or Whitey (Ford of the Yankees) might get it," he said, "but I really think Mick is the most valuable—to us anyway."

Mantle was sidelined most of the 1963 season with knee and leg injuries and underwent surgery last month to correct it.

Elston Jr., 8, was creating a commotion in the basement, the door bell sounded, then the telephone rang.

"This is a madhouse," chuckled Howard. "We just moved in six days ago and I've been doing everything from planting shrubbery to building a rock garden."

"This selection makes my choice to play baseball rather than accept a college scholarship worthwhile, added Howard, the son of a high school principal in New Madrid, Mo. Howard was offered numerous college scholarships after an outstanding high school career in football, baseball and basketball.

"Baseball will let me give my children a college education and a nice home. I'll never regret my decision to enter baseball."

"A lot of people have helped me get this far — Bill Dickey, probably the most," he continued. "I've been very fortunate having four catchers — Dickey, Ralph Houk, Jim Hegan and Yogi Berra — to work with me."

Howard rated the 1963 Yankee pitching staff the best he has ever caught and disputed the talk that Berra, the new manager of the Yankees was "on the spot" or would have trouble controlling the Yankees.

"Yogi's got the ball club to win and he knows baseball real good," Howard stated. "He's in no more of a spot than Ralph was. You know he took over for a man (Casey Stengel) who had a few pennant winners himself.

"The players will fall in line," he concluded. "Yogi won't have any trouble."

150 Pro Golfers To Compete in Sinatra Tourney

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Some 150 professional golfers start taking pot-shots today at a pot of $50,000 in the first Sinatra Open invitational at the new Canyon Country Club course.

This is the largest pot ever put up for the opening of a PGA tournament but there's an explanation — sponsor Frank Sinatra is a well-heeled and a well-known singer.

The Sinatra fun-fest — modeled after that of his older pal, Bing Crosby, will be topped by a $10,000 pro-amateur 18-hole event Monday and an evening party at $35 a plate.

Profits go to boys' clubs in this area.

The 72-hole open invitational has attracted most of the nation's top pros who like the idea of the $9,000 first prize.

The field included: veteran Sam Snead who rarely gets his far West but has a nose for dollars; Tony Lema; Bill Casper; Gene Littler; Bob Nichols; Jack Cupit; Tommy Jacobs; George Bayer; and the Cajun brothers from Louisiana, Jay and Lionel Hebert.

Also entered were such relative newcomers as: Al Geiberger, winner of last weekend's Almaden Open; and Mason Rudolph, winner of the Fig Valley Open at Fresno, Calif., two weeks ago.

The National League set an attendance mark by drawing 11,382,233 fans in 1963.

Clay Stapleton Lauds Star Fullback, Vaughn

By United Press International

Iowa State coach Clay Stapleton had praise for star fullback Tom Vaughn Wednesday.

"That Vaughn is simply great, isn't he?" Stapleton asked. Vaughn is second in the nation in rushing.

"He can go both ways, up the middle or around the end," the Cyclone mentor added.

But the Oklahoma Sooners may have something to say about Vaughn's sweeps and plunges Saturday when the two foes meet at Norman.

The Sooners bumped through a rugged 90 - minute drill of their defensive game Wednesday.

The drills consisted of sets of from one to four defenders working against alternate offensive backfields.

Reduced swelling in Nebraska quarterback Dennis Claridge's foot Wednesday improved his chances of seeing action against Kansas at Lincoln Saturday.

If the big, speedy senior can't play, coach Bob Devaney said Fred Duda will direct the Cyclone offense and Dick Callahan will work in the defense.

Kansas' George Wroley, a flanker back, and guard Ron Marsh, were expected to be ready to make the trip after being scratched from the injury list.

Despite the fact that Missouri is favored to defeat Colorado, coach Dan Devine was his usual gloomy self Wednesday.

Missouri tackle Dave Gill reinjured his ankle and was listed as a doubtful starter Saturday and end George Seal, also injured, was definitely out for the Colorado clash.

Devine said he didn't know whether Missouri would play the statistics against Colorado, which has given up the most yards through passing in the conference.

"We outpassed Nebraska, but still didn't beat them," Devine said.

Oklahoma State coach Phil Cutchin wasn't satisfied with the progress of his squad in preparation for an inter - conference tussle with Tulsa at Stillwater, Saturday.

"We've got to get to the point that we can recognize those different Tulsa sets and I'm glad we've still got two more days to learn them," Cutchin, said.

At Kansas State, linebacker Mike Penrod moved from defensive center to tackle to replace injured Dennis Winfrey and sophomore Phil King moved to replace injured linebacker Leroy Borre. Jim Cooper moved into the position emptied by Penrod's move.

Kansas State goes to Lubbock, Tex., for a meeting with Texas Tech Saturday.

Seals Look Like WHL's Best Team

By United Press International

Contenders for this season's title in the Western Hockey League may find it extremely difficult to shake the San Francisco Seals out from under the crown.

Coach Bud Poile's troops are leading the league standings with 14 points, although they've played only two games at home —and in hockey, the home team usually has the advantage.

Ironically, the Seals are all even at home, but rolled up five victories and two ties against three defeats during a month-long road trip. They lost their home opener to Los Angeles, and got their first victory before hometown fans Wednesday night by downing Vancouver, 3-1.

Mo Mantha and Tom Thurlby scored in the first period Wednesday night, and Len Haley hit the net in the second to give the Seals a 3-0 lead. Vancouver got its only goal in the third when Buddy Boone bounced one past Seal goalie Bob Perreault.

In tonight's only game, the Portland Buckaroos go against the Blades at Los Angeles.

The Blades, currently tied for last place with Vancouver, made an effort to put "some startch" in their defense Wednesday by acquiring Connie Madigan from the Denver Invaders.

Madigan was one of eight players Denver inherited from the now-defunct Spokane Comets when the franchise was shifted to Colorado this year. The rugged and aggressive 29-year-old defenseman has led the Invaders in penalties this year.

New Mexico Practices Under Lights

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) —For the second straight practice session the New Mexico Lobos were on the field until after dark Wednesday in preparation for Saturday's game against Wyoming.

Coach Bill Weeks, who termed Wyoming's line play "the best we have seen all year," concentrated on offense in the workout, the majority of the work being done on the passing attack.

New Mexico, defending champion of the Western Athletic Conference, and Wyoming play the only WAC game of the week. The Lobos are 0-1 in conference play, while Wyoming is 2-1.

Weeks said he thinks his team will be ready for a good effort Saturday.

There's 'Sudden Death' Awaiting Colorado College Gridiron Foes

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado College's football team doesn't show up anywhere in this year's small college rankings—but when it comes to characters the Tigers are a shoo-in for first place, at least in the Rocky Mountain area.

When a squad gets slapped with scores like 50-0 (Western State) and 47-6 (Adams State) on successive weekends, some comic relief is needed. CC certainly has it in the person of Steve "Sudden Death" Sabol, self-proclaimed rescue-worker for the sport at the Tejon Street campus.

Sabol, in addition to being the team's leading rusher and one of the outstanding kickers in the region, is the Colorado Springs counterpart to Cassius Clay.

"SUDDEN DEATH" ON THE PROWL — Colorado College is not the most renowned football school around these days—but it does have one of the better known players. Steve "Sudden Death" Sabol embarked on a personal publicity campaign over a year ago that paid off recently with wire stories which carried across the country. Aside from his obvious flair for public relations, Sabol is also a better-than-average football player. He leads the Tigers in rushing and is one of the area's finest kickers.

Altho he is somewhat less vocal than the Louisville Lip, Sabol nevertheless makes his point.

A preface to his heroics in the promotional field appeared last fall when Sabol became an advertiser in the Colorado College football program. The product he was selling was Sabol and the effort was so successful that he doubled the campaign in 1963. CC's present gridiron program has a pair of ads, one which is responsible for the "Sudden Death" tag. Resplendent with picture of the Tigers' fullback at about Young America age, it carries the message:

"The Possum Trot Chamber of Commerce extends its wishes for a successful season to its favorite son — 'Sudden Death' Sabol."

Possum Trot, for the uninitiated, is a mythical berg in Mississippi. Altho Sabol actually hails from Villanova, Penn., he claims Possum Trot and would certainly have to rank as its most famous citizen.

The illustrated advertisement is the most noticeable, but for those with the patience to scan further, there is additional reward in the CC folio. Somewhere around the middle of this handsome publication, "Sudden Death" strikes again. It reads:

"The girls at Colt's Corner wish Sudden Death Sabol a productive season."

For football CC style, "Sudden Death" has indeed had a productive season. For a time he led the Rocky Mountain Conference in rushing and still ranks high in that department. He is one of the finest punters around this area, carrying a 41.5 average per kick. That places him ninth in the nation among small colleges. In addition, Sabol is a fine place kicker—an almost automatic weapon on extra points. The only problem with that part of his game is the fact that CC doesn't score too often.

No one enjoys Sabol's antics more than CC coach, Jerry Carle, who has nothing but praise for his tongue-in-cheek fullback. "He is the team leader —a real sparkplug for us," Carle says. "To give you an idea of his attitude, he realized after last season that we were going to need a kicker this year. So he worked on that all summer and he's been outstanding for us this fall."

Carle may have had a few reservations about the advertising bit but Sabol quickly wiped them away. "I'm colorful," he explained to the CC coach. Carle, who has seen little color other than blood-red during the past few seasons, could hardly disagree.

"Sudden Death", along with the less-advertised members of the CC team, will make his final appearance of the season at Washburn Field Saturday afternoon. The Tigers meet Doane College of Crete, Nebr. that day and will be favored to post their fourth victory of the season. Doane is nowhere in the class of RMC foes Western State and Adams State who have combined for 97 points to just six for CC the past two weekends.

Actually, aside from an early season glimpse, the Tigers have little information about Doane. The reverse is probably also true, with the exception of Sabol. If newspapers are available in the Nebraska town, "Sudden Death" should be a topic of conversation. His public relations drive was recently rewarded with wire stories that carried to most sections of the nation.

The stories played up the Sabol technique of program advertisement, while lending further reknown to the town of Possum Trot. Curious readers may be a bit perplexed over the mention of "Sudden Death's" home town. It doesn't appear on the map.

But, then, neither did CC until "Sudden Death" Sabol came along!

CC Stars Rank High In Stats

Two Rocky Mountain Conference football warriors dominated the statistical picture this week.

Greg Cory, Colorado Mines quarterback, held on to his lead in total offense with 664 yards and in passing with 35 completed in 72 for 602 yards. His percentage of completions is .486 and he has flipped 7 touchdown passes.

Clyde Wilson, halfback for the unbeaten, untied Western State Mountaineers, leads in rushing with 464 yards for an average of 7.2 per carry and in scoring with 48 points.

Steve Sabol of Colorado College is second in rushing with 386 yards for a 4.2 average, and second in over-all offense with his teammate, Dave Welch, is second in over-all offense with 530 yards.

Another CC Tiger, end Lee Muller, is the league's top pass catcher with 29 for 275 yards. The punting lead belongs to George Brinkworth, Colorado Mines end, who has averaged 42.6 yards for 26 kicks.

Once again, team laurels are monopolized by Western State. The Mountaineers have averaged 342.2 yards per game aged 342.2 yards per game rushing and 3 passing against 156.4 for their opponents. They have given up only 27 enemy points, an average of less than 4 per game, while scoring at a 30.4-point clip themselves.

New CC Hockey Coach Sets Tigers' First Scrimmage

The Colorado College hockey team will hold its first full scrimmage at 5 p.m. Saturday when the "Blacks" take on the "Golds."

New Coach Bob Johnson will split his squad into two groups, each playing three 20-minute periods on the new campus ice rink. Officials will be used and the scrimmage will resemble game conditions in all respects.

Johnson plans to start junior Roger Simon at center for the Blacks. Simon, from St. Paul, was a crowd pleaser last year with his hustling leadership of the Tiger third line. Flanking Simon will be senior John Simus, letterman from Minneapolis and junior Bob Magie, from Duluth, Minn., who played the last half of the 1962-1963 season after Alex Yankovich was injured.

An all-sophomore line with Dave Peterson of St. Paul, Minn.; Bob Otto of Edmonton, Alta.; and Glen Blumer of International Falls, Minn., will relieve for the Blacks.

The blue line corps will find junior Dave Scrim of Ottawa, Ont., teaming with sophomore Doug Whitney of Seattle, Wash., for one shift. Scrim played briefly last season and Whitney is attempting to be the first American from the West Coast to play collegiate hockey. Senior Marv Parliament of Cochran, Ont., will team with sophomore Steve Kopesky of St. Paul, Minn., for the other defensive pair.

The Golds will start veteran Jeff Sauer, junior from St. Paul, at center with senior Wayne McAlpine of Schumacher, Ont., and Ron Rishagen, junior from Trail, B.C., at wings. Reno VanPutten, senior from Minneapolis, will center wings Charles Mason and Steve Ebert. Mason, of Hancock, Mich., is a junior returning to school after a year's absence and Ebert is a sophomore from Grand Forks, N.D.

Sophomore David Palm of Fargo, N.D., and junior Tom Brindley of St. Paul will form one defensive unit and converted wing Ken Hanson, senior from Minneapolis, will team with freshman Dick Garvey of St. Paul, for the other. Two year letterman Art Warwick, senior from Port Arthur, Ont., will be in the nets for the "Gold" team.

Trinidad Rated Ninth in Poll

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — Trinidad Junior College is rated ninth in the season's final poll of football coaches by the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Dixe of St. George, Utah, seventh in the poll, and McCook, Neb., is 10th.

The leader, for the fifth consecutive week, is Northeastern Oklahoma, which has an unbeaten season. Northeastern's only remaining game will be Nov. 14 against Coffeyville, Kan., rated 12th.

Cameron of Lawton, Okla., is second and Mason City, Iowa, is third.

Hawks, Celts Extend NBA Win Streaks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Make it seven in a row for Boston in the National Basketball Association in their usual manner, and make it six in a row for St. Louis in an unusual manner.

The Hawks did it with missed foul shots.

The Celtics remained unbeaten behind a brigade of double figure scorers, overwhelming Cincinnati's Royals 139-121 Wednesday night. The Hawks, however, needed every point they could get in a 112-110 victory over Baltimore.

They got them from the foul line, making 22 of 24. And the two that missed were tapped in by Zelmo Beaty for two-pointers. That little extra was the margin of victory.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers staved off a late New York rally and edged the Knicks 111-109, and Detroit ended a four-game losing streak by defeating Philadelphia 119-101.

Sam Jones was high for the Celtics with 28 points while Tom Sanders contributed 19 and Willie Naulls 116. Oscar Robertosn was tops for the Royals with 24 while Jerry Lucas added 20 and pulled down 19 rebounds, the same as Boston's Bill Russell.

Clay Stapleton Lauds Star Fullback, Vaughn

By United Press International

Iowa State coach Clay Stapleton had praise for star fullback Tom Vaughn Wednesday.

"That Vaughn is simply great, isn't he?" Stapleton asked. Vaughn is second in the nation in rushing.

"He can go both ways, up the middle or around the end," the Cyclone mentor added.

But the Oklahoma Sooners may have something to say about Vaughn's sweeps and plunges Saturday when the two foes meet at Norman.

The Sooners bumped through a rugged 90 - minute drill of their defensive game Wednesday.

The drills consisted of sets of from one to four defenders working against alternate offensive backfields.

Reduced swelling in Nebraska quarterback Dennis Claridge's foot Wednesday improved his chances of seeing action against Kansas at Lincoln Saturday.

If the big, speedy senior can't play, coach Bob Devaney said Fred Duda will direct the Cyclone offense and Dick Callahan will work in the defense.

Kansas' George Wroley, a flanker back, and guard Ron Marsh, were expected to be ready to make the trip after being scratched from the injury list.

Despite the fact that Missouri is favored to defeat Colorado, coach Dan Devine was his usual gloomy self Wednesday.

Missouri tackle Dave Gill reinjured his ankle and was listed as a doubtful starter Saturday and end George Seal, also injured, was definitely out for the Colorado clash.

Devine said he didn't know whether Missouri would play the statistics against Colorado, which has given up the most yards through passing in the conference.

"We outpassed Nebraska, but still didn't beat them," Devine said.

Oklahoma State coach Phil Cutchin wasn't satisfied with the progress of his squad in preparation for an inter - conference tussle with Tulsa at Stillwater, Saturday.

"We've got to get to the point that we can recognize those different Tulsa sets and I'm glad we've still got two more days to learn them," Cutchin, said.

At Kansas State, linebacker Mike Penrod moved from defensive center to tackle to replace injured Dennis Winfrey and sophomore Phil King moved to replace injured linebacker Leroy Borre. Jim Cooper moved into the position emptied by Penrod's move.

Kansas State goes to Lubbock, Tex., for a meeting with Texas Tech Saturday.

There's 'Sudden Death' Awaiting Colorado College Gridiron Foes

But, then, neither did CC until "Sudden Death" Sabol came along!

CC Stars Rank High In Stats

Two Rocky Mountain Conference football warriors dominated the statistical picture this week.

Greg Cory, Colorado Mines quarterback, held on to his lead in total offense with 664 yards and in passing with 35 completed in 72 for 602 yards. His percentage of completions is .486 and he has flipped 7 touchdown passes.

Clyde Wilson, halfback for the unbeaten, untied Western State Mountaineers, leads in rushing with 464 yards for an average of 7.2 per carry and in scoring with 48 points.

Steve Sabol of Colorado College is second in rushing with 386 yards for a 4.2 average, and second in over-all offense with his teammate, Dave Welch, is second in over-all offense with 530 yards.

Another CC Tiger, end Lee Muller, is the league's top pass catcher with 29 for 275 yards. The punting lead belongs to George Brinkworth, Colorado Mines end, who has averaged 42.6 yards for 26 kicks.

Once again, team laurels are monopolized by Western State. The Mountaineers have averaged 342.2 yards per game aged 342.2 yards per game rushing and 3 passing against 156.4 for their opponents. They have given up only 27 enemy points, an average of less than 4 per game, while scoring at a 30.4-point clip themselves.

Seals Look Like WHL's Best Team

By United Press International

Contenders for this season's title in the Western Hockey League may find it extremely difficult to shake the San Francisco Seals out from under the crown.

Coach Bud Poile's troops are leading the league standings with 14 points, although they've played only two games at home—and in hockey, the home team usually has the advantage.

Ironically, the Seals are all even at home, but rolled up five victories and two ties against three defeats during a month-long road trip. They lost their home opener to Los Angeles, and got their first victory before hometown fans Wednesday night by downing Vancouver, 3-1.

Mo Mantha and Tom Thurlby scored in the first period Wednesday night, and Len Haley hit the net in the second to give the Seals a 3-0 lead. Vancouver got its only goal in the third when Buddy Boone bounced one past Seal goalie Bob Perreault.

In tonight's only game, the Portland Buckaroos go against the Blades at Los Angeles.

The Blades, currently tied for last place with Vancouver, made an effort to put "some startch" in their defense Wednesday by acquiring Connie Madigan from the Denver Invaders.

Madigan was one of eight players Denver inherited from the now-defunct Spokane Comets when the franchise was shifted to Colorado this year. The rugged and aggressive 29-year-old defenseman has led the Invaders in penalties this year.

New CC Hockey Coach Sets Tigers' First Scrimmage

The Colorado College hockey team will hold its first full scrimmage at 5 p.m. Saturday when the "Blacks" take on the "Golds."

New Coach Bob Johnson will split his squad into two groups, each playing three 20-minute periods on the new campus ice rink. Officials will be used and the scrimmage will resemble game conditions in all respects.

Johnson plans to start junior Roger Simon at center for the Blacks. Simon, from St. Paul, was a crowd pleaser last year with his hustling leadership of the Tiger third line. Flanking Simon will be senior John Simus, letterman from Minneapolis and junior Bob Magie, from Duluth, Minn., who played the last half of the 1962-1963 season after Alex Yankovich was injured.

An all-sophomore line with Dave Peterson of St. Paul, Minn.; Bob Otto of Edmonton, Alta.; and Glen Blumer of International Falls, Minn., will relieve for the Blacks.

The blue line corps will find junior Dave Scrim of Ottawa, Ont., teaming with sophomore Doug Whitney of Seattle, Wash., for one shift. Scrim played briefly last season and Whitney is attempting to be the first American from the West Coast to play collegiate hockey. Senior Marv Parliament of Cochran, Ont., will team with sophomore Steve Kopesky of St. Paul, Minn., for the other defensive pair.

The Golds will start veteran Jeff Sauer, junior from St. Paul, at center with senior Wayne McAlpine of Schumacher, Ont., and Ron Rishagen, junior from Trail, B.C., at wings. Reno VanPutten, senior from Minneapolis, will center wings Charles Mason and Steve Ebert. Mason, of Hancock, Mich., is a junior returning to school after a year's absence and Ebert is a sophomore from Grand Forks, N.D.

Sophomore David Palm of Fargo, N.D., and junior Tom Brindley of St. Paul will form one defensive unit and converted wing Ken Hanson, senior from Minneapolis, will team with freshman Dick Garvey of St. Paul, for the other. Two year letterman Art Warwick, senior from Port Arthur, Ont., will be in the nets for the "Gold" team.

New Mexico Practices Under Lights

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) —For the second straight practice session the New Mexico Lobos were on the field until after dark Wednesday in preparation for Saturday's game against Wyoming.

Coach Bill Weeks, who termed Wyoming's line play "the best we have seen all year," concentrated on offense in the workout, the majority of the work being done on the passing attack.

New Mexico, defending champion of the Western Athletic Conference, and Wyoming play the only WAC game of the week. The Lobos are 0-1 in conference play, while Wyoming is 2-1.

Weeks said he thinks his team will be ready for a good effort Saturday.

Hawks, Celts Extend NBA Win Streaks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Make it seven in a row for Boston in the National Basketball Association in their usual manner, and make it six in a row for St. Louis in an unusual manner.

The Hawks did it with missed foul shots.

The Celtics remained unbeaten behind a brigade of double figure scorers, overwhelming Cincinnati's Royals 139-121 Wednesday night. The Hawks, however, needed every point they could get in a 112-110 victory over Baltimore.

They got them from the foul line, making 22 of 24. And the two that missed were tapped in by Zelmo Beaty for two-pointers. That little extra was the margin of victory.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers staved off a late New York rally and edged the Knicks 111-109, and Detroit ended a four-game losing streak by defeating Philadelphia 119-101.

Sam Jones was high for the Celtics with 28 points while Tom Sanders contributed 19 and Willie Naulls 116. Oscar Robertosn was tops for the Royals with 24 while Jerry Lucas added 20 and pulled down 19 rebounds, the same as Boston's Bill Russell.

Clay Stapleton Lauds Star Fullback, Vaughn

By United Press International

Iowa State coach Clay Stapleton had praise for star fullback Tom Vaughn Wednesday.

"That Vaughn is simply great, isn't he?" Stapleton asked. Vaughn is second in the nation in rushing.

"He can go both ways, up the middle or around the end," the Cyclone mentor added.

But the Oklahoma Sooners may have something to say about Vaughn's sweeps and plunges Saturday when the two foes meet at Norman.

The Sooners bumped through a rugged 90 - minute drill of their defensive game Wednesday.

The drills consisted of sets of from one to four defenders working against alternate offensive backfields.

Reduced swelling in Nebraska quarterback Dennis Claridge's foot Wednesday improved his chances of seeing action against Kansas at Lincoln Saturday.

If the big, speedy senior can't play, coach Bob Devaney said Fred Duda will direct the Cyclone offense and Dick Callahan will work in the defense.

Kansas' George Wroley, a flanker back, and guard Ron Marsh, were expected to be ready to make the trip after being scratched from the injury list.

Despite the fact that Missouri is favored to defeat Colorado, coach Dan Devine was his usual gloomy self Wednesday.

Missouri tackle Dave Gill reinjured his ankle and was listed as a doubtful starter Saturday and end George Seal, also injured, was definitely out for the Colorado clash.

Devine said he didn't know whether Missouri would play the statistics against Colorado, which has given up the most yards through passing in the conference.

"We outpassed Nebraska, but still didn't beat them," Devine said.

Oklahoma State coach Phil Cutchin wasn't satisfied with the progress of his squad in preparation for an inter - conference tussle with Tulsa at Stillwater, Saturday.

"We've got to get to the point that we can recognize those different Tulsa sets and I'm glad we've still got two more days to learn them," Cutchin, said.

At Kansas State, linebacker Mike Penrod moved from defensive center to tackle to replace injured Dennis Winfrey and sophomore Phil King moved to replace injured linebacker Leroy Borre. Jim Cooper moved into the position emptied by Penrod's move.

Kansas State goes to Lubbock, Tex., for a meeting with Texas Tech Saturday.

There's 'Sudden Death' Awaiting Colorado College Gridiron Foes

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado College's football team doesn't show up anywhere in this year's small college rankings—but when it comes to characters the Tigers are a shoo-in for first place, at least in the Rocky Mountain area.

When a squad gets slapped with scores like 50-0 (Western State) and 47-6 (Adams State) on successive weekends, some comic relief is needed. CC certainly has it in the person of Steve "Sudden Death" Sabol, self-proclaimed rescue-worker for the sport at the Tejon Street campus.

Sabol, in addition to being the team's leading rusher and one of the outstanding kickers in the region, is the Colorado Springs counterpart to Cassius Clay.

"SUDDEN DEATH" ON THE PROWL — Colorado College is not the most renowned football school around these days—but it does have one of the better known players. Steve "Sudden Death" Sabol embarked on a personal publicity campaign over a year ago that paid off recently with wire stories which carried across the country. Aside from his obvious flair for public relations, Sabol is also a better-than-average football player. He leads the Tigers in rushing and is one of the area's finest kickers.

Altho he is somewhat less vocal than the Louisville Lip, Sabol nevertheless makes his point.

A preface to his heroics in the promotional field appeared last fall when Sabol became an advertiser in the Colorado College football program. The product he was selling was Sabol and the effort was so successful that he doubled the campaign in 1963. CC's present gridiron program has a pair of ads, one which is responsible for the "Sudden Death" tag. Resplendent with picture of the Tigers' fullback at about Young American age, it carries the message:

"The Possum Trot Chamber of Commerce extends its wishes for a successful season to its favorite son — 'Sudden Death' Sabol."

Possum Trot, for the uninitiated, is a mythical berg in Mississippi. Altho Sabol actually hails from Villanova, Penn., he claims Possum Trot and would certainly have to rank as its most famous citizen.

The illustrated advertisement is the most noticeable, but for those with the patience to scan further, there is additional reward in the CC folio. Somewhere around the middle of this handsome publication, "Sudden Death" strikes again. It reads:

"The girls at Colt's Corner wish Sudden Death Sabol a productive season."

For football CC style, "Sudden Death" has indeed had a productive season. For a time he led the Rocky Mountain Conference in rushing and still ranks high in that department. He is one of the finest punters around this area, carrying a 41.5 average per kick. That places him ninth in the nation among small colleges. In addition, Sabol is a fine place kicker—an almost automatic weapon on extra points. The only problem with that part of his game is the fact that CC doesn't score too often.

No one enjoys Sabol's antics more than CC coach, Jerry Carle, who has nothing but praise for his tongue-in-cheek fullback. "He is the team leader—a real sparkplug for us," Carle says. "To give you an idea of his attitude, he realized after last season that we were going to need a kicker this year. So he worked on that all summer and he's been outstanding for us this fall."

Carle may have had a few reservations about the advertising bit but Sabol quickly wiped them away. "I'm colorful," he explained to the CC coach. Carle, who has seen little color other than blood-red during the past few seasons, could hardly disagree.

"Sudden Death", along with the less-advertised members of the CC team, will make his final appearance of the season at Washburn Field Saturday afternoon. The Tigers meet Doane College of Crete, Nebr. that day and will be favored to post their fourth victory of the season. Doane is nowhere in the class of RMC foes Western State and Adams State who have combined for 97 points to just six for CC the past two weekends.

Actually, aside from an early season glimpse, the Tigers have little information about Doane. The reverse is probably also true, with the exception of Sabol. If newspapers are available in the Nebraska town, "Sudden Death" should be a topic of conversation. His public relations drive was recently rewarded with wire stories that carried to most sections of the nation.

The stories played up the Sabol technique of program advertisement, while lending further reknown to the town of Possum Trot. Curious readers may be a bit perplexed over the mention of "Sudden Death's" home town. It doesn't appear on the map.

But, then, neither did CC until "Sudden Death" Sabol came along!

CC Stars Rank High In Stats

Two Rocky Mountain Conference football warriors dominated the statistical picture this week.

Greg Cory, Colorado Mines quarterback, held on to his lead in total offense with 664 yards and in passing with 35 completed in 72 for 602 yards. His percentage of completions is .486 and he has flipped 7 touchdown passes.

Clyde Wilson, halfback for the unbeaten, untied Western State Mountaineers, leads in rushing with 464 yards for an average of 7.2 per carry and in scoring with 48 points.

Steve Sabol of Colorado College is second in rushing with 386 yards for a 4.2 average, and second in over-all offense with his teammate, Dave Welch, is second in over-all offense with 530 yards.

Another CC Tiger, end Lee Muller, is the league's top pass catcher with 29 for 275 yards. The punting lead belongs to George Brinkworth, Colorado Mines end, who has averaged 42.6 yards for 26 kicks.

Once again, team laurels are monopolized by Western State. The Mountaineers have averaged 342.2 yards per game aged 342.2 yards per game rushing and 3 passing against 156.4 for their opponents. They have given up only 27 enemy points, an average of less than 4 per game, while scoring at a 30.4-point clip themselves.

Seals Look Like WHL's Best Team

By United Press International

Contenders for this season's title in the Western Hockey League may find it extremely difficult to shake the San Francisco Seals out from under the crown.

Coach Bud Poile's troops are leading the league standings with 14 points, although they've played only two games at home—and in hockey, the home team usually has the advantage.

Ironically, the Seals are all even at home, but rolled up five victories and two ties against three defeats during a month-long road trip. They lost their home opener to Los Angeles, and got their first victory before hometown fans Wednesday night by downing Vancouver, 3-1.

Mo Mantha and Tom Thurlby scored in the first period Wednesday night, and Len Haley hit the net in the second to give the Seals a 3-0 lead. Vancouver got its only goal in the third when Buddy Boone bounced one past Seal goalie Bob Perreault.

In tonight's only game, the Portland Buckaroos go against the Blades at Los Angeles.

The Blades, currently tied for last place with Vancouver, made an effort to put "some startch" in their defense Wednesday by acquiring Connie Madigan from the Denver Invaders.

Madigan was one of eight players Denver inherited from the now-defunct Spokane Comets when the franchise was shifted to Colorado this year. The rugged and aggressive 29-year-old defenseman has led the Invaders in penalties this year.

St. Mary's to Conclude Season In Saturday Date With Indians

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Faced with a formidable task last September of re-building a winning squad, Chuck Haering's youthful Pirates—defenders of the 1962 Denver Parochial League title—completed this year's DPL slate with a 7-2 record, and copped second place in loop standings.

The St. Mary's aggregation played its last DPL campaign of the season last Sunday, and the Bucs pulled out a 6-0 squeeker over highly improved St. Francis.

But the shouting isn't over. The Pirates march into Cheyenne Mountain Stadium this Saturday afternoon for their annual inter-city rivalry against the Indians; winners of the 1963 Pikes Peak League title. Kick off time is set for 1:30 p.m.

Altho this contest may be anticlimactic for the St. Mary's crew because of the losing bid for the DPL crown, the Pirates will be out seeking a victory which would add prestige to their record.

However, the Bucs will have their work cut out for them as Eldon Helm's high scoring Indians are undefeated in eight straight games. Altho the Tribe will be minus their ramrod-fullback, Greg Cramblit, who is recovering in the hospital from a cleet spike infection in his shin, the Cheyenne team still rates as a two-touchdown favorite.

Cramblit leads the Tribe's attack as the 182-pound fullback has tallied 15 six-pointers. But the Indians boast a triple-threat quarterback in Gary Graham, who leads the PPL scoring race with 93 points. The Tribe's fastest runner, Bob Richardson, may be sidelined from Saturday's encounter because of a hip pointer.

Offensively, Haering is slated to start Jerry Knauf at quarterback, Sam Zavatti at fullback, Chris White at slot-back in place of the ailing Bruce Mangerich who suffered a sprained ankle, while Dave Adamson and Gary Dobson battle for the starting nod at the running-back position.

Looking over this year's respectable won-loss record, Haering summed up the Pirates' endeavors when he stated, "Considering that we only had six returning letterman, our kids played beyond our expectations. It is difficult to single out any one player who played outstanding this season, but rather it was a combined team effort."

Haering gave special recognition to the defensive specialists, the "Outlaws," for their outstanding work containing the DPL teams especially on pass coverage. The "Outlaws" only allowed 28 pass completions out of 111 attempts in nine league games.

The Pirates' offensive charge, spearheaded by junior quarterback Knauf, clicked for 23 of 58 pass attempts with this week's Gazette Telegraph Lineman of the Week awardee, end David Grantz, leading the way in receptions. Grantz has pulled down 14 aerials and has accumulated 228 yards, while Mangerich has compiled 175 yards on five passes including four TD receptions.

At the onset of the season the St. Mary's pilot, in his second term as bossman of the Pirates grid team, indicated that the Bucs would be forced to play the control-type offense going for the short yardage.

But with the help of his lieutenants, Haering came up with a potent passing attack directed by Knauf. Haering lauded his coaching assistants, and had special words of praise for former Colorado College quarterback, Eddie Kintz. The Pirate mentor credited his team's passing success directly to Kintz's work with the Bucs passing ace, Knauf. Haering also gave credit to his line coach, Jerry Woods, and "B" squad coach, Dan Wright, for their major contributions.

St. Mary's bread - 'n - butter ground gainer, Zavatti, despite a mid-season injury, leads the Pirates in rushing as the 152-pound hard-charging back picked up 634 net yards on 124 carries. But the most astounding feat the junior fullback accomplished was only losing seven yards in nine games. This is quite remarkable for a non-letterman, altho Zavatti gained 375 yards last year as a sophomore he was not awarded a letter.

In addition to his performance as a consistent ground gainer, Zavatti also excelled on defensive. Zavatti closed out the DPL slate as the Bucs' leading scoring with 48 points via eight TD's.

Jim Shearer mustered 251 yards to earn the second berth on the Pirates rushing roster. But it was converted guard Adamson that completed the season the strongest. Against St. Francis last Sunday, the 165-pound running-back outpaced his teammates in rushing with 59 yards. Adamson was switched to the running-back position three weeks ago and since that time he has accumulated 224 yards to rate the third spot behind Zaxatti and Shearer.

Rote's Air Bombardments Highlights AFL Last Week

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Tobin Rote showed the kids how the game is played Saturday when he passed for 369 yards and three touchdowns and scored once in San Diego's 53-7 rout of the New York Jets. If that doesn't make a man Player of the Week in the American Football League, what does?

Rote's bailout man, John Hadl, was the first AFL star a few weeks back but there was no need of any help against the Jets. The 35-year-old quarterback, a pro since 1950 at Green Bay, Detroit and Toronto, completed 21 of 29 passes.

Detroit fans never will forget how Rote stepped into the quarterback job in 1957 after Bobby Layne was forced out with a broken leg. Tobin led the Lions to a 59-14 ramble over Cleveland in the NFL championship game.

Rote probably will be in another title game Dec. 22 because his San Diego team leads the Western Division of the AFL by 1½ games with a 6-2 record and six to go.

Bob Suci, Boston defensive back, should get an award for the most satisfying moment of the week. Released by the Houston Oilers in the final cut, the second-year pro from Michigan State, made an interception and ran 98 yards for Boston's fourth touchdown Friday night in a 45-3 shocker over Houston.

Carling World Golf Tourney Next August

By CHARLES C. CAIN

DETROIT (AP) — Golfers from 60 countries will shoot at a $200,000 jackpot in the first Carling World Open Golf Championship at nearby Oakland Hills Country Club next August.

Details of the tournament, which has a $35,000 first prize, were disclosed Wednesday night by Richard Taylor, Carling's tourney director. He said the first round will begin Aug. 27.

Taylor returned last week from a world tour during which he worked out details of nine sectional tournaments in which the world's top golfers, professional and amateur, will compete.

Czechoslovakia is expected to be the only Communist country represented.

Taylor said Russia has not known good golfers and the same holds true of the other Iron Curtain countries.

The U.S. State Department gave tournament sponsors assurance that it would grant visas to any contestants, including Communists, except those from Communist China, North Korea and Albania, none of which is recognized by the U.S. government.

Each foreign player will have to qualify in his own country, Taylor said. For example, Gary Player, who has competed in many pro tournaments in the United States for the past few years, will have to qualify in his home country, South Africa.

The field will include 105 U.S. golfers. About 50 to 55 of them, including the top pros of the nation, will be picked by next July based on their showing in PGA tournaments.

In order to permit some of the lesser known local and regional U.S. pros to have a chance to qualify for the Carling Tournament, Carling will pick approximately 45 others based on their showing in some of next year's PGA events, winding up with the Hartford, Conn., Open July 26.

There will be 35 foreign entries, plus 10 other winners of certain golf tournaments designated by Carling to bring the field to about 145.

Tournament sponsors said it will be televised nationally in the United States and may be shown in Europe via Telstar if technical arrangements can be made.

Panthers' Tom Elliott Shines in PPL Action

Success in today's scientific brand of football generates from the line. Without the protection, and proficient workings of the unselfish linemen a team's success would be nill.

Perhaps this explains the success enjoyed by the Panthers of Harrison. Terry MacKey's Panthers were selected as possible "dark horse" competitors in the Pikes Peak League pennant chase. But the Harrison aggregation, spearheaded by an aggressive line, will undoubtedly capture its sixth victory against winless Leadville this Saturday to cop second place in PPL standings.

Tom Elliott, the Panthers leading defender in the line, is one of seven key linemen responsible for making the Harrison team the second best squad in the PPL.

Rated by his coach as an excellent blocker and a demon on defense, Elliott also possesses a keen competitive attitude; he doesn't like to lose. This was obvious when the Panthers defeated defending PPL champions from Air Academy High in a crucial game last month.

Altho much credit goes to the Panther backfield, it was Elliott's defensive play which had direct bearing in stopping the Kadets. On three occasions the 175-pound tackle crashed thru the Big Blue forward wall to throw the opposition for a loss, and stop their scoring threat.

It was doubtful at the time, however, that the cheering Panther fans realized it was Elliott's defensive play which played a major part in turning back the Academy High team. Elliott is one of many linemen that are the unsung heroes for too often the public shouts the praises of the guy carrying the ball rather than his teammates leading the way.

NCAA Approves 58-Game TV Slate Next Fall

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Member colleges of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) have approved a plan for televising 58 football games during the 1964-65 season, it was announced today.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said the plan was approved by a 226-21 vote.

The plan provides for 29 broadcasts on 13 Saturday's and Thanksgiving Day of each season. During the current season the NCAA authorized 24 telecasts.

Byers said of the 14 dates, nine will consist of a single telecast and the remaining five dates are to be composed of four regional telecasts.

Bids on the 1964-65 televising rights will be received at a meeting of the NCAA television committee in New York Dec. 17, Byers said.

Among the changes from the current program, the new plan called for:

—The possible televising of college division playoff games on a Saturday in December following the close of the television series.

—Complete freedom of college division teams to televise their own games.

—The requirement that at least 47 different colleges appear each of the two years.

Trotter Fan Collects Record Daily Double

WESTBURY, N. Y. (UPI) — Every Wednesday night, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mariano of Waterbury, Conn., journey to Roosevelt Raceway and wager a few dollars on the trotters.

Mrs. Mariano decided to remain at home Wednesday night because of the rain, so Joe, a 39-year-old bartender, "didn't feel too lucky" when he bought 10 two dollar tickets on the 2 and 6 combination in the first half of the twin-double.

When both horses won, Joe decided to "wheel" the No. 5 horse in the eighth race with every entry in the ninth.

It was the smartest wager Joe Mariano ever made.

Sure enough, the No. 5 horse (Sea Missile) won the eighth and when Lieut. Byrd clicked at $61.60 in the ninth, Joe the bartender wound up with the only winning ticket on a record twin-double payoff of $79,660.30.

Asked what he planned to do with his windfall after accepting a check for the full amount from the harness track's mutuel manager, Joseph Lynch, Mariano said:

"I plan to help my married daughter, Elaine, with her new house and pay my taxes with the rest."

The previous record twin-double payoff was $68,228.80 at Suffolk Downs, Oct. 19, during that track's thoroughbred meeting. The highest previous twin-double return at a harness track was $37,116.10 at Monticello Raceway, Aug. 18.

Princeton's Fullback Tops Nation in Scoring With 66 Points; Top Linebacker

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Cosmo Iacavazzi finds advanced calculus a bit difficult at times.

Aeronautical stability and control, fluid dynamics and particle dynamics aren't too bad. "I get by okay." He has a B-minus average.

Football? That's just doing what comes naturally. Hitting the line often is somewhat easier than hitting the books to the solid 5-foot-11, 195 pound lad from Scranton, Pa.

Cosmo, 20, is a student of aeronautical engineering at Princeton University. He also plays fullback on Princeton's unbeaten football team.

As a fullback he's about the best in the East — and maybe a wider territory. He is the nation's leading scorer with 66 points. As a linebacker who seldom, if ever, lets a runner get past him, he is an important factor in the Princeton defense that has yielded only 33 points in six games.

Coach Dick Colman likes all that, but he's even more effusive about Cosmo's share in the leadership of the Tiger squad—a factor Colman thinks is most important in Princeton's victory string. His Tigers haven't had a let-down all season.

"What a kid!" exclaimed Colman. "If he got hurt and just sat on the bench he'd be invaluable to us. Whatever he does, he does to his absolute limit and that attitude rubs off on the entire squad."

Cosmo is one of five children of a Scranton hauling contractor. After a notable high school football career, some 50 colleges showed interest in Cosmo.

Princeton's Tigers play Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth, their most important Ivy League rivals, on the next three Saturdays. If they win the Harvard game and one other, they can take their first Ivy title since 1957. They'd like to win them all.

Tar Heels Best Pass Defense In 24 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina's Tar Heels, who have allowed only one touchdown pass in seven games, are throwing up the best pass defense in college football in 24 years.

Although Ohio University is the nominal leader in pass defense, according to NCAA Service Bureau statistics today, North Carolina has compiled the most amazing record.

The Tar Heel secondary has been tested 130 times—almost twice as much as Ohio — and has allowed only 2.53 yards per attempt. The 1939 Texas A&M team was the last major college club to hold the opposition to less than three yards an attempt for a minimum of 100 passes.

Site for Race Track Postponed

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Racing Commission was told Wednesday that plans of the St. Vrain Development Co. for a spring horse racing program near Longmont have been postponed.

Spokesman in a written request said no races are planned in 1964 because of Centennial Race Track's recent announcement to race next spring and summer near Denver.

Midwest Enterprises, Inc., told the racing commission that it would amend its application for a license to operate a new track near Pueblo. Midwest plans to ask for 40 days instead of 25 for a spring meeting.

And Lakeside Enterprises, which plans to conduct a greyhound racing track at Allison, in southwestern Colorado near Four Corners, indicated it would request a delay in an amended application.

The racing commission plans to rule on the requests at a later date.

St. Mary's to Conclude Season In Saturday Date With Indians

Rote's Air Bombardments Highlights AFL Last Week

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Tobin Rote showed the kids how the game is played Saturday when he passed for 369 yards and three touchdowns and scored once in San Diego's 53-7 rout of the New York Jets. If that doesn't make a man Player of the Week in the American Football League, what does?

Rote's bailout man, John Hadl, was the first AFL star a few weeks back but there was no need of any help against the Jets. The 35-year-old quarterback, a pro since 1950 at Green Bay, Detroit and Toronto, completed 21 of 29 passes.

Detroit fans never will forget how Rote stepped into the quarterback job in 1957 after Bobby Layne was forced out with a broken leg. Tobin led the Lions to a 59-14 ramble over Cleveland in the NFL championship game.

Rote probably will be in another title game Dec. 22 because his San Diego team leads the Western Division of the AFL by 1½ games with a 6-2 record and six to go.

Bob Suci, Boston defensive back, should get an award for the most satisfying moment of the week. Released by the Houston Oilers in the final cut, the second-year pro from Michigan State, made an interception and ran 98 yards for Boston's fourth touchdown Friday night in a 45-3 shocker over Houston.

Carling World Golf Tourney Next August

By CHARLES C. CAIN

DETROIT (AP) — Golfers from 60 countries will shoot at a $200,000 jackpot in the first Carling World Open Golf Championship at nearby Oakland Hills Country Club next August.

Details of the tournament, which has a $35,000 first prize, were disclosed Wednesday night by Richard Taylor, Carling's tourney director. He said the first round will begin Aug. 27.

Taylor returned last week from a world tour during which he worked out details of nine sectional tournaments in which the world's top golfers, professional and amateur, will compete.

Czechoslovakia is expected to be the only Communist country represented.

Taylor said Russia has not known good golfers and the same holds true of the other Iron Curtain countries.

The U.S. State Department gave tournament sponsors assurance that it would grant visas to any contestants, including Communists, except those from Communist China, North Korea and Albania, none of which is recognized by the U.S. government.

Each foreign player will have to qualify in his own country, Taylor said. For example, Gary Player, who has competed in many pro tournaments in the United States for the past few years, will have to qualify in his home country, South Africa.

The field will include 105 U.S. golfers. About 50 to 55 of them, including the top pros of the nation, will be picked by next July based on their showing in PGA tournaments.

In order to permit some of the lesser known local and regional U.S. pros to have a chance to qualify for the Carling Tournament, Carling will pick approximately 45 others based on their showing in some of next year's PGA events, winding up with the Hartford, Conn., Open July 26.

There will be 35 foreign entries, plus 10 other winners of certain golf tournaments designated by Carling to bring the field to about 145.

Tournament sponsors said it will be televised nationally in the United States and may be shown in Europe via Telstar if technical arrangements can be made.

Panthers' Tom Elliott Shines in PPL Action

Success in today's scientific brand of football generates from the line. Without the protection, and proficient workings of the unselfish linemen a team's success would be nill.

Perhaps this explains the success enjoyed by the Panthers of Harrison. Terry MacKey's Panthers were selected as possible "dark horse" competitors in the Pikes Peak League pennant chase. But the Harrison aggregation, spearheaded by an aggressive line, will undoubtedly capture its sixth victory against winless Leadville this Saturday to cop second place in PPL standings.

Tom Elliott, the Panthers leading defender in the line, is one of seven key linemen responsible for making the Harrison team the second best squad in the PPL.

Rated by his coach as an excellent blocker and a demon on defense, Elliott also possesses a keen competitive attitude; he doesn't like to lose. This was obvious when the Panthers defeated defending PPL champions from Air Academy High in a crucial game last month.

Altho much credit goes to the Panther backfield, it was Elliott's defensive play which had direct bearing in stopping the Kadets. On three occasions the 175-pound tackle crashed thru the Big Blue forward wall to throw the opposition for a loss, and stop their scoring threat.

It was doubtful at the time, however, that the cheering Panther fans realized it was Elliott's defensive play which played a major part in turning back the Academy High team. Elliott is one of many linemen that are the unsung heroes for too often the public shouts the praises of the guy carrying the ball rather than his teammates leading the way.

NCAA Approves 58-Game TV Slate Next Fall

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Member colleges of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) have approved a plan for televising 58 football games during the 1964-65 season, it was announced today.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said the plan was approved by a 226-21 vote.

The plan provides for 29 broadcasts on 13 Saturday's and Thanksgiving Day of each season. During the current season the NCAA authorized 24 telecasts.

Byers said of the 14 dates, nine will consist of a single telecast and the remaining five dates are to be composed of four regional telecasts.

Bids on the 1964-65 televising rights will be received at a meeting of the NCAA television committee in New York Dec. 17, Byers said.

Among the changes from the current program, the new plan called for:

—The possible televising of college division playoff games on a Saturday in December following the close of the television series.

—Complete freedom of college division teams to televise their own games.

—The requirement that at least 47 different colleges appear each of the two years.

Trotter Fan Collects Record Daily Double

WESTBURY, N. Y. (UPI) — Every Wednesday night, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mariano of Waterbury, Conn., journey to Roosevelt Raceway and wager a few dollars on the trotters.

Mrs. Mariano decided to remain at home Wednesday night because of the rain, so Joe, a 39-year-old bartender, "didn't feel too lucky" when he bought 10 two dollar tickets on the 2 and 6 combination in the first half of the twin-double.

When both horses won, Joe decided to "wheel" the No. 5 horse in the eighth race with every entry in the ninth.

It was the smartest wager Joe Mariano ever made.

Sure enough, the No. 5 horse (Sea Missile) won the eighth and when Lieut. Byrd clicked at $61.60 in the ninth, Joe the bartender wound up with the only winning ticket on a record twin-double payoff of $79,660.30.

Asked what he planned to do with his windfall after accepting a check for the full amount from the harness track's mutuel manager, Joseph Lynch, Mariano said:

"I plan to help my married daughter, Elaine, with her new house and pay my taxes with the rest."

The previous record twin-double payoff was $68,228.80 at Suffolk Downs, Oct. 19, during that track's thoroughbred meeting. The highest previous twin-double return at a harness track was $37,116.10 at Monticello Raceway, Aug. 18.

Princeton's Fullback Tops Nation in Scoring With 66 Points; Top Linebacker

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Cosmo Iacavazzi finds advanced calculus a bit difficult at times.

Aeronautical stability and control, fluid dynamics and particle dynamics aren't too bad. "I get by okay." He has a B-minus average.

Football? That's just doing what comes naturally. Hitting the line often is somewhat easier than hitting the books to the solid 5-foot-11, 195 pound lad from Scranton, Pa.

Cosmo, 20, is a student of aeronautical engineering at Princeton University. He also plays fullback on Princeton's unbeaten football team.

As a fullback he's about the best in the East — and maybe a wider territory. He is the nation's leading scorer with 66 points. As a linebacker who seldom, if ever, lets a runner get past him, he is an important factor in the Princeton defense that has yielded only 33 points in six games.

Coach Dick Colman likes all that, but he's even more effusive about Cosmo's share in the leadership of the Tiger squad—a factor Colman thinks is most important in Princeton's victory string. His Tigers haven't had a let-down all season.

"What a kid!" exclaimed Colman. "If he got hurt and just sat on the bench he'd be invaluable to us. Whatever he does, he does to his absolute limit and that attitude rubs off on the entire squad."

Cosmo is one of five children of a Scranton hauling contractor. After a notable high school football career, some 50 colleges showed interest in Cosmo.

Princeton's Tigers play Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth, their most important Ivy League rivals, on the next three Saturdays. If they win the Harvard game and one other, they can take their first Ivy title since 1957. They'd like to win them all.

Tar Heels Best Pass Defense In 24 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina's Tar Heels, who have allowed only one touchdown pass in seven games, are throwing up the best pass defense in college football in 24 years.

Although Ohio University is the nominal leader in pass defense, according to NCAA Service Bureau statistics today, North Carolina has compiled the most amazing record.

The Tar Heel secondary has been tested 130 times—almost twice as much as Ohio — and has allowed only 2.53 yards per attempt. The 1939 Texas A&M team was the last major college club to hold the opposition to less than three yards an attempt for a minimum of 100 passes.

Site for Race Track Postponed

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Racing Commission was told Wednesday that plans of the St. Vrain Development Co. for a spring horse racing program near Longmont have been postponed.

Spokesman in a written request said no races are planned in 1964 because of Centennial Race Track's recent announcement to race next spring and summer near Denver.

Midwest Enterprises, Inc., told the racing commission that it would amend its application for a license to operate a new track near Pueblo. Midwest plans to ask for 40 days instead of 25 for a spring meeting.

And Lakeside Enterprises, which plans to conduct a greyhound racing track at Allison, in southwestern Colorado near Four Corners, indicated it would request a delay in an amended application.

The racing commission plans to rule on the requests at a later date.

St. Mary's to Conclude Season In Saturday Date With Indians

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Faced with a formidable task last September of re-building a winning squad, Chuck Haering's youthful Pirates—defenders of the 1962 Denver Parochial League title—completed this year's DPL slate with a 7-2 record, and copped second place in loop standings.

The St. Mary's aggregation played its last DPL campaign of the season last Sunday, and the Bucs pulled out a 6-0 squeeker over highly improved St. Francis.

But the shouting isn't over. The Pirates march into Cheyenne Mountain Stadium this Saturday afternoon for their annual inter-city rivalry against the Indians; winners of the 1963 Pikes Peak League title. Kick off time is set for 1:30 p.m.

Altho this contest may be anti-climactic for the St. Mary's crew because of the losing bid for the DPL crown, the Pirates will be out seeking a victory which would add prestige to their record.

However, the Bucs will have their work cut out for them as Eldon Helm's high scoring Indians are undefeated in eight straight games. Altho the Tribe will be minus their ramrod-full-back, Greg Cramblit, who is recovering in the hospital from a cleet spike infection in his shin, the Cheyenne team still rates as a two-touchdown favorite.

Cramblit leads the Tribe's attack as the 182-pound fullback has tallied 15 six-pointers. But the Indians boast a triple-threat quarterback in Gary Graham, who leads the PPL scoring race with 93 points. The Tribe's fastest runner, Bob Richardson, may be sidelined from Saturday's encounter because of a hip pointer.

Offensively, Haering is slated to start Jerry Knauf at quarterback, Sam Zavatti at fullback, Chris White at slot-back in place of the ailing Bruce Mangerich who suffered a sprained ankle, while Dave Adamson and Gary Dobson battle for the starting nod at the running-back position.

Looking over this year's respectable won-loss record, Haering summed up the Pirates' endeavors when he stated, "Considering that we only had six returning letterman, our kids played beyond our expectations. It is difficult to single out any one player who played outstanding this season, but rather it was a combined team effort."

Haering gave special recognition to the defensive specialists, the "Outlaws," for their outstanding work containing the DPL teams especially on pass coverage. The "Outlaws" only allowed 28 pass completions out of 111 attempts in nine league games.

The Pirates' offensive charge, spearheaded by junior quarterback Knauf, clicked for 23 of 58 pass attempts with this week's Gazette Telegraph Lineman of the Week awardee, end David Grantz, leading the way in receptions. Grantz has pulled down 14 aerials and has accumulated 228 yards, while Mangerich has compiled 175 yards on five passes including four TD receptions.

At the onset of the season the St. Mary's pilot, in his second term as bossman of the Pirates grid team, indicated that the Bucs would be forced to play the control-type offense going for the short yardage.

But with the help of his lieutenants, Haering came up with a potent passing attack directed by Knauf. Haering lauded his coaching assistants, and had special words of praise for former Colorado College quarterback, Eddie Kintz. The Pirate mentor credited his team's passing success directly to Kintz's work with the Bucs passing ace, Knauf. Haering also gave credit to his line coach, Jerry Woods, and "B" squad coach, Dan Wright, for their major contributions.

St. Mary's bread - 'n - butter ground gainer, Zavatti, despite a mid-season injury, leads the Pirates in rushing as the 152-pound hard-charging back picked up 634 net yards on 124 carries. But the most astounding feat the junior fullback accomplished was only losing seven yards in nine games. This is quite remarkable for a non-letterman, altho Zavatti gained 375 yards last year as a sophomore he was not awarded a letter.

In addition to his performance as a consistent ground gainer, Zavatti also excelled on defensive. Zavatti closed out the DPL slate as the Bucs' leading scoring with 48 points via eight TD.

Jim Shearer mustered 251 yards to earn the second berth on the Pirates rushing roster. But it was converted guard Adamson that completed the season the strongest. Against St. Francis last Sunday, the 165-pound running-back outpaced his teammates in rushing with 59 yards. Adamson was switched to the running-back position three weeks ago and since that time he has accumulated 224 yards to rate the third spot behind Zaxatti and Shearer.

Sure enough, the No. 5 horse (Sea Missiie) won the eighth and when Lieut. Byrd clicked at $61.60 in the ninth, Joe the bartender wound up with the only winning ticket on a record twin-double payoff of $79,660.30.

Asked what he planned to do with his windfall after accepting a check for the full amount from the harness track's mutuel manager, Joseph Lynch, Mariano said:

"I plan to help my married daughter, Elaine, with her new house and pay my taxes with the rest."

The previous record twin-double payoff was $68,228.80 at Suffolk Downs, Oct. 19, during that track's thoroughbred meeting. The highest previous twin-double return at a harness track was $37,116.10 at Monticello Raceway, Aug. 18.

BASKETBALL DRAFT

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia University produced either the first or second pro basketball draft picks four times in the last 12 years in Tod Thorn, Jerry West, Rod Hundley and Mark Workman.

FORGOTTEN MAN

CHICAGO (UPI) — Third baseman Harry Steinfeldt is the forgotten man in the famous Chicago Cubs' infield of 1906-10 that featured "Tinker to Evers to Chance."

Panthers' Tom Elliott Shines in PPL Action

Success in today's scientific brand of football generates from the line. Without the protection, and proficient workings of the unselfish linemen a team's success would be nill.

Perhaps this explains the success enjoyed by the Panthers of Harrison. Terry MacKey's Panthers were selected as possible "dark horse" competitors in the Pikes Peak League pennant chase. But the Harrison aggregation, spearheaded by an aggressive line, will undoubtedly capture its sixth victory against winless Leadville this Saturday to cop second place in PPL standings.

Tom Elliott, the Panthers leading defender in the line, is one of seven key linemen responsible for making the Harrison team the second best squad in the PPL.

Rated by his coach as an excellent blocker and a demon on defense, Elliott also possesses a keen competitive attitude; he doesn't like to lose. This was obvious when the Panthers defeated defending PPL champions from Air Academy High in a crucial game last month.

Altho much credit goes to the Panther backfield, it was Elliott's defensive play which had direct bearing in stopping the Kadets. On three occasions the 175-pound tackle crashed thru the Big Blue forward wall to throw the opposition for a loss, and stop their scoring threat.

It was doubtful at the time, however, that the cheering Panther fans realized it was Elliott's defensive play which played a major part in turning back the Academy High team. Elliott is one of many linemen that are the unsung heroes for too often the public shouts the praises of the guy carrying the ball rather than his teammates leading the way.

NCAA Approves 58-Game TV Slate Next Fall

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Member colleges of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) have approved a plan for televising 58 football games during the 1964-65 season, it was announced today.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said the plan was approved by a 226-21 vote.

The plan provides for 29 broadcasts on 13 Saturday's and Thanksgiving Day of each season. During the current season the NCAA authorized 24 telecasts.

Byers said of the 14 dates, nine will consist of a single telecast and the remaining five dates are to be composed of four regional telecasts.

Bids on the 1964-65 televising rights will be received at a meeting of the NCAA television committee in New York Dec. 17, Byers said.

Among the changes from the current program, the new plan called for:

—The possible televising of college division playoff games on a Saturday in December following the close of the television series.

—Complete freedom of college division teams to televise their own games.

—The requirement that at least 47 different colleges appear each of the two years.

Invaders Sell Madigan To Los Angeles

DENVER (AP)—The Denver Invaders of the Western Hockey League have sold defenseman Connie Madigan's contract to the Los Angeles Blades, officials announced Wednesday.

Site for Race Track Postponed

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Racing Commission was told Wednesday that plans of the St. Vrain Development Co. for a spring horse racing program near Longmont have been postponed.

Spokesman in a written request said no races are planned in 1964 because of Centennial Race Track's recent announcement to race next spring and summer near Denver.

Midwest Enterprises, Inc., told the racing commission that it would amend its application for a license to operate a new track near Pueblo. Midwest plans to ask for 40 days instead of 25 for a spring meeting.

And Lakeside Enterprises, which plans to conduct a greyhound racing track at Allison, in southwestern Colorado near Four Corners, indicated it would request a delay in an amended application.

The racing commission plans to rule on the requests at a later date.

OVERTIME GOLF

NEW YORK (UPI) —George Von Elm played in the longest "overtime" matches in the history of both the U.S. Open and U.S. Amateur golf championships—losing a 72-hole play-off for the 1931 Open and losing on the 10th extra hole in an early round of the 1930 Amateur.

Princeton's Fullback Tops Nation in Scoring With 66 Points; Top Linebacker

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Cosmo Iacavazzi finds advanced calculus a bit difficult at times.

Aeronautical stability and control, fluid dynamics and particle dynamics aren't too bad. "I get by okay." He has a B-minus average.

Football? That's just doing what comes naturally. Hitting the line often is somewhat easier than hitting the books to the solid 5-foot-11, 195 pound lad from Scranton, Pa.

Cosmo, 20, is a student of aeronautical engineering at Princeton University. He also plays fullback on Princeton's unbeaten football team.

As a fullback he's about the best in the East — and maybe a wider territory. He is the nation's leading scorer with 66 points. As a linebacker who seldom, if ever, lets a runner get past him, he is an important factor in the Princeton defense that has yielded only 33 points in six games.

Coach Dick Colman likes all that, but he's even more effusive about Cosmo's share in the leadership of the Tiger squad—a factor Colman thinks is most important in Princeton's victory string. His Tigers haven't had a let-down all season.

"What a kid!" exclaimed Colman. "If he got hurt and just sat on the bench he'd be invaluable to us. Whatever he does, he does to his absolute limit and that attitude rubs off on the entire squad."

Cosmo is one of five children of a Scranton hauling contractor. After a notable high school football career, some 50 colleges showed interest in Cosmo.

Princeton's Tigers play Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth, their most important Ivy League rivals, on the next three Saturdays. If they win the Harvard game and one other, they can take their first Ivy title since 1957. They'd like to win them all.

Tar Heels Best Pass Defense In 24 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina's Tar Heels, who have allowed only one touchdown pass in seven games, are throwing up the best pass defense in college football in 24 years.

Although Ohio University is the nominal leader in pass defense, according to NCAA Service Bureau statistics today, North Carolina has compiled the most amazing record.

The Tar Heel secondary has been tested 130 times—almost twice as much as Ohio — and has allowed only 2.53 yards per attempt. The 1939 Texas A&M team was the last major college club to hold the opposition to less than three yards an attempt for a minimum of 100 passes.

No Two Ears Are Identical, Deputy Marshal Declares

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP)—Your ears earmark you, distinguish you from any other person in the world, says a law enforcement officer who has studied thousands of human hearing organs.

"No two ears are identical—not even on the same head," explains Deputy Marshal Alfred V. Iannarelli of the Alameda County Sheriff's Department.

Iannarelli, 38, has turned 14 years of research into a book, not yet published, outlining a system of ear identification.

The system involves photographing the outer ear, measuring and cataloging its conformation and main parts, and classifying special characteristics.

It compliments fingerprint identification, and sometimes its application is more practical, the officer says.

He cites the hospital delivery room as an example. Fingerprinting the newborn child isn't feasible, he says. And footprinting of hospital newborn in California was abandoned in 1959 since 85 to 90 per cent of the prints were smudged and of little value for identification.

The Iannarelli system of ear idntification has been in use in Alameda County's Highland Hospital, Oakland, since March—its first large-scale test. Nurses using 35 millimeter cameras have photographed the right ears of more than 1,400 infants.

Indexed and filed, the photographs provide positive — and lifelong—identification, Iannarelli says. Wrist and leg bands are used by other California hospitals.

The camera has a simple attachment designed by Iannarelli to assure easy and accurate focusing.

The process takes two minutes, including recording the baby's last name, sex, race, date and time of birth. The cost is no more than four cents per child, Iannarelli says.

He has tested his system on twins, triplets and quadruplets considered identical. Each could be singled out by ear.

Iannarelli credits a French anthropologist, Alphonse Bertillon, with originating the idea of ear identification almost 100 years ago. Bertillon, chief of the identification section of the Paris police, included ear width and length in his measurements of criminals. He noted that all ears seemed different and his idntification system came into worldwide use by police.

It was later replaced by the fingerprint identification system.

TOWN TALK

No Two Ears Are Identical, Deputy Marshal Declares

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP)—Your ears earmark you, distinguish you from any other person in the world, says a law enforcement officer who has studied thousands of human hearing organs.

"No two ears are identical—not even on the same head," explains Deputy Marshal Alfred V. Iannarelli of the Alameda County Sheriff's Department.

Iannarelli, 38, has turned 14 years of research into a book, not yet published, outlining a system of ear identification.

The system involves photographing the outer ear, measuring and cataloging its conformation and main parts, and classifying special characteristics.

It compliments fingerprint identification, and sometimes its application is more practical, the officer says.

He cites the hospital delivery room as an example. Fingerprinting the newborn child isn't feasible, he says. And footprinting of hospital newborn in California was abandoned in 1959 since 85 to 90 per cent of the prints were smudged and of little value for identification.

The Iannarelli system of ear identification has been in use in Alameda County's Highland Hospital, Oakland, since March—its first large-scale test. Nurses using 35 millimeter cameras have photographed the right ears of more than 1,400 infants.

Indexed and filed, the photographs provide positive — and lifelong—identification, Iannarelli says. Wrist and leg bands are used by other California hospitals.

The camera has a simple attachment designed by Iannarelli to assure easy and accurate focusing.

The process takes two minutes, including recording the baby's last name, sex, race, date and time of birth. The cost is no more than four cents per child, Iannarelli says.

He has tested his system on twins, triplets and quadruplets considered identical. Each could be singled out by ear.

Iannarelli credits a French anthropologist, Alphonse Bertillon, with originating the idea of ear identification almost 100 years ago. Bertillon, chief of the identification section of the Paris police, included ear width and length in his measurements of criminals. He noted that all ears seemed different and his idntification system came into worldwide use by police.

It was later replaced by the fingerprint identification system.

Outside Counsel Is Proposed in Probe of Baker

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate committee investigating the activities of Robert G. Baker acts today on hiring a counsel from outside Congress to press the potentially explosive inquiry.

It also faces a showdown on Republicans' demands they be given a separate staff and independent investigative powers to check into allegations against Baker who resigned under fire as secretary to the Senate's Democratic majority.

Baker has been accused of using his Senate job to promote his own wide-ranging business interests.

In a turnabout Tuesday, Chairman B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., announced he would recommend employing a special counsel to direct the inquiry.

Jordan had opposed bringing in an outsider, saying the Rules Committee shoud not contract out the investigation. He said Tuesday that after weighing all the arguments "I feel that on balance it would be wise" to do so.

Some members had argued that in effect the Senate itself was being investigated and thus should show impartiality by hiring a special counsel.

Jordan did not say whom he had in mind for the job. Nor did he say whether he would agree to the Republicans' request that they be allowed to hire their own counsel.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, senior GOP member, declared that the committee minority should have a separate staff and authority to assign it.

Curtis told a reporter he was entering the probe convinced "the minority should refrain from hurling charges that have not been substantiated."

But he said he has questions that need answers, including "can the minority dispatch an investigator to find facts, or does the majority OK everything?"

Jordan announced he had hired William Ellis Meehan, 52, a retired FBI agent, as chief investigator under authority the committee had voted him last week.

The committee also has authorizd Curtis to hire one person for the minority side, without designating what rank the minority staffer should hold.

Meehan is a former North Carolina Law School classmate of William M. Cochrane, Jordan's administrative assistant.

Jordan promised the inquiry would reach the public hearing stage as soon as possible.

But, he said, "we would be irresponsible to conduct open hearings until our inquiry has proceeded to a point where enough facts have been established that open hearings would be something besides a fishing expedition."

Outside Counsel Is Proposed in Probe of Baker

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate committee investigating the activities of Robert G. Baker acts today on hiring a counsel from outside Congress to press the potentially explosive inquiry.

It also faces a showdown on Republicans' demands they be given a separate staff and independent investigative powers to check into allegations against Baker who resigned under fire as secretary to the Senate's Democratic majority.

Baker has been accused of using his Senate job to promote his own wide-ranging business interests.

In a turnabout Tuesday, Chairman B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., announced he would recommend employing a special counsel to direct the inquiry.

Jordan had opposed bringing in an outsider, saying the Rules Committee shoud not contract out the investigation. He said Tuesday that after weighing all the arguments "I feel that on balance it would be wise" to do so.

Some members had argued that in effect the Senate itself was being investigated and thus should show impartiality by hiring a special counsel.

Jordan did not say whom he had in mind for the job. Nor did he say whether he would agree to the Republicans' request that they be allowed to hire their own counsel.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, senior GOP member, declared that the committee minority should have a separate staff and authority to assign it.

Curtis told a reporter he was entering the probe convinced "the minority should refrain from hurling charges that have not been substantiated."

But he said he has questions that need answers, including "can the minority dispatch an investigator to find facts, or does the majority OK everything?"

Jordan announced he had hired William Ellis Meehan, 52, a retired FBI agent, as chief investigator under authority the committee had voted him last week.

The committee also has authorizd Curtis to hire one person for the minority side, without designating what rank the minority staffer should hold.

Meehan is a former North Carolina Law School classmate of William M. Cochrane, Jordan's administrative assistant.

Jordan promised the inquiry would reach the public hearing stage as soon as possible.

But, he said, "we would be irresponsible to conduct open hearings until our inquiry has proceeded to a point where enough facts have been established that open hearings would be something besides a fishing expedition."

New Jersey's Demo Suffers Sharp Setback

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — New Jersey voters have given Democratic Gov. Richard J. Hughes a sharp setback, defeating his proposal for a $750-million bond issue.

But across the Hudson River in New York City, voters gave 3-to-1 approval to the idea of legalizing off-track betting on racing.

The New Jersey and New York votes highlighted balloting Tuesday in which key referenda were approved in Florida, Maine and Ohio.

Gov. Hughes contended the money was needed to finance New Jersey highway construction and provide additional school aid. He warned he would go to the legislature for a sales or income tax if the bond issue was turned down.

Returns from 4,364 of New Jersey's 4,533 districts showed the two questions which comprised the bond issue trailing, 769,238 to 903,268 and 709,667 to 899,079.

Hughes suffered a second jolt: Republicans won New Jersey's Assembly, giving them full legislative control for the first time in six years.

The off-track betting vote in New York City was merely advisory. It sets up a committee to formulate a plan but approval by the Republican-controlled legislature is needed before it can be put into effect.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner and other supporters of the betting plan say it will bring in $200 million annually, which could be divided equally between the city and state.

Complete returns showed 938,346 votes for off-track betting and 300,310 against.

In Florida, voters approved a plan whereby future gubernatorial elections will be held in non-presidential years. The statewide vote was 254,619 for and 225,255 against.

In Maine, voters rejected a $3-million bond issue to finance a toll bridge and causeways from Chebeague Island in Casco Bay to the mainland. Two constitutional amendments, one increasing urban representation in the state House and one forbidding discrimination against anyone for any reason, passed as did an $8.4-general fund bond issue for Construction.

Ohio voters authorized a change in the state constitution to permit a $250-million bond issue backed by Republican Gov. James Rhodes. Higher education facilities would receive $175 million. The remainder is earmarked for parks, recreation, water, capital improvements and distressed school districts.

"How old is he?" Lowery asked.

Senior Council Asks Social Funds From Bonds

The Senior Coordinating Council of the Pikes Peak Region wants the city's forthcoming bond issue to include funds for social and recreational facilities for older citizens.

The Council made the request in a formal letter mailed Tuesday to City Manager John M. Biery and City Council members.

Clara C. Perley, secretary, said the Senior Coordinating Council favors confining the bond issue to the city's park and recreation needs, and asking consideration of facilities to meet special needs of the "city's large and ever-growing older population."

The Council represents some 20 private and public agencies, and individuals. A. Earl Bryson is president of the Council. Other officers are C. C. Morris, first vice president; Mrs. C. T. Ryder, second vice president; and Mrs. C. E. Carey, treasurer.

Republicans Are Overwhelmed In Mississippi

By JAMES SAGGUS

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Victorious Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. watched his record-shattering vote climb steadily today, overwhelming unprecedented Republican opposition to win a bitter race for governor.

Campaigning as a leader of Southern opposition to President Kennedy and his civil rights program, Johnson built up a lead of almost 2-1 over Republican Rubel Phillips to gain the office that eluded him for 16 years.

Gov. Ross R. Barnett speaking at the Johnson victory rally Tuesday night, recounted how he and Johnson had turned Negro James H. Meredith away from the University of Mississippi a year ago as Meredith sought admission with a federal escort and under a federal court order.

"When Paul Johnson stood in the face of bayonets and guns," Barnett said, "I said in my heart and mind there is a man I'm going to help."

Reminding the voters he stood up for them at Ole Miss, Johnson used the slogan "stand tall with Paul" to record victories in two Democratic primaries and the general election.

However, Phillips, 38, a former Democratic state public service commissioner turned Republican, succeeded in making the young Mississippi Republican party a factor in state politics.

"We have lost a battle but we have not lost the war," he told cheering backers at GOP headquarters here. "We now know that we have a strong two-party system in the state. As soon as I rest a few days, I am going back to practicing law and working for the Republican party."

The energetic Republicans forced Mississippi Democrats to stage an all-out general election campaign, the first since Reconstruction.

Phillips had been expected to get about 125,000 of 300,000 votes, six times the normal general election turnout.

With 1,580 of the state's 1,877 precincts reporting and some of the larger ones out, Johnson led 172,237 votes to 101,605 for Phillips.

Former Lt. Gov. Carroll Gartin, who lost a runoff for governor to Barnett in the 1959 Democratic primary, won a third term by a smashing margin over Republican Stanford Morse.

With 1,548 precincts reporting, Gartin had 192,569 to 64,170 for Morse, a state senator who left the Democratic party to team up with Phillips.

The Johnson victory will have one almost certain effect on national politics.

Johnson, who ran losing races for governor in 1947, 1951 and 1955, pledged himself to support unpledged Democratic electors in the 1964 presidential campaign.

ARE YOU FIRE-SAFE?

Every few weeks we hear of children who have died in home fires. According to reliable sources, nearly 100 youngsters perish in this way every month. The majority die alone and helpless, a little too often whilst he mother is away on an errand.

These tragedies could be minimized if parents made it a rule not to leave the children alone in the house. It may be more troublesome but it is safer to take them along when going shopping or visiting neighbors. Above all, keep matches and lighters hidden out of reach especially when the tots are at the "firebug" stage.

Older boys and girls must be taught to respect fire and how to use it properly. They should be instructed on what to do in case of fire, including escape routes. The same applies to babysitters. Emphasize again and again that all the children must be taken out of the house at the first indication of smoke and then call the fire department.

All too many people feel that conflagrations, like illnesses and accidents, always happen to the other fellow. This is ridiculous because 500,000 homes are destroyed and 6,000 people die annually in this way. The best defense is a good offense. Careless smoking habits top the list. Ask any fireman how often he has found a still burning butt on an upholstered chair, sofa, or bed.

Every family should plan ahead for emergencies. The chances of such tragedies are decreased by certain precautions:

1. Rid the home of fire hazards.
2. Use care with matches and smoking.
3. Keep heating, cooking and electrical equipment in good order and use the proper fuses.
4. Clean up basements and throw away all trash.
5. Have a carefully thought out escape route from every room in the house. A closed bathroom often makes the best escape route when the halls and stairways are blocked because the door will hold back the flames for several minutes.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

Hair Punishment

D. H. writes: I'm 19 years old and my mother predicts I'll be bald by 20. Seven months ago I had my hair bleached and it began to fall out so I had a brown dye job. Then, after two months, I decided I wanted it blonde again. I tease it, sleep on rollers, and use a spray to keep it in place. Do you think my hair might stop falling out if I gave up all this.

Reply

In some instances, sleepwalking is an epileptic equivalent and responds to anti-convulsive drugs. Others are caused by a temporary emotional upheaval. Usually, no cause can be found and you can help your friend by barring the windows and removing all obstacles that might trip or hurt her.

A tumor involving the lymphatic tissues. The most common example is Hodgkin's disease, in which there is enlargement of the lymph glands in the neck, chest, armpits, and groins.

Republicans Are Overwhelmed In Mississippi

By JAMES SAGGUS

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Victorious Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. watched his record-shattering vote climb steadily today, overwhelming unprecedented Republican opposition to win a bitter race for governor.

Campaigning as a leader of Southern opposition to President Kennedy and his civil rights program, Johnson built up a lead of almost 2-1 over Republican Rubel Phillips to gain the office that eluded him for 16 years.

Gov. Ross R. Barnett speaking at the Johnson victory rally Tuesday night, recounted how he and Johnson had turned Negro James H. Meredith away from the University of Mississippi a year ago as Meredith sought admission with a federal escort and under a federal court order.

"When Paul Johnson stood in the face of bayonets and guns," Barnett said, "I said in my heart and mind there is a man I'm going to help."

Reminding the voters he stood up for them at Ole Miss, Johnson used the slogan "stand tall with Paul" to record victories in two Democratic primaries and the general election.

However, Phillips, 38, a former Democratic state public service commissioner turned Republican, succeeded in making the young Mississippi Republican party a factor in state politics.

"We have lost a battle but we have not lost the war," he told cheering backers at GOP headquarters here. "We now know that we have a strong two-party system in the state. As soon as I rest a few days, I am going back to practicing law and working for the Republican party."

The energetic Republicans forced Mississippi Democrats to stage an all-out general election campaign, the first since Reconstruction.

Phillips had been expected to get about 125,000 of 300,000 votes, six times the normal general election turnout.

With 1,580 of the state's 1,877 precincts reporting and some of the larger ones out, Johnson led 172,287 votes to 101,605 for Phillips.

Former Lt. Gov. Carroll Gartin, who lost a runoff for governor to Barnett in the 1959 Democratic primary, won a third term by a smashing margin over Republican Stanford Morse.

With 1,548 precincts reporting, Gartin had 192,569 to 64,170 for Morse, a state senator who left the Democratic party to team up with Phillips.

The Johnson victory will have one almost certain effect on national politics.

Johnson, who ran losing races for governor in 1947, 1951 and 1955, pledged himself to support unpledged Democratic electors in the 1964 presidential campaign.

France Proposes 'Steel War' by Common Market

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP)France is urging her Common Market partners to increase the trade bloc's tariffs on steel—a step which could make the chicken war look like chicken feed.

If the other five nations don't go along, France could act unilaterally through a loophole in the six-nation steel-coal treaty. Such action would endanger European economic unity.

The French government proposed the steel tariff increase on Oct. 7 at a ministerial meeting of the coal-steel pool. The West German government, at the time still headed by Konrad Adenauer, supported the French. The question is to be decided at a meeting in Luxembourg Dec. 2.

The French proposal—to return to the tariff schedule that prevailed before 1958—would virtually double the tariff on certain types of steel imported by the six nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

It remains to be seen whether West Germany's new chancellor, Ludwig Erhard, will continue to back up the French demand described by one source as "rather vehement."

The United States staunchly opposes any increase in European steel tariffs and is considering taking the matter to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development—OECD—it was learned here today. The OECD links the United States and Canada with Western Europe in an institution designed to remove trade barriers.

Although a relatively small amount of steel is affected—about 3 million tons—the United States was reported to feel that any hike in steel tariffs could have a disastrous effect on Western commerce. Steel prices directly affect a whole range of other products.

The United States also feels that a rise in European duties on steel would have an extremely adverse effect on the forthcoming "Kennedy round" of trade negotiations next year within the framework of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade—GATT—in Geneva.

U.S. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson took the matter up with officials of the steel-coal pool this week when he arrived in Luxembourg on a visit to the Benelux nations. Johnson told leaders of the six-nation community the Kennedy administration hopes they will continue a policy of low tariffs on steel.

The present steel tariff schedule is a complicated one, varying according to types of steel and from country to country. Present rates average out between 5 and 7 per cent. The French want to boost the rates to between 9 and 12 per cent.

The community now produces almost 73 million tons of steel a year, exports about 12 million, and imports about 3 million tons of specialized steels.

About 300,000 tons a year comes on the community market from the United States, mostly at what is described as a low price. France contends that these 300,000 tons are disorganizing the community market by undercutting community prices.

The average price of steel in the community is about $100 a ton. As of last January, the German price was $101.30, the French price $96.60.

Coleman Pledges To Carry on Chamber Projects

The newly-elected president of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce, Norman A. Coleman has pledged to carry on the top aims of the chamber for 1964.

Coleman, a local real estate man, listed as prime importance the projects of securing a degree-granting institution of higher learning and a continuation of the effort to bring new industries to Colorado Springs and vicinity.

Coleman also said that he will appoint chairmen of the chamber committees before the middle of December to carry out the many activities of the chamber group as a whole.

Other projects listed by Coleman include:

Promotion of the tourist industry; an effort to ease the inventory tax as an enticement to industries to move to Colorado; an emphasis on increasing the present chamber membership; and an active political education program aimed at making the individual more aware of the importance of politics on the precinct level. The political effort will be stricly non-partisan and its purpose is to encourage the individual to take a more active part in politics, Coleman said.

Coleman will officially take office Jan. 1, of 1964.

Total highway users' tax to be apportioned among state highways, counties and cities and towns was $4,066,444.48. Of this, $2,643,188.91 went to state highways, $1,057,275.57 to counties and $365,980 to cities.

Housewife Infested With Tiny Termites

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP)—Dade County physicians have reported the strange case of a 26-year-old Hialeah housewife who became infested with termites —wood-eating insects.

Writing in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, doctors said the woman, whose name was withheld, was admitted to Hialeah Hospital complaining of severe cramps in the lower abdomen.

The morning after her admission, physicians discovered "numerous, small, whitish organisms." The University of Miami School of Medicine identified them as common termites.

The woman, her husband and their 9-year-old son had lived for six months in a wooden frame house estimated to be about 15 years old. She said some "winged insects" often swarmed in the living room.

Dr. Wilton B. Reynolds Jr. said the termites were finally passed from the patient's body. Her recovery was uneventful.

The family moved from the house.

ARE YOU FIRE-SAFE?

Every few weeks we hear of children who have died in home fires. According to reliable sources, nearly 100 youngsters perish in this way every month. The majority die alone and helpless.a llt ooo ften whilet he motheri s away on an errand.

These tragedies could be minimized if parents made it a rule not to leave the children alone in the house. It may be more troublesome but it is safer to take them along when going shopping or visiting neighbors. Above all, keep matches and lighters hidden or out of reach especially when the tots are at the "firebug" stage.

Older boys and girls must be taught to respect fire and how to use it properly. They should be instructed on what to do in case of fire, including escape routes. The same applies to babysitters. Emphasize again and again that all the children must be taken out of the house at the first indication of smoke and then call the fire department.

All too many people feel that conflagrations, like illnesses and accidents, always happen to the other fellow. This is ridiculous because 550,000 homes are destroyed and 6,000 people die annually in this way. The best defense is a good offense. Careless smoking habits top the list. Ask any fireman how often he has found a still burning butt on an upholstered chair, sofa, or bed.

Every family should plan ahead for emergencies. The chances of such tragedies are decreased by certain precautions:

1. Rid the home of fire hazards.
2. Use care with matches and smoking.
3. Keep heating, cooking, and electrical equipment in good order and use the proper fuses.
4. Clean up basements and throw away all trash.
5. Have a carefully thought out escape route from every room in the house. A closed bathroom often makes the best escape rotue when the halls and stairways are blocked because the door will hold back the flames for several minutes.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

Hair Punishment

D. H. writes: I'm 19 years old and my mother predicts I'll be bald by 20. Seven months ago I had my hair bleached and it began to fall out so I had a brown dye job. Then, after two months, I decided I wanted it blonde again. I tease it, sleep on rollers, and use a spray to keep it in place. Do you think my hair might stop falling out if I gave up all this.

Somnambulism

J. T. writes: How would you go about helping a dear friend who is a sleepwalker?

Reply

In some instances, sleepwalking is an epileptic equivalent and responds to anti-convulsive drugs. Others are caused by a temporary emotional upheaval. Usually, no cause can be found and you can help your friend by barring the windows and removing all obstacles that might trip or hurt her.

Lymph Tumor

M. S. writes: What is a lymphoma?

Reply

A tumor involving the lymphatic tissues. The most common example is Hodgkin's disease, in which there is enlargement of the lymph glands in the neck, chest, armpits, and groins.

TO READ

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Thirty-seven nations have asked the United Nations to launch a 10-year drive costing $1.9 billion to teach 330 million men, women and children how to read and write. Countries where illiteracy ranges as high as 90 per cent would assume the major share of the cost.

Two early Presidents, John Adams and Jefferson, died on the same date—July 4, 1826.

Surgery Provided at Sea By Unusual Arrangement

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Pres sStaff Wriet r

NEW YORK (AP)—Far out in the North Atlantic, aboard a freighter slowly steaming for Europe, a boy complains to his parents of a dull pain in his lower right abdomen.

The pain persists. Other symptoms show this is no ordinary bellyache. The captain is informed. Since freighters carrying 12 passengers or less are not required to have a doctor, the captain urgently radios the boy's symptoms to the Coast Guard here.

The U.S. Public Health Service Hospital on Staten Island sends the freighter a message: "Probable accute appendicitis, advise immediate evacuation."

This happened last month. The freighter was the S.S. Wolverine State and the lad was Ruykert Fowler, 9, of Nyack, N.Y. He likely owes his life to the things that happened after the diagnosis was made.

The Coast Guard instantly fired up a system which it says is the only one of its kind in the world—centered in a winking, blinking computer lifeguard called AMVER. It stands for Atlantic Merchant Vessel Report.

Under the direction of Cmdr. Mark F. Mitchell, AMVER was asked to name the ships anywhere within 200 miles of the rendezvous at sea.

AMVER swallowed the questions, its console lights winking across and up and down and its memory drum spinning 1,200 times a minute. The life-saving answer came five minutes later.

Humming pleasantly, AMVER click-clacked the reply on a roll of paper. The best ship for the mercy mission, it said, was the German passenger liner Bremen, less than 200 miles away and with a doctor aboard.

The Bremen steamed with Wolverine State for two days waiting for the seas to calm down. Then young Ruykert was transferred in a small boat and soon Dr. Jacob Suderman cut from him an inflamed appendix.

"We are grateful," said a message from the freighter to the Public Health Hospital and the Coast Guard, "to you and the U.S. Coast Guard for your cooperation and assistance."

There are about 3,500 merchant vessels of all nations in the North Atlantic at any one time. Of these, about 800 ships report in their movements each day to AMVER for plotting.

Prior to AMVER, the Coast Guard could make only a haphazard try to choose appropriate ships to aid other ships in distress.

"No attempt was made," said Mitchell, "to plot and advise on the hundreds of ships on the ocean each day."

AMVER does that, and more. In the shiny magnetic coils that store information are the capabilities of 15,000 ships of the world.

They represent 61 nations. The goal is to enroll ships of all nations in the system. Uppermost, however, is the aim of getting every ship that sails the North Atlantic each day to report in.

"Some don't even know about it," said Mitchell.

One nation that does know about it is the Soviet Union. But it has reported to AMVER only once, Mitchell said. That was in 1960 when Premier Khrushchev sailed back to the Soviet Union from the United States aboard the Baltika. AMVER plotted Baltika across the ocean.

AMVER also is used to solve some air-sea rescue problems.

The Coast Guard has been renting the computer for $60,000 a year since 1958. Despite its good work, the machine is considered obsolete.

Mitchell said the Coast Guard is already thinking about ordering a new model that can solve more intricate problems of air-sea search and rescue.

Ten Convicts Face Charges in Court

CANON CITY (UPI) — Ten convicts at Colorado State Prison were charged in Fremont County district court Monday and Tuesday with felonious escape—a charge seldom pressed by the state.

Among those charged was William Shearer, who recently walked away from the penitentiary and allegedly took two shots at a prison officer during the escape. He was captured after East Canon resident reported seeing him entering a neighbor's house.

Wilson postponed all cases to later this month. Others charged were Kenneth L. Mallenkopf, Aaron Aragon, Leonard E. Hobbs, John H. Schwickrath, Richard W. Silva, Paul R. Gallegos, Victor Van Buren Estill, John C. McClean and Larry R. Larsen.

Seventeen prisoners escaped the penitentiary this year, and three still are at large.

Election 'Violence' Just Celebration

COHOES, N.Y. (AP)—The defeated mayor of this Albany County city watched his Democratic administration fall in a stunning election upset and promptly declared a state of emergency.

Mayor Andrew H. Santspree ordered extra police into the streets early today because of what he said was widespread violence.

Newsmen who toured the city said they saw no violence.

Police later described the incident as "just a little celebration."

Santspree had told reporters, "The citizens are going crazy. They're ripping convertible tops, throwing bottles through windows and ripping down the American flags."

Dr. James E. McDonald, who unseated Santspree, said he had no knowledge of any violence. The physician led an independent Citizens party ticket.

Police Chief Harold Smith asked the state police for help but then canceled the request.

Independent candidates swept the Democrats from a position of municipal control they had held for 30 years.

Demo Leader's Son Faces Arraignment

CHICAGO (AP) — Erwin B. Arvey, 46, son of a Democratic party leader, faces arraignment in U. S. District Court in St. Louis Nov. 12 on a charge of transporting fraudulent securities across state lines.

FBI agents arrested Arvey charging him with carrying to St. Louis. He also is charged fradulent bonds with a face value of $200,000 to St. Louis. He also is charged with taking worthless bonds from Chicago to Los Angeles and using them as collateral for a loan.

Arvey, son of Jacob Arvey, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois, is free on $10,000 bond.

SWEET JOB

OKMULGEE, Okla. (AP) — Baking students at Oklahoma State Tech here got a big chance to practice their art when they prepared a 600-pound cake to be served to Tulsa State Fair visitors.

The cake measured 4 by 8 feet and was 5½ feet high. Its edible decorations, symbolizing the state's resources, included a miniature of the Eufaula dam, made of gum paste, with a lake of frosting behind it; jelly roll logs and a gum paste sawmill represented wood. A log cabin made of bread formed a replica of the birthplace of the late U.S. Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma.

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Visible through the capsule-like objects piled near the cash registers of restaurants and other local business places is the word "Dope."

Inside the capsules is a strip of paper with the legend: "Dope on Muskogee." The attention-getters were prepared by the Muskogee Optimists, the Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Merchants Association. Points of interest in the region are listed, as well as the names of six All - America football players from the area.

Surgery Provided at Sea By Unusual Arrangement

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Far out in the North Atlantic, aboard a freighter slowly steaming for Europe, a boy complains to his parents of a dull pain in his lower right abdomen.

The pain persists. Other symptoms show this is no ordinary bellyache. The captain is informed. Since freighters carrying 12 passengers or less are not required to have a doctor, the captain urgently radios the boy's symptoms to the Coast Guard here.

The U.S. Public Health Service Hospital on Staten Island sends the freighter a message: "Probable accute appendicitis, advise immediate evacuation."

This happened last month. The freighter was the S.S. Wolverine State and the lad was Ruykert Fowler, 9, of Nyack, N.Y. He likely owes his life to the things that happened after the diagnosis was made.

The Coast Guard instantly fired up a system which it says is the only one of its kind in the world—centered in a winking, blinking computer lifeguard called AMVER. It stands for Atlantic Merchant Vessel Report.

Under the direction of Cmdr. Mark F. Mitchell, AMVER was asked to name the ships anywhere within 200 miles of the rendezvous at sea.

AMVER swallowed the questions, its console lights winking across and up and down and its memory drum spinning 1,200 times a minute. The life-saving answer came five minutes later.

Humming pleasantly, AMVER click-clacked the reply on a roll of paper. The best ship for the mercy mission, it said, was the German passenger liner Bremen, less than 200 miles away and with a doctor aboard.

The Bremen steamed with Wolverine State for two days waiting for the seas to calm down. Then young Ruykert was transferred in a small boat and soon Dr. Jacob Suderman cut from him an inflamed appendix.

"We are grateful," said a message from the freighter to the Public Health Hospital and the Coast Guard, "to you and the U.S. Coast Guard for your cooperation and assistance."

There are about 3,500 merchant vessels of all nations in the North Atlantic at any one time. Of these, about 800 ships report in their movements each day to AMVER for plotting.

Prior to AMVER, the Coast Guard could make only a haphazard try to choose appropriate ships to aid other ships in distress.

"No attempt was made," said Mitchell, "to plot and advise on the hundreds of ships on the ocean each day."

AMVER does that, and more. In the shiny magnetic coils that store information are the capabilities of 15,000 ships of the world.

They represent 61 nations. The goal is to enroll ships of all nations in the system. Uppermost, however, is the aim of getting every ship that sails the North Atlantic each day to report in.

"Some don't even know about it," said Mitchell.

One nation that does know about it is the Soviet Union. But it has reported to AMVER only once, Mitchell said. That was in 1960 when Premier Khrushchev sailed back to the Soviet Union from the United States aboard the Baltika. AMVER plotted Baltika across the ocean.

AMVER also is used to solve some air-sea rescue problems.

The Coast Guard has been renting the computer for $60,000 a year since 1958. Despite its good work, the machine is considered obsolete.

Mitchell said the Coast Guard is already thinking about ordering a new model that can solve more intricate problems of air-sea search and rescue.

NEW DELHI — India's current power shortage is expected to last until 1972.

Ten Convicts Face Charges in Court

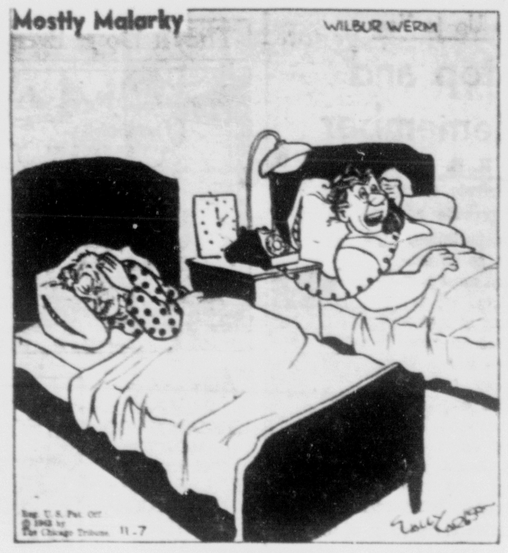
CANON CITY (UPI) — Ten convicts at Colorado State Prison were charged in Fremont County district court Monday and Tuesday with felonious escape—a charge seldom pressed by the state.

Among those charged was William Shearer, who recently walked away from the penitentiary and allegedly took two shots at a prison officer during the escape. He was captured after East Canon resident reported seeing him entering a neighbor's house.

Wilson postponed all cases to later this month. Others charged were Kenneth L. Mallenkopf, Aaron Aragon, Leonard E. Hobbs, John H. Schwickrath, Richard W. Silva, Paul R. Gallegos, Victor Van Buren Estill, John C. McClean and Larry R. Larsen.

Seventeen prisoners escaped the penitentiary this year, and three still are at large.

Mostly Malarky



"O, think nothing of it, Nell. I can sleep in the morning after I get Wilbur out of the way."

Election 'Violence' Just Celebration

COHOES, N.Y. (AP)—The defeated mayor of this Albany County city watched his Democratic administration fall in a stunning election upset and promptly declared a state of emergency.

Mayor Andrew H. Santspree ordered extra police into the streets early today because of what he said was widespread violence.

Newsmen who toured the city said they saw no violence.

Police later described the incident as "just a little celebration."

Santspree had told reporters, "The citizens are going crazy. They're ripping convertible tops, throwing bottles through windows and ripping down the American flags."

Dr. James E. McDonald, who unseated Santspree, said he had no knowledge of any violence. The physician led an independent Citizens party ticket.

Police Chief Harold Smith asked the state police for help but then canceled the request.

Independent candidates swept the Democrats from a position of municipal control they had held for 30 years.

Demo Leader's Son Faces Arraignment

CHICAGO (AP) — Ervwin B. Arvey, 46, son of a Democratic party leader, faces arraignment in U.S. District Court in St. Louis Nov. 12 on a charge of transporting fraudulent securities across state lines.

FBI agents arrested Arvey charging him with carrying to St. Louis. He also is charged fradulent bonds with a face value of $200,000 to St. Louis. He also is charged with taking worthless bonds from Chicago to Los Angeles and using them as collateral for a loan.

Arvey, son of Jacob Arvey, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois, is free on $10,000 bond.

SWEET JOB

OKMULGEE, Okla. (AP) — Baking students at Oklahoma State Tech here got a big chance to practice their art when they prepared a 600-pound cake to be served to Tulsa State Fair visitors.

The cake measured 4 by 8 feet and was 5½ feet high. Its edible decorations, symbolizing the state's resources, included a miniature of the Eufaula dam, made of gum paste, with a lake of frosting behind it; jelly roll logs and a gum paste sawmill represented wood. A log cabin made of bread formed a replica of the birthplace of the late U.S. Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma.

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Visible through the capsule-like objects piled near the cash registers of restaurants and other local business places is the word "Dope."

Inside the capsules is a strip of paper with the legend: "Dope on Muskogee." The attention-getters were prepared by the Muskogee Optimists, the Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Merchants Association. Points of interest in the region are listed, as well as the names of six All-America football players from the area.

France Proposes 'Steel War' by Common Market

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP)France is urging her Common Market partners to increase the trade bloc's tariffs on steel—a step which could make the chicken war look like chicken feed.

If the other five nations don't go along, France could act unilaterally through a loophole in the six-nation steel-coal treaty. Such action would endanger European economic unity

The French government proposed the steel tariff increase on Oct. 7 at a ministerial meeting of the coal-steel pool. The West German government, at the time still headed by Konrad Adenauer, supported the French. The question is to be decided at a meeting in Luxembourg Dec. 2.

The French proposal—to return to the tariff schedule that prevailed before 1958—would virtually double the tariff on certain types of steel imported by the six nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

It remains to be seen whether West Germany's new chancellor, Ludwig Erhard, will continue to back up the French demand described by one source as "rather vehement."

The United States staunchly opposes any increase in European steel tariffs and is considering taking the matter to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development—OECD—it was learned here today. The OECD links the United States and Canada with Western Europe in an institution designed to remove trade barriers.

Although a relatively small amount of steel is affected—about 3 million tons—the United States was reported to feel that any hike in steel tariffs could have a disastrous effect on Western commerce. Steel prices directly affect a whole range of other products.

The United States also feels that a rise in European duties on steel would have an extremely adverse effect on the forthcoming "Kennedy round" of trade negotiations next year within the framework of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade—GATT—in Geneva.

U.S Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson took the matter up with officials of the steel-coal pool this week when he arrived in Luxembourg on a visit to the Benelux nations. Johnson told leaders of the six-nation community the Kennedy administration hopes they will continue a policy of low tariffs on steel.

The present steel tariff schedule is a complicated one, varying according to types of steel and from country to country. Present rates average out between 5 and 7 per cent. The French want to boost the rates to between 9 and 12 per cent.

The community now produces almost 73 million tons of steel a year, exports about 12 million, and imports about 3 million tons of specialized steels.

About 300,000 tons a year comes on the community market from the United States, mostly at what is described as a low price. France contends that these 300,000 tons are disorganizing the community market by undercutting community prices.

The average price of steel in the community is about $100 a ton. As of last January, the German price was $101.30, the French price $96.60.

Coleman Pledges To Carry on Chamber Projects

The newly-elected president of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce, Norman A. Coleman has pledged to carry on the top aims of the chamber for 1964.

Coleman, a local real estate man, listed as prime importance the projects of securing a degree-granting institution of higher learning and a continuation of the effort to bring new industries to Colorado Springs and vicinity.

Coleman also said that he will appoint chairmen of the chamber committees before the middle of December to carry out the many activities of the chamber group as a whole.

Other projects listed by Coleman include:

Promotion of the tourist industry; an effort to ease the inventory tax as an enticement to industries to move to Colorado; an emphasis on increasing the present chamber membership; and an active political education program aimed at making the individual more aware of the importance of politics on the precinct level. The political effort will be strictly non-partisan and its purpose is to encourage the individual to take a more active part in politics, Coleman said.

Coleman will officially take office Jan. 1, of 1964.

Motor Fuel Tax Collection Drops

DENVER (AP) — Motor fuel tax collections during October were down slightly from the same period last year, Treasurer Homer Bedford's office reported Tuesday.

Total fuel tax collections for the Highway Users Fund totaled $3,490,554.62 during October compared with $3,757,127.53 for the same month a year ago. Ton mile tax collections last month were $767,362.90, compared with $776,577.62 for October 1962.

Total highway users' tax to be apportioned among state highways, counties and cities and towns was $4,066,444.48. Of this, $2,643,188.91 went to state highways, $1,057,275.57 to counties and $365,980 to cities.

Housewife Infested With Tiny Termites

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP)—Dade County physicians have reported the strange case of a 26-year-old Hialeah housewife who became infested with termites —wood-eating insects.

Writing in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, doctors said the woman, whose name was withheld, was admitted to Hialeah Hospital complaining of severe cramps in the lower abdomen.

The morning after her admission, physicians discovered "numerous, small, whitish organisms." The University of Miami School of Medicine identified them as common termites.

The woman, her husband and their 9-year-old son had lived for six months in a wooden frame house estimated to be about 15 years old. She said some "winged insects" often swarmed in the living room.

Dr. Wilton B. Reynolds Jr. said the termites were finally passed from the patient's body. Her recovery was uneventful.

The family moved from the house.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Human Rejection of Force

We are in the midst of discussing a free society and the enemies to its formation. In yesterday's editorials we examined the facts respecting the origin of evil in a society, showing that the greatest amount of evil arises from the well-meaning intentions of those who try to compel others to conform to their own sense of proper conduct.

There can be no question here as to the size of the problem we are confronting in our support of a free society.

For it is almost always true that when compulsion has been employed to FORCE any particular kind of conduct or to prevent other kinds of conduct, a type of rebellion is engendered, particularly among teenagers, which places a premium upon freedom and reduces the premium upon decent behavior and good taste.

Thus, in a society which has experimented as we have with liquor legislation, young people particularly are prone to symbolize their "freedom" by plunging into alcoholic consumption to "prove" just how free they really are.

In a society which has tried to legislate proper attire and dress, particularly the young and inexperienced are prone to try to demonstrate just how free they are by violating all of the tenets of good taste and even of ordinary reason.

Having learned that there are laws against obscenity or promiscuity, it is always to be expected that young people will try to "prove" just how free they are by becoming either obscene or promiscuous or both. They will hold up these practices, not as evidences of bad taste and a lack of self-control, but as symbols of the free society.

And it is just such conduct which encourages a belief among others who should know better that freedom is bad for people and that some kind of positive control must be invoked or society will run into chaos and disintegration.

We can recall only a single instance in history when the government of a nation actually invoked laws to encourage what we might all agree was improper conduct. We are thinking of Russia, immediately following the 1917 October revolution, when Lenin was in power and when he considered it a part of the objectives of Marx to make promiscuity a matter of state encouragement.

Laws were passed which provided for the "quickie" marriage and divorce. A young couple could get a license to live together without any fee whatever. They had only to present themselves to the proper commissar, who would issue them a "marriage certificate" and the union was suitably formalized. If a "divorce" was desirable afterwards, a convenient perforated section of the "certificate" could be detached and dropped in the post. The "divorce" cost nothing, either.

Additionally, laws were passed which legalized abortion. The young girl finding herself with an unwanted burden could telephone a state doctor who would legally relieve her of her condition.

What was the result of these laws? The Russian people not only did not "take advantage" of their newly legislated "freedom," they were revolted. They rejected the state provisions in such numbers that within a few years Lenin was compelled to revoke these rules.

Today, in Russia, the family unit survives and there are very stringent laws governing both divorce and abortion. Incidentally, since the laws were enacted against divorce and abortion, they are becoming more common.

Once more we see the tendency in men, regardless of race or nation, to move, admittedly in very small ways, toward an ultimate rejection of authoritarianism.

Intervention

Any government which intervenes in the economy to such an extent that it thwarts the growth can make an independent nation a dependent nation, and a free nation a welfare state.

Morality, a Sure Guide

We are going to contend that if freedom is ever accepted as a workable policy by means of which people can live together in a moral manner, the very existence of this policy will maximize the highest kind of behavior and the most elevated scale of values.

Undoubtedly, the single reliable methodology which would move us in this direction is sound education, conducted by teachers who themselves are firmly established in moral understanding and practice, outside of governmental encouragement and force.

We will further contend that if young people are free to choose their own conduct totally, within a surprisingly short time the social restraints they will invoke in their own sets will serve most decisively in instilling the finest and cleanest conduct imaginable.

If status within a group becomes associated both with freedom to choose and the obvious desirability of choosing most wisely and virtuously, woe betide the beatnik and his "sick" companions who flaunt their degeneracy before the world. Such would lose status at once. Nor would they serve to encourage more than a kind of passing morbid curiosity.

Moral behavior is nothing more nor less than proper conduct between persons. Moral behavior carried out means the quintessence of good manners, just as it means self-control and self-reliance. And as we have earlier shown, freedom itself relates to this relationship for it is the kind of condition that exists when a man is out from under the control of another of his kind.

Thus, freedom is a moral concept, a concept resting upon self-control and the willingness of the individual, not only to see to it that he does not trespass the rights of others, but more than that, the willingness of the individual to see that in all ways and in all things he does not even give the appearance of a possible trespasser.

In addition to the general recognition that man controls his own energy, and thus is responsible for all that he does, we must have some degree of economic understanding. A free society is dependent upon a willingness, not only of the person to refrain from a trespass against another person, but on a willingness for that person to refrain from a trespass upon the property of another.

The free society is that working arrangement in which we recognize that all property boundaries are sacred. It makes no difference what the property is, how much there is of it, or who owns it. A free society will be one in which each individual will restrain himself so that he does not trespass any property boundary.

Fortunately, all property has a boundary. It can be discerned and it can be located. Free conduct, moral conduct, right conduct are all predicated upon the recognition of the sanctity of boundary.

To commit a trespass against another person or his property is always immoral. It is always an instance of non-freedom. It is always an instance of the failure of both morals and manners.

When individuals are correctly educated in this regard, they will learn that the way to an abundant life and much joy in living is to acquire property for their own use and for the willing use of others. Again, the concept of morality and freedom comes to our assistance.

For our ability to own property privately is predicated upon the moral recognition that we must NOT invade the property of another, far more than it is upon the idea that we are ferocious enough to repel the invader.

True, we still have that minor segment of the human race which does not understand morality and operates immorally. But this does not provide us with an alibi to join them in their misconduct. Two wrongs do not make a right. A free society is not a society of slaves, regimented in fear under a predatory political arrangement.

It's Up to You

Stop and Remember

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.

Private enterprise has failed to provide adequate suburban transportation, the Socialists say, so government must step in, and we are about to appropriate an enormous sum of money to improve commuter service. Before doing so, we ought to stop and remember that government intervention is the cause of the present unsatisfactory condition.

The cheapest and most satisfactory way of taking people in and out of our cities is the railways. They have fallen down on the job on account of government fixing of rates, excessive taxation imposed by government, and government backed featherbedding with its enormous waste of the resources of the railroads.

When the railroads are allowed neither to fix their freight or passenger rates, to decide what trains to run, how much they will pay the men they hire, the rules under which they work, nor the amounts local, state, and federal governments take from them, how can they be expected to serve the people efficiently? Moreover, with all these obstacles to overcome, they must compete with subsidized bus and automobile transportation. The latter have free roads on which to run while the railroads must build their own highways and pay heavy taxes upon them.

It would appear, therefore, that our problem arises because of government intervention and now we hope to cure it at the taxpayer's expense by still more intervention.

One study indicated that one double-track railroad would handle as many suburban passengers far more quickly and comfortably than eight double-lane auto roads. If we had not taxed and regulated the railroads to the point of almost destroying them, the people would now be enjoying better, more comfortable and faster transportation at less expense than they can ever hope to enjoy by the use of our heavily subsidized automobile roads.

There is another important angle to this matter. Why should people who do not need or use suburban transporation pay a large part of the cost of those who do? Some people live in the crowded, dirty, noisy, uncomfortable cities because they cannot afford to live in the suburbs. Should they now be taxed to pay a part of the transportation costs of their more fortunate fellow citizens who choose to live in the suburbs? Should farmers and rural citizens help commuter pay their fares? If so, there isn't anything that anyone needs or wants that cannot be paid for in part by everybody else. Of course, it is ridiculous for any of us to think we can have more if we get other people to pay our bills while we contribute toward the payment of theirs. This process is very wasteful for its leads all of us to be more extravagant and less careful in our expenditures than we would be if we knew for sure and certain that we were paying the full cost of all the goods and services we consume.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Time to Clean House

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

Every time I back off to take a swift kick at private enterprise, I feel as bad as a proud father who suddenly discovers his favorite son plays piano in a bawdy house, and a cheap one at that. It is ridiculous. On the other hand, private enterprise is ridiculous when it tries to go government one better by attempting to steal from an unwary customer.

In May, the transmission on our car sprang a leak and we added fluid at the rate of one quart for every fifty miles of travel. At the end of our 850-mile journey, we expected to have the transmission repaired. I discussed the matter with a mechanic who had been recommended to me and he gave me a quick answer. "There's only one thing to do when they act like that: Get an overhaul, have all of the seals replaced and it will cost you $150 plus tax and transmission fluid."

I discussed the situation with a couple of other people and didn't feel comfortable with the answers I received. I bought a few cans of transmission fluid to make sure it would not run dry and the service station overcharged me 15 cents a quart for ten quarts. One man said, "Well, you'll have to get it fixed before you drive back to Arizona, anyway," and that did it. We made the return trip safely by stopping about every 100 miles to check the transmission fluid and to make additions as needed.

Locally, the charge for replacing the seals, adjusting and generally taking care of what was needed cost us $46.46 including tax and fluid and the job was done by an authorized dealer, but that's not the whole story. Three years ago I called on the same dealership, then under different management and was told I had a burned out starting motor. Because no replacement motor was found in town, I insisted on having the old motor returned to its resting place, for which I was charged $7.50. I returned to our ghost town and our next-door neighbor checked over the starting motor, cleaned it up and a year later it still operated in good condition. At that time I had California plates on my car.

The most recent incident found us with Arizona plates in Colorado. I can document a dozen or more incidents which involved out-of-state tourists who were cheated in Arizona and within 30 miles of our ghost town. At first glance, cheating out-of-town motorists seems to be a standard practice but everybody we had dealings with in Colorado or on our trip, going and returning, did not cheat us and let me tell you, we will remember each and every one of the honest merchants if we ever make a return trip or know anyone who intends to make that trip.

I believe that trying to get something for nothing has become a national habit, another of the unfortunate correlative aspects of socialism. It doesn't take much intelligence to understand that such sharp practices provide those addicted to governmental giantism with excuses to enact more and more laws and place more and more controls upon business. On the other hand, if you've recently been cheated out of $100 or more by an automobile mechanic, you may find it difficult to understand that more laws and controls will only make things worse.

Sure, there may always be merchants who try to cheat their customers, just as government cheats the governed, but I've had dealings with a lot of merchants since about 1918 and I know that the amount of cheating has increased just as rapidly as crime and suicide and for the same reasons. The wonder is that at least four out of every five merchants operate legitimate and ethical businesses. Compare that with what politicians do to their constituents and you realize why some unthinking people believe that more businessmen should get into politics on the theory that one sound apple may be able to make a barrel of rotten apples healthy again, an obvious impossibility.

Every person involved with the private enterprise system can defend the system against socialism best by cleaning up his own house and making certain it stays clean. The rewards will be much greater than any apparent and temporary gains which can be made by cheating.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

To The Point

The Fighting in Morocco

By RUSSELL KIRK

If you want to see a country burning with war-fever — why, don't visit Morocco just now. A thousand or more Moroccan soldiers are holding two oases in the extreme southwest of this land against the Algerians, and one Moroccan village has been bombed by an Algerian plane. But in the west and north of Morocco, where the cities are, one could not ask for a more peaceful and orderly environment.

These lines are written at Marrakesh, the city closest (but not close) to the border-fighting, a prosperous old place with a quarter of a million inhabitants. King Hassan II has been in Marrakesh for a few days, entertaining first Mrs. John F. Kennedy and then the Emperor Haile Selassie. (Your servant didn't lunch with either of these other tourists.) Thousands of Berber tribesmen have come in from the desert to ride, shoot, and dance in honor of the distinguished guests. Like the townsmen of Marrakesh, the Berbers don't seem the least worried about the skirmishing round Colomb-Bechar (the frontier town held by Algeria).

In Algeria, the dictator Ahmed Ben Bella ordered general mobilization — probably as much against rebellious Kaybyles (less than a hundred miles from Algiers) as against the "imperialistic feudal monarchy" of Morocco. But the government of the Moroccan king, unhysterical, does nothing of the sort. Most Moroccan troops remain in their camps in the interior, with families often living with them, amicable and lackadaisical. The only troop-movement which this writer has observed consisted of three armored cars proceeding from Rabat to Meknes, hundreds of miles from the front.

And unlike their Algerian counterparts, the Moroccan newspapers are whipping up no enthusiasm for glorious war. Neither is any dread of Algeria evident. The Moroccans expect that Ben Bella's domestic difficulties — and the fact that on the east Tunisia, too, has boundary-disputes with Algeria —will prevent the vainglorious Ben Bella from attempting a serious campaign.

Despite the attempts of leftist elements of the European press — and of Nasser in Egypt — to represent Morocco as the aggressor in this squabble, the Moroccan claim to "rectification" of their frontier with Algeria is legitimate. While the French still dominated Algeria and Morocco, they kept pushing the boundaries of Algeria further west, into what had been Moroccan territory for centuries: for Algeria counted as a French province, while Morocco was only a protectorate. Now that the French are gone from both countries, the Moroccan government wants the vague frontier in the deserts of the Sahara defined to restore a part of what Morocco had lost to French-administered Algeria.

So far as there has been provocation, it has come from the Algerians in that region, who took temporarily two frontier-stations that the Moroccans had held (and have now regained); also, apparently, the Algerians kidnapped a number of Moroccan subjects in this wilderness. While Ben Bella experiences trouble close to Algiers, the Moroccans endeavor to secure their border against such incursions.

Neither Morocco nor Algeria feels wealthy enough, or strong enough, to launch into a real modern war. The significant fact about the present diplomatic and military sniping, rather, is the rapid dissolution of whatever bonds of fraternity connected the "Arab brothers" of the Barbary Coast. In North Africa, as in the Dark Continent generally, the notion of "African unity" will fade rapidly now; and the strength of the African bloc in the General Assembly of the United Nations probably will diminish proportionately in the next year or two.

WONDERFUL EXAMPLE

To the Editor:

From time to time I have referred to a particularly responsible male parent in my column. "Teenager's View" published in Open Parliament on October 12 provided a wonderful example of what can happen when a parent bothers to take the time to help in the education of his children. Lovely, bright and diminutive Marina Lesley is NOT a "teenager." She is ten years old and reads, studies and discusses the editorial pages of the Gazette Telegraph with her father. Marina was in bed with the chicken pox and her father gave her a couple of ideas to write about. But let me quote from her father's letter to me, "She put the stuff in her own words and came up with some ideas I had not thought of. She reads your stuff all the time and says she got her ideas from you."

I've known Mr. Albert Lesley, self-responsible parent, for a good many years. His dedicated effort to see to it that his children achieve an education not readily available in schools has earned my profound respect. His son, Dan, could read before he started school. Both children are attractive, healthy, well behaved and goodnatured. As a matter of fact, Marina is so typically a little girl as to make it difficult for anyone who meets her to fully understand the intellectual capacity of a ten-year-old.

I am certain Mr. Albert Lesley will fully agree with me when I say that anyone can do what he has done, if they will.

'DUMB PUBLIC'

To the Editor:

I, too, am one of these types . . .but more important I need to know what can I do to change the political picture as we see it today. It is not in the hands of the public anymore. But what can WE do. . .vote? What good is the popular vote as long as we have the electoral college. . . and the political setups that control even the city and county elections. Can you guarantee that our votes will be counted for or against a person or an amendment?

As a cost analyst, I tried to enter politics, in the county treasurer's office, but I made the mistake of still being one of the "dumb public." Before I knew what had happened, I was used as a scapegoat to make room for a radical change in the "Party," the oncoming conversion within the county structure from Republican control to Democratic control. If you feel I am wrong, just wait and see what two present county commissioners will not run in the next election next year.

Please let me, and untold millions like myself, find the way to get the government back into the hands of the public. . .yes, the dumb public. As an analyst, experienced in the field of bankruptcy these past 15 years, I wonder just HOW LONG any company would last if all the employees were required to pay tribute to the bosses, with freedom to spend the money as "they" see fit. How long would the "dumb public" patronize the company that treated them as the government, city, county, state and national, treats US now?

How do we get "EDUCATED?"

UP IN ARMS

To the Editor:

We Colorado natives are wild at the thought of destroying the magnificent Trianon there. We resent extremely the fact that all these years not even any of the pioneers here ever heard of it because it was never allowed to be advertised, thus depriving us and thousands of tourists from ever seeing it. Thank goodness our Denver papers brought this to our attention, so that some of us were able to take a tour thru but many had to be turned away.

Don't you realize this could easily be the state's number one tourist attraction, and make Colorado have the distinction of being the home of one of the nation's most beautiful showplaces, to say nothing of the preservation of priceless art treasures from all over the world which should be saved for posterity?

Those of us who have visited Mt. Vernon, Monticello, and yes, even the White House, realize that none of them can compare with the Trianon, and we are really fighting to save it by writing our congressmen, Senators, our President and others who will help.

Shame on Colorado Springs for letting matters develop as they have. Now it looks as if other Colorado citizens will have to take over.

We intend to fight because at least some of us can see the difference between a work of art and a lot of cheap junk which is displayed to our tourists and which only cheapens Colorado in their eyes.

Surely there must be many civic-minded citizens there who will agree and join in our plea to save the Trianon.

S. S. TAXES

To the Editor:

We sit and read about people that always write in "downing" our president. When a president is in office, why not pull with him instead of against him?

Again, they are always talking about social security and the money we pay out. We think social security is one of the best taxes we have ever paid out, and we still have a long time to pay. Do people really know that social security is wonderful and that it helps our poor old folks; and if you have children, it helps raise them, and care for the wife that is left behind?

I don't mind paying out for that, but school tax, I sure do; and we pay plenty for people to have the pleasure of having them and the people who don't have any children have to help raise them.

Only people that have money or so ne big business don't want social security. We certainly do not make a fortune to pay out for insurance or go into business. The young people that pay on social security now should be glad they can have it, as it really is security; if ever the time should come to put it aside, the war would certainly come to us all right here in America.

If people would wake up and stop letting the big shots rule us, we would be better off. They are only people like us, filling their pockets.

Maybe we do pay out a lot of money on social security and more tax than we can afford, but why not make the politicians that run us get their hands out of the till?

P. S. Do you people know that retired men have wives working to get three years in on this social security? I have paid it for 27 years and still have some 19 years to go hurry for social security.

These Days

Polititcal Machinery

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The late Senator Robert Taft has been quoted as saying, in a moment of rueful exasperation, that "Wall Street has chosen every Republican candidate for president since 1940." Mindful of this supposed power of the "eastern liberal, international Republicans," the volunteers who have been doing the dog work thruout the country for the Draft Goldwater movement have kept looking over their shoulders for the great "Wall Street" hobgoblin. But, as the weeks go on, they are beginning to suspect that there is nothing there.

Says F. Clifton White, the national director of the Draft Goldwater committee, "I'm starting to think that this business about the Chase Bank running the politics of the country is all a myth. We read about the eastern liberal internationalists who are going to stop Goldwater, but we never come across their tracks."

Mr. White has a theory about this. Looking back at the campaign of 1952, when Taft was sidetracked by the Eisenhower movement, he admits that the "Easterners" wielded a lot of political power in those days. But, as he says, that power was a blend of two elements. There was, first, the power of money, used to finance the anti-Taft forces in crucial states. "But in addition to this," he points out, "there was the great political machine operated by Thomas Dewey. This machine has been dismantled, and nothing has been assembled to take its place."

Mr. White thinks it unlikely that the "money power" has the time to finance a new political machine in the few months that remain between now and the Republican Convention of 1964. Moreover, he is beginning to doubt that it even cares to. In the first place, the day has passed when a big New York bank could call up a bank in Wichita, Kansas, or Amarillo, Texas, and hint that the "boys" had better get behind so-and-so's candidacy or a few loans might be called.

LOADED

"Today," says Mr. White, "the bank in Wichita would say to Wall Street, 'What can we do for you today? If you need some money, we've got a lot of cash to spare. Can we make you a loan?'"

The fact that the flush Texas and California banks no longer depend on "Wall Street" means that local businessmen can no longer be coerced by the so-called "eastern, internationalist, liberal" Republican conclave.

But there is even more to the story than this.

"The truth would seem to be that a lot of people in 'Wall Street' like Goldwater," says Mr. White. "There's the phenomenon of the Greenwich Republicans in Connecticut. They have been part of the 'eastern, internationalist' group. But they are very much for Goldwater at this time."

So, between the erosion of their power to dictate to bankers in Missouri and Montana and their admiration for Barry Goldwater, the "Easterners" have not seen fit even to attempt the organization of the equivalent of the old Thomas Dewey political machine to put over an anti-Goldwater candidate.

NEW BREED

Things may change, of course, if Goldwater stumbles in the primaries by offending grass roots sentiment. But if Goldwater falters, "Wall Street" will hardly step in to dictate a successor candidate. The new breed of Republican state chairman, as Mr. White points out, consists of young men like Bill Walters of the State of Washington, Jack Shaw of Nevada, Joe Skeen of New Mexico, Peter O'Donnell of Texas, Tom Hall of Florida, John Grenier of Alabama, and Bob Stewart of Indiana. These men are nobody's stooges. Nor is Ray Bliss of Ohio or Dave Nichols of Maine, who are a little older than most of the new breed.

The fact is that the power in the Republican Party today has become rather evenly diffused thruout fifty states. If it decides that Goldwater is not the man to take on John F. Kennedy, it will not be stampeded by the equivalent of the Willkie blitz forces of 1940. It will not accept a General Lucius Clay, for example, merely because the "liberal east" likes a military hero. Clay would have to sell himself to the Republican delegates by exerting his own charm on them directly. As for Nelson Rockefeller, his money will count less in the primaries than the ability of his wife Happy to charm the local matrons into forgetting their prejudices about divorce.

The old rules are off. The new rules are in course of being formulated. We shall see what we shall see.

Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

34 COLORADO SPRINGS GAZETTE TELEGRAPH THURSDAY, NOV. 7, 1963

Human Rejection of Force

We are in the midst of discussing a free society and the enemies to its formation. In yesterday's editorials we examined the facts respecting the origin of evil in a society, showing that the greatest amount of evil arises from the well-meaning intentions of those who try to compel others to conform to their own sense of proper conduct.

There can be no question here as to the size of the problem we are confronting in our support of a free society.

For it is almost always true that when compulsion has been employed to FORCE any particular kind of conduct or to prevent other kinds of conduct, a type of rebellion is engendered, particularly among teenagers, which places a premium upon freedom and reduces the premium upon decent behavior and good taste.

Thus, in a society which has experimented as we have with liquor legislation, young people particularly are prone to symbolize their "freedom" by plunging into alcoholic consumption to "prove" just how free they really are.

In a society which has tried to legislate proper attire and dress, particularly the young and inexperienced are prone to try to demonstrate just how free they are by violating all of the tenets of good taste and even of ordinary reason.

Having learned that there are laws against obscenity or promiscuity, it is always to be expected that young people will try to "prove" just how free they are by becoming either obscene or promiscuous or both. They will hold up these practices, not as evidences of bad taste and a lack of self-control, but as symbols of the free society.

And it is just such conduct which encourages a belief among others who should know better that freedom is bad for people and that some kind of positive control must be invoked or society will run into chaos and disintegration.

We can recall only a single instance in history when the government of a nation actually invoked laws to encourage what we might all agree was improper conduct. We are thinking of Russia, immediately following the 1917 October revolution, when Lenin was in power and when he considered it a part of the objectives of Marx to make promiscuity a matter of state encouragement.

Laws were passed which provided for the "quickie" marriage and divorce. A young couple could get a license to live together without any fee whatever. They had only to present themselves to the proper commissar, who would issue them a "marriage certificate" and the union was suitably formalized. If a "divorce" was desirable afterwards, a convenient perforated section of the "certificate" could be detached and dropped in the post. The "divorce" cost nothing, either.

Additionally, laws were passed which legalized abortion. The young girl finding herself with an unwanted burden could telephone a state doctor who would legally relieve her of her condition.

What was the result of these laws? The Russian people not only did not "take advantage" of their newly legislated "freedom," they were revolted. They rejected the state provisions in such numbers that within a few years Lenin was compelled to revoke these rules.

Today, in Russia, the family unit survives and there are very stringent laws governing both divorce and abortion. Incidentally, since the laws were enacted against divorce and abortion, they are becoming more common.

Once more we see the tendency in men, regardless of race or nation, to move, admittedly in very small ways, toward an ultimate rejection of authoritarianism.

Intervention

Any government which intervenes in the economy to such an extent that it thwarts the growth can make an independent nation a dependent nation, and a free nation a welfare state.

Morality, a Sure Guide

We are going to contend that if freedom is ever accepted as a workable policy by means of which people can live together in a moral manner, the very existence of this policy will maximize the highest kind of behavior and the most elevated scale of values.

Undoubtedly, the single reliable methodology which would move us in this direction is sound education, conducted by teachers who themselves are firmly established in moral understanding and practice, outside of governmental encouragement and force.

We will further contend that if young people are free to choose their own conduct totally, within a surprisingly short time the social restraints they will invoke in their own sets will serve most decisively in instilling the finest and cleanest conduct imaginable.

If status within a group becomes associated both with freedom to choose and the obvious desirability of choosing most wisely and virtuously, woe betide the beatnik and his "sick" companions who flaunt their degeneracy before the world. Such would lose status at once. Nor would they serve to encourage more than a kind of passing morbid curiosity.

Moral behavior is nothing more nor less than proper conduct between persons. Moral behavior carried out means the quintessence of good manners, just as it means self-control and self-reliance. And as we have earlier shown, freedom itself relates to this relationship for it is the kind of condition that exists when a man is out from under the control of another of his kind.

Thus, freedom is a moral concept, a concept resting upon self-control and the willingness of the individual, not only to see to it that he does not trespass the rights of others, but more than that, the willingness of the individual to see that in all ways and in all things he does not even give the appearance of a possible trespasser.

In addition to the general recognition that man controls his own energy, and thus is responsible for all that he does, we must have some degree of economic understanding. A free society is dependent upon a willingness, not only of the person to refrain from a trespass against another person, but on a willingness for that person to refrain from a trespass upon the property of another.

The free society is that working arrangement in which we recognize that all property boundaries are sacred. It makes no difference what the property is, how much there is of it, or who owns it. A free society will be one in which each individual will restrain himself so that he does not trespass any property boundary.

Fortunately, all property has a boundary. It can be discerned and it can be located. Free conduct, moral conduct, right conduct are all predicated upon the recognition of the sanctity of boundary.

To commit a trespass against another person or his property is always immoral. It is always an instance of non-freedom. It is always an instance of the failure of both morals and manners.

When individuals are correctly educated in this regard, they will learn that the way to an abundant life and much joy in living is to acquire property for their own use and for the willing use of others. Again, the concept of morality and freedom comes to our assistance.

For our ability to own property privately is predicated upon the moral recognition that we must NOT invade the property of another, far more than it is upon the idea that we are ferocious enough to repel the invader.

True, we still have that minor segment of the human race which does not understand morality and operates immorally. But this does not provide us with an alibi to join them in their misconduct. Two wrongs do not make a right. A free society is not a society of slaves, regimented in fear under a predatory political arrangement.

It's Up to You

Stop and Remember

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.

Private enterprise has failed to provide adequate suburban transportation, the Socialists say, so government must step in, and we are about to appropriate an enormous sum of money to improve commuter service. Before doing so, we ought to stop and remember that government intervention is the cause of the present unsatisfactory condition.

The cheapest and most satisfactory way of taking people in and out of our cities is the railways. They have fallen down on the job on account of government fixing of rates, excessive taxation imposed by government, and government backed featherbedding with its enormous waste of the resources of the railroads.

When the railroads are allowed neither to fix their freight or passenger rates, to decide what trains to run, how much they will pay the men they hire, the rules under which they work, nor the amounts local, state, and federal governments take from them, how can they be expected to serve the people efficiently? Moreover, with all these obstacles to overcome, they must compete with subsidized bus and automobile transportation. The latter have free roads on which to run while the railroads must build their own highways and pay heavy taxes upon them.

It would appear, therefore, that our problem arises because of government intervention and now we hope to cure it at the taxpayer's expense by still more intervention.

One study indicated that one double-track railroad would handle as many suburban passengers far more quickly and comfortably than eight double-lane auto roads. If we had not taxed and regulated the railroads to the point of almost destroying them, the people would now be enjoying better, more comfortable and faster transportation at less expense than they can ever hope to enjoy by the use of our heavily subsidized automobile roads.

There is another important angle to this matter. Why should people who do not need or use suburban transporation pay a large part of the cost of those who do? Some people live in the crowded, dirty, noisy, uncomfortable cities because they cannot afford to live in the suburbs. Should they now be taxed to pay a part of the transportation costs of their more fortunate fellow citizens who choose to live in the suburbs? Should farmers and rural citizens help commuter pay their fares? If so, there isn't anything that anyone needs or wants that cannot be paid for in part by everybody else. Of course, it is ridiculous for any of us to think we can have more if we get other people to pay our bills while we contribute toward the payment of theirs. This process is very wasteful for its leads all of us to be more extravagant and less careful in our expenditures than we would be if we knew for sure and certain that we were paying the full cost of all the goods and services we consume.

Time to Clean House

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

Every time I back off to take a swift kick at private enterprise, I feel as bad as a proud father who suddenly discovers his favorite son plays piano in a bawdy house, and a cheap one at that. It is ridiculous. On the other hand, private enterprise is ridiculous when it tries to go government one better by attempting to steal from an unwary customer.

In May, the transmission on our car sprang a leak and we added fluid at the rate of one quart for every fifty miles of travel. At the end of our 850-mile journey, we expected to have the transmission repaired. I discussed the matter with a mechanic who had been recommended to me and he gave me a quick answer. "There's only one thing to do when they act like that: Get an overhaul, have all of the seals replaced and it will cost you $150 plus tax and transmission fluid."

I discussed the situation with a couple of other people and didn't feel comfortable with the answers I received. I bought a few cans of transmission fluid to make sure it would not run dry and the service station overcharged me 15 cents a quart, for ten quarts. One man said, "Well, you'll have to get it fixed before you drive back to Arizona, anyway," and that did it. We made the return trip safely by stopping about every 100 miles to check the transmission fluid and to make additions as needed.

Locally, the charge for replacing the seals, adjusting and generally taking care of what was needed cost us $46.46 including tax and fluid and the job was done by an authorized dealer, but that's not the whole story. Three years ago I called on the same dealership, then under different management and was told I had a burned out starting motor. Because no replacement motor was found in town, I insisted on having the old motor returned to its resting place, for which I was charged $7.50. I returned to our ghost town and our next-door neighbor checked over the starting motor, cleaned it up and a year later it still operated in good condition. At that time I had California plates on my car.

The most recent incident found us with Arizona plates in Colorado. I can document a dozen or more incidents which involved out-of-state tourists who were cheated in Arizona and within 30 miles of our ghost town. At first glance, cheating out-of-town motorists seems to be a standard practice but everybody we had dealings with in Colorado or on our trip, going and returning, did not cheat us and let me tell you, we will remember each and every one of the honest merchants if we ever make a return trip or know anyone who intends to make that trip.

I believe that trying to get something for nothing has become a national habit, another of the unfortunate correlative aspects of socialism. It doesn't take much intelligence to understand that such sharp practices provide those addicted to governmental giantism with excuses to enact more and more laws and place more and more controls upon business. On the other hand, if you've recently been cheated out of $100 or more by an automobile mechanic, you may find it difficult to understand that more laws and controls will only make things worse.

Sure, there may always be merchants who try to cheat their customers, just as government cheats the governed, but I've had dealings with a lot of merchants since about 1918 and I know that the amount of cheating has increased just as rapidly as crime and suicide and for the same reasons. The wonder is that at least four out of every five merchants operate legitimate and ethical businesses. Compare that with what politicians do to their constituents and you realize why some unthinking people believe that more businessmen should get into politics on the theory that one sound apple may be able to make a barrel of rotten apples healthy again, an obvious impossibility.

Every person involved with the private enterprise system can defend the system against socialism best by cleaning up his own house and making certain it stays clean. The rewards will be much greater than any apparent and temporary gains which can be made by cheating.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

To The Point

The Fighting in Morocco

By RUSSELL KIRK

If you want to see a country burning with war-fever — why, don't visit Morocco just now. A thousand or more Moroccan soldiers are holding two oases in the extreme southwest of this land against the Algerians, and one Moroccan village has been bombed by an Algerian plane. But in the west and north of Morocco, where the cities are, one could not ask for a more peaceful and orderly environment.

These lines are written at Marrakesh, the city closest (but not close) to the border-fighting, a prosperous old place with a quarter of a million inhabitants. King Hassan II has been in Marrakesh for a few days, entertaining first Mrs. John F. Kennedy and then the Emperor Haile Selassie. (Your servant didn't lunch with either of these other tourists.) Thousands of Berber tribesmen have come in from the desert to ride, shoot, and dance in honor of the distinguished guests. Like the townsmen of Marrakesh, the Berbers don't seem the least worried about the skirmishing round Colomb-Bechar (the frontier town held by Algeria).

In Algeria, the dictator Ahmed Ben Bella ordered general mobilization — probably as much against rebellious Kaybyles (less than a hundred miles from Algiers) as against the "imperialistic feudal monarchy" of Morocco. But the government of the Moroccan king, unhysterical, does nothing of the sort. Most Moroccan troops remain in their camps in the interior, with families often living with them, amicable and lackadaisical. The only troop-movement which this writer has observed consisted of three armored cars proceeding from Rabat to Meknes, hundreds of miles from the front.

And unlike their Algerian counterparts, the Moroccan newspapers are whipping up no enthusiasm for glorious war. Neither is any dread of Algeria evident. The Moroccans expect that Ben Bella's domestic difficulties — and the fact that on the east Tunisia, too, has boundary-disputes with Algeria —will prevent the vainglorious Ben Bella from attempting a serious campaign.

Despite the attempts of leftist elements of the European press — and of Nasser in Egypt — to represent Morocco as the aggressor in this squabble, the Moroccan claim to "rectification" of their frontier with Algeria is legitimate. While the French still dominated Algeria and Morocco, they kept pushing the boundaries of Algeria further west, into what had been Moroccan territory for centuries for Algeria counted as a French province, while Morocco was only a protectorate. Now that the French are gone from both countries, the Moroccan government wants the vague frontier in the deserts of the Sahara defined to restore a part of what Morocco had lost to French-administered Algeria.

So far as there has been provocation, it has come from the Algerians in that region, who took temporarily two frontier-stations that the Moroccans had held (and have now regained); also, apparently, the Algerians kidnapped a number of Moroccan subjects in this wilderness. While Ben Bella experiences trouble close to Algiers, the Moroccans endeavor to secure their border against such incursions.

Neither Morocco nor Algeria feels wealthy enough, or strong enough, to launch into a real modern war. The significant fact about the present diplomatic and military sniping, rather, is the rapid dissolution of whatever bonds of fraternity connected the "Arab brothers" of the Barbary Coast. In North Africa, as in the Dark Continent generally, the notion of "African unity" will fade rapidly now; and the strength of the African bloc in the General Assembly of the United Nations probably will diminish proportionately in the next year or two.

WONDERFUL EXAMPLE

To the Editor:

From time to time I have referred to a particularly responsible male parent in my column, "Teenager's View" published in Open Parliament on October 12 provided a wonderful example of what can happen when a parent bothers to take the time to help in the education of his children. Lovely, bright and diminutive Marina Lesley is NOT a "teenager." She is ten years old and reads, studies and discusses the editorial pages of the Gazette Telegraph with her father. Marina was in bed with the chicken pox and her father gave her a couple of ideas to write about. But let me quote from her father's letter to me, "She put the stuff in her own words and came up with some ideas I had not thought of. She reads your stuff all the time and says she got her ideas from you."

I've known Mr. Albert Lesley, self-responsible parent, for a good many years. His dedicated effort to see to it that his children achieve an education not readily available in schools has earned my profound respect. His son, Dan, could read before he started school. Both children are attractive, healthy, well behaved and goodnatured. As a matter of fact, Marina is so typically a little girl as to make it difficult for anyone who meets her to fully understand the intellectual capacity of a ten-year-old.

I am certain Mr. Albert Lesley will fully agree with me when I say that anyone can do what he has done, if they will.

'DUMB PUBLIC'

To the Editor:

I, too, am one of these types . . .but more important I need to know what can I do to change the political picture as we see it today. It is not in the hands of the public anymore. But what can WE do. . .vote? What good is the popular vote as long as we have the electoral college. . . and the political setups that control even the city and county elections. Can you guarantee that our votes will be counted for or against a person or an amendment?

As a cost analyst, I tried to enter politics, in the county treasurer's office, but I made the mistake of still being one of the "dumb public." Before I knew what had happened, I was used as a scapegoat to make room for a radical change in the "Party," the oncoming conversion within the county structure from Republican control to Democratic control. If you feel I am wrong, just wait and see what two present county commissioners will not run in the next election next year.

Please let me, and untold millions like myself, find the way to get the government back into the hands of the public. . .yes, the dumb public. As an analyst, experienced in the field of bankruptcy these past 15 years, I wonder just HOW LONG any company would last if all the employees were required to pay tribute to the bosses, with freedom to spend the money as "they" see fit. How long would the "dumb public" patronize the company that treated them as the government, city, county, state and national, treats US now?

How do we get "EDUCATED?"

Polititcal Machinery

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The late Senator Robert Taft has been quoted as saying, in a moment of rueful exasperation, that "Wall Street has chosen every Republican candidate for president since 1940." Mindful of this supposed power of the "eastern liberal, international Republicans," the volunteers who have been doing the dog work thruout the country for the Draft Goldwater movement have kept looking over their shoulders for the great "Wall Street" hobgoblin. But, as the weeks go on, they are beginning to suspect that there is nothing there.

Says F. Clifton White, the national director of the Draft Goldwater committee, "I'm starting to think that this business about the Chase Bank running the politics of the country is all a myth. We read about the eastern liberal internationalists who are going to stop Goldwater, but we never come across their tracks."

Mr. White has a theory about this. Looking back at the campaign of 1952, when Taft was sidetracked by the Eisenhower movement, he admits that the "Easterners" wielded a lot of political power in those days. But, as he says, that power was a blend of two elements. There was, first, the power of money, used to finance the anti - Taft forces in crucial states. "But in addition to this," he points out, "there was the great political machine operated by Thomas Dewey. This machine has been dismantled, and nothing has been assembled to take its place."

Mr. White thinks it unlikely that the "money power" has the time to finance a new political machine in the few months that remain between now and the Republican Convention of 1964. Moreover, he is beginning to doubt that it even cares to. In the first place, the day has passed when a big New York bank could call up a bank in Wichita, Kansas, or Amarillo, Texas, and hint that the "boys" had better get behind so-and-so's candidacy or a few loans might be called.

LOADED

"Today," says Mr. White, "the bank in Wichita would say to Wall Street, 'What can we do for you today? If you need some money, we've got a lot of cash to spare. Can we make you a loan?'"

The fact that the flush Texas and California banks no longer depend on "Wall Street" means that local businessmen can no longer be coerced by the so-called "eastern, internationalist, liberal" Republican conclave.

But there is even more to the story than this.

"The truth would seem to be that a lot of people in 'Wall Street' like Goldwater," says Mr. White. "There's the phenomenon of the Greenwich Republicans in Connecticut. They have been part of the 'eastern, internationalist' group. But they are very much for Goldwater at this time."

So, between the erosion of their power to dictate to bankers in Missouri and Montana and their admiration for Barry Goldwater, the "Easterners" have not seen fit even to attempt the organization of the equivalent of the old Thomas Dewey political machine to put over an anti-Goldwater candidate.

NEW BREED

Things may change, of course, if Goldwater stumbles in the primaries by offending grass roots sentiment. But if Goldwater falters, "Wall Street" will hardly step in to dictate a successor candidate. The new breed of Republican state chairman, as Mr. White points out, consists of young men like Bill Walters of the State of Washington, Jack Shaw of Nevada, Joe Skeen of New Mexico, Peter O'Donnell of Texas, Tom Hall of Florida, John Grenier of Alabama, and Bob Stewart of Indiana. These men are nobody's stooges. Nor is Ray Bliss of Ohio or Dave Nichols of Maine, who are a little older than most of the new breed.

The fact is that the power in the Republican Party today has become rather evenly diffused thruout fifty states. If it decides that Goldwater is not the man to take on John F. Kennedy, it will not be stampeded by the equivalent of the Willkie blitz forces of 1940. It will not accept a General Lucius Clay, for example, merely because the "liberal east" likes a military hero. Clay would have to sell himself to the Republican delegates by exerting his own charm on them directly. As for Nelson Rockefeller, his money will count less in the primaries than the ability of his wife Happy to charm the local matrons into forgetting their prejudices about divorce.

The old rules are off. The new rules are in course of being formulated. We shall see what we shall see.

Surgery Provided at Sea By Unusual Arrangement

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Far out in the North Atlantic, aboard a freighter slowly steaming for Europe, a boy complains to his parents of a dull pain in his lower right abdomen.

The pain persists. Other symptoms show this is no ordinary bellyache. The captain is informed. Since freighters carrying 12 passengers or less are not required to have a doctor, the captain urgently radios the boy's symptoms to the Coast Guard here.

The U.S. Public Health Service Hospital on Staten Island sends the freighter a message: "Probable accute appendicitis, advise immediate evacuation."

This happened last month. The freighter was the S.S. Wolverine State and the lad was Ruykert Fowler, 9, of Nyack, N.Y. He likely owes his life to the things that happened after the diagnosis was made.

The Coast Guard instantly fired up a system which it says is the only one of its kind in the world—centered in a winking, blinking computer lifeguard called AMVER. It stands for Atlantic Merchant Vessel Report.

Under the direction of Cmdr. Mark F. Mitchell, AMVER was asked to name the ships anywhere within 200 miles of the rendezvous at sea.

AMVER swallowed the questions, its console lights winking across and up and down and its memory drum spinning 1,200 times a minute. The life-saving answer came five minutes later.

Humming pleasantly, AMVER click-clacked the reply on a roll of paper. The best ship for the mercy mission, it said, was the German passenger liner Bremen, less than 200 miles away and with a doctor aboard.

The Bremen steamed with Wolverine State for two days waiting for the seas to calm down. Then young Ruykert was transferred in a small boat and soon Dr. Jacob Suderman cut from him an inflamed appendix.

"We are grateful," said a message from the freighter to the Public Health Hospital and the Coast Guard, "to you and the U.S. Coast Guard for your cooperation and assistance."

There are about 3,500 merchant vessels of all nations in the North Atlantic at any one time. Of these, about 800 ships report in their movements each day to AMVER for plotting.

Prior to AMVER, the Coast Guard could make only a haphazard try to choose appropriate ships to aid other ships in distress.

"No attempt was made," said Mitchell, "to plot and advise on the hundreds of ships on the ocean each day."

AMVER does that, and more. In the shiny magnetic coils that store information are the capabilities of 15,000 ships of the world.

They represent 61 nations. The goal is to enroll ships of all nations in the system. Uppermost, however, is the aim of getting every ship that sails the North Atlantic each day to report in.

"Some don't even know about it," said Mitchell.

One nation that does know about it is the Soviet Union. But it has reported to AMVER only once. Mitchell said. That was in 1960 when Premier Khrushchev sailed back to the Soviet Union from the United States aboard the Baltika. AMVER plotted Baltika across the ocean.

AMVER also is used to solve some air-sea rescue problems.

The Coast Guard has been renting the computer for $60,000 a year since 1958. Despite its good work, the machine is considered obsolete.

Mitchell said the Coast Guard is already thinking about ordering a new model that can solve more intricate problems of air-sea search and rescue.

Ten Convicts Face Charges In Court

CANON CITY (UPI) — Ten convicts at Colorado State Prison were charged in Fremont County district court Monday and Tuesday with felonious escape—a charge seldom pressed by the state.

Among those charged was William Shearer, who recently walked away from the penitentiary and allegedly took two shots at a prison officer during the escape. He was captured after East Canon resident reported seeing him entering a neighbor's house.

Wilson postponed all cases to later this month. Others charged were Kenneth L. Mallenkopf, Aaron Aragon, Leonard E. Hobbs, John H. Schwickrath, Richard W. Silva, Paul R. Gallegos, Victor Van Buren Estill, John C. McClean and Larry R. Larsen.

Seventeen prisoners escaped the penitentiary this year, and three still are at large.

"O, think nothing of it, Nell. I can sleep in the morning after I get Wilbur out of the way."

Election 'Violence' Just Celebration

COHOES, N.Y. (AP)—The defeated mayor of this Albany County city watched his Democratic administration fall in a stunning election upset and promptly declared a state of emergency.

Mayor Andrew H. Santspree ordered extra police into the streets early today because of what he said was widespread violence.

Newsmen who toured the city said they saw no violence.

Police later described the incident as "just a little celebration."

Santspree had told reporters, "The citizens are going crazy. They're ripping convertible tops, throwing bottles through windows and ripping down the American flags."

Dr. James E. McDonald, who unseated Santspree, said he had no knowledge of any violence. The physician led an independent Citizens party ticket.

Police Chief Harold Smith asked the state police for help but then canceled the request.

Independent candidates swept the Democrats from a position of municipal control they had held for 30 years.

Demo Leader's Son Faces Arraignment

CHICAGO (AP) — Erwin B. Arvey, 46, son of a Democratic party leader, faces arraignment in U. S. District Court in St. Louis Nov. 12 on a charge of transporting fraudulent securities across state lines.

FBI agents arrested Arvey charging him with carrying to St. Louis. He also is charged fradulent bonds with a face value of $200,000 to St. Louis. He also is charged with taking worthless bonds from Chicago to Los Angeles and using them as collateral for a loan.

Arvey, son of Jacob Arvey, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois, is free on $10,000 bond

SWEET JOB

OKMULGEE, Okla. (AP) — Baking students at Oklahoma State Tech here got a big chance to practice their art when they prepared a 600-pound cake to be served to Tulsa State Fair visitors.

The cake measured 4 by 8 feet and was 5½ feet high. Its edible decorations, symbolizing the state's resources, included a miniature of the Eufaula dam, made of gum paste, with a lake of frosting behind it; jelly roll logs and a gum paste sawmill represented wood. A log cabin made of bread formed a replica of the birthplace of the late U.S. Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma.

TAKE ONE

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Visible through the capsule-like objects piled near the cash registers of restaurants and other local business places is the word "Dope."

Inside the capsules is a strip of paper with the legend: "Dope on Muskogee." The attention-getters were prepared by the Muskogee Optimists, the Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Merchants Association. Points of interest in the region are listed, as well as the names of six All - America football players from the area.

Philadelphia's Democrat Mayor Gets Big Margin

By FRANK J. AVATO

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Democratic Mayor James H. J. Tate, drawing heavily on President Kennedy's support and getting large margins in predominately Negro districts, defeated Republican James T. McDermott by nearly 67,000 votes Tuesday in a mayoral election with racial overtones.

But Tate, 53, in winning a four-year term, had the smallest margin of any Democratic candidate for mayor since the party broke six decades of Republican rule of City Hall in 1951.

Tate's margin also invited comparison with the 331,000 majority racked up in the city by Kennedy in 1960, when the President carried the state by only 116,000.

The election will be studied closely by both parties for any indications of how the civil rights issue might affect Kennedy's chances in Northern cities during the 1964 presidential campaign.

In seven predominately Negro districts, selected at random, Tate—the first Irish Catholic elected mayor here—had 48,324 votes to 13,696 for McDermott. There are about 231,000 Negroes registered to vote in the city, most of them Democrats. Overall, the Democrats have a 591,989 to 369,626 registration lead over the GOP.

Republicans elected Albert W. Johnson, majority leader of the State House of Representatives, to Congress to fill a 23rd District a vacancy created by the death of Leon H. Gavin. The district—in the northwestern corner of the state—has not elected a Democrat to Congress in this century. Johnson's victory over Democrat William T. Hagerty gave state Republicans a 14-13 edge in Congress.

Republicans also swept the statewide contests in this off-year election—for Superior Court. Incumbents J. Colvin Wright and Harold Ervin won 10-year terms.

Complete, unofficial returns gave Tate 397,323 to 330,620 for McDermott, or a margin of about 55 per cent. McDermott, 37, an attorney, never has held public office. He lost previous bids for Congress and City Council.

Democrats drew heavily on the popularity of Kennedy, who made a political visit to the city last week to push Tate's candidacy.

During the campaign Tate accused McDermott of "playing for the white vote," a charge McDermott—also an Irish Catholic—vigorously denied.

McDermott accused Tate of being indecisive on civil rights.

Philadelphia's Democrat Mayor Gets Big Margin

By FRANK J. AVATO

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Democratic Mayor James H. J. Tate, drawing heavily on President Kennedy's support and getting large margins in predominately Negro districts, defeated Republican James T. McDermott by nearly 67,000 votes Tuesday in a mayoral election with racial overtones.

But Tate, 53, in winning a four-year term, had the smallest margin of any Democratic candidate for mayor since the party broke six decades of Republican rule of City Hall in 1951.

Tate's margin also invited comparison with the 331,000 majority racked up in the city by Kennedy in 1960, when the President carried the state by only 116,000.

The election will be studied closely by both parties for any indications of how the civil rights issue might affect Kennedy's chances in Northern cities during the 1964 presidential campaign.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Human Rejection of Force

We are in the midst of discussing a free society and the enemies to its formation. In yesterday's editorials we examined the facts respecting the origin of evil in a society, showing that the greatest amount of evil arises from the well-meaning intentions of those who try to compel others to conform to their own sense of proper conduct.

There can be no question here as to the size of the problem we are confronting in our support of a free society.

For it is almost always true that when compulsion has been employed to FORCE any particular kind of conduct or to prevent other kinds of conduct, a type of rebellion is engendered, particularly among teenagers, which places a premium upon freedom and reduces the premium upon decent behavior and good taste.

Thus, in a society which has experimented as we have with liquor legislation, young people particularly are prone to symbolize their "freedom" by plunging into alcoholic consumption to "prove" just how free they really are.

In a society which has tried to legislate proper attire and dress, particularly the young and inexperienced are prone to try to demonstrate just how free they are by violating all of the tenets of good taste and even of ordinary reason.

Having learned that there are laws against obscenity or promiscuity, it is always to be expected that young people will try to "prove" just how free they are by becoming either obscene or promiscuous or both. They will hold up these practices, not as evidences of bad taste and a lack of self-control, but as symbols of the free society.

And it is just such conduct which encourages a belief among others who should know better that freedom is bad for people and that some kind of positive control must be invoked or society will run into chaos and disintegration.

We can recall only a single instance in history when the government of a nation actually invoked laws to encourage what we might all agree was improper conduct. We are thinking of Russia, immediately following the 1917 October revolution, when Lenin was in power and when he considered it a part of the objectives of Marx to make promiscuity a matter of state encouragement.

Laws were passed which provided for the "quickie" marriage and divorce. A young couple could get a license to live together without any fee whatever. They had only to present themselves to the proper commissar, who would issue them a "marriage certificate" and the union was suitably formalized. If a "divorce" was desirable afterwards, a convenient perforated section of the "certificate" could be detached and dropped in the post. The "divorce" cost nothing, either.

Additionally, laws were passed which legalized abortion. The young girl finding herself with an unwanted burden could telephone a state doctor who would legally relieve her of her condition.

What was the result of these laws? The Russian people not only did not "take advantage" of their newly legislated "freedom," they were revolted. They rejected the state provisions in such numbers that within a few years Lenin was compelled to revoke these rules.

Today, in Russia, the family unit survives and there are very stringent laws governing both divorce and abortion. Incidentally, since the laws were enacted against divorce and abortion, they are becoming more common.

Once more we see the tendency in men, regardless of race or nation, to move, admittedly in very small ways, toward an ultimate rejection of authoritarianism.

Intervention

Any government which intervenes in the economy to such an extent that it thwarts the growth can make an independent nation a dependent nation, and a free nation a welfare state.

Morality, a Sure Guide

We are going to contend that if freedom is ever accepted as a workable policy by means of which people can live together in a moral manner, the very existence of this policy will maximize the highest kind of behavior and the most elevated scale of values.

Undoubtedly, the single reliable methodology which would move us in this direction is sound education, conducted by teachers who themselves are firmly established in moral understanding and practice, outside of governmental encouragement and force.

We will further contend that if young people are free to choose their own conduct totally, within a surprisingly short time the social restraints they will invoke in their own sets will serve most decisively in instilling the finest and cleanest conduct imaginable.

If status within a group becomes associated both with freedom to choose and the obvious desirability of choosing most wisely and virtuously, woe betide the beatnik and his "sick" companions who flaunt their degeneracy before the world. Such would lose status at once. Nor would they serve to encourage more than a kind of passing morbid curiosity.

Moral behavior is nothing more nor less than proper conduct between persons. Moral behavior carried out means the quintessence of good manners, just as it means self-control and self-reliance. And as we have earlier shown, freedom itself relates to this relationship for it is the kind of condition that exists when a man is out from under the control of another of his kind.

Thus, freedom is a moral concept, a concept resting upon self-control and the willingness of the individual, not only to see to it that he does not trespass the rights of others, but more than that, the willingness of the individual to see that in all ways and in all things he does not even give the appearance of a possible trespasser.

In addition to the general recognition that man controls his own energy, and thus is responsible for all that he does, we must have some degree of economic understanding. A free society is dependent upon a willingness, not only of the person to refrain from a trespass against another person, but on a willingness for that person to refrain from a trespass upon the property of another.

The free society is that working arrangement in which we recognize that all property boundaries are sacred. It makes no difference what the property is, how much there is of it, or who owns it. A free society will be one in which each individual will restrain himself so that he does not trespass any property boundary.

Fortunately, all property has a boundary. It can be discerned and it can be located. Free conduct, moral conduct, right conduct are all predicated upon the recognition of the sanctity of boundary.

To commit a trespass against another person or his property is always immoral. It is always an instance of non-freedom. It is always an instance of the failure of both morals and manners.

When individuals are correctly educated in this regard, they will learn that the way to an abundant life and much joy in living is to acquire property for their own use and for the willing use of others. Again, the concept of morality and freedom comes to our assistance.

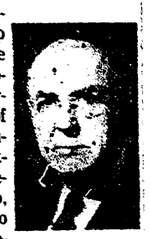
For our ability to own property privately is predicated upon the moral recognition that we must NOT invade the property of another, for more than it is upon the idea that we are ferocious enough to repel the invader.

True, we still have that minor segment of the human race which does not understand morality and operates immorally. But this does not provide us with an alibi to join them in their misconduct. Two wrongs do not make a right. A free society is not a society of slaves, regimented in fear under a predatory political arrangement.

It's Up to You

Stop and Remember

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.



Private enterprise has failed to provide adequate suburban transportation, the Socialists say, so government must step in, and we are about to appropriate an enormous sum of money to improve commuter service. Before doing so, we ought to stop and remember that government intervention is the cause of the present unsatisfactory condition.

The cheapest and most satisfactory way of taking people in and out of our cities is the railways. They have fallen down on the job on account of government fixing of rates, excessive taxation imposed by government, and government backed featherbedding with its enormous waste of the resources of the railroads.

When the railroads are allowed neither to fix their freight or passenger rates, to decide what trains to run, how much they will pay the men they hire, the rules under which they work, nor the amounts local, state, and federal governments take from them, how can they be expected to serve the people efficiently? Moreover, with all these obstacles to overcome, they must compete with subsidized bus and automobile transportation. The latter have free roads on which to run while the railroads must build their own highways and pay heavy taxes upon them.

It would appear, therefore, that our problem arises because of government intervention and now we hope to cure it at the taxpayer's expense by still more intervention.

One study indicated that one double-track railroad would handle as many suburban passengers far more quickly and comfortably than eight double-lane auto roads. If we had not taxed and regulated the railroads to the point of almost destroying them, the people would now be enjoying better, more comfortable and faster transportation at less expense than they can ever hope to enjoy by the use of our heavily subsidized automobile roads.

There is another important angle to this matter. Why should people who do not need or use suburban transporation pay a large part of the cost of those who do? Some people live in the crowded, dirty, noisy, uncomfortable cities because they cannot afford to live in the suburbs. Should they now be taxed to pay a part of the transportation costs of their more fortunate fellow citizens who choose to live in the suburbs? Should farmers and rural citizens help commuter pay their fares? If so, there isn't anything that anyone needs or wants that cannot be paid for in part by everybody else. Of course, it is ridiculous for any of us to think we can have more if we get other people to pay our bills while we contribute toward the payment of theirs. This process is very wasteful for its leads all of us to be more extravagant and less careful in our expenditures than we would be if we knew for sure and certain that we were paying the full cost of all the goods and services we consume.

Time to Clean House

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

Every time I back off to take a swift kick at private enterprise, I feel as bad as a proud father who suddenly discovers his favorite son plays piano in a bawdy house, and a cheap one at that. It is ridiculous. On the other hand, private enterprise is ridiculous when it tries to go government one better by attempting to steal from an unwary customer.

In May, the transmission on our car sprang a leak and we added fluid at the rate of one quart for every fifty miles of travel. At the end of our 850-mile journey, we expected to have the transmission repaired. I discussed the matter with a mechanic who had been recommended to me and he gave me a quick answer. "There's only one thing to do when they act like that: Get an overhaul, have all of the seals replaced and it will cost you $150 plus tax and transmission fluid."

I discussed the situation with a couple of other people and didn't feel comfortable with the answers I received. I bought a few cans of transmission fluid to make sure it would not run dry and the service station overcharged me 15 cents a quart, for ten quarts. One man said, "Well, you'll have to get it fixed before you drive back to Arizona, anyway," and that did it. We made the return trip safely by stopping about every 100 miles to check the transmission fluid and to make additions as needed.

Locally, the charge for replacing the seals, adjusting and generally taking care of what was needed cost us $46.46 including tax and fluid and the job was done by an authorized dealer, but that's not the whole story. Three years ago I called on the same dealership, then under different management and was told I had a burned out starting motor. Because no replacement motor was found in town, I insisted on having the old motor returned to its resting place, for which I was charged $7.50. I returned to our ghost town and our next-door neighbor checked over the starting motor, cleaned it up and a year later it still operated in good condition. At that time I had California plates on my car.

The most recent incident found us with Arizona plates in Colorado. I can document a dozen or more incidents which involved out-of-state tourists who were cheated in Arizona and within 30 miles of our ghost town. At first glance, cheating out-of-town motorists seems to be a standard practice but everybody we had dealings with in Colorado or on our trip, going and returning, did not cheat us and let me tell you, we will remember each and every one of the honest merchants if we ever make a return trip or know anyone who intends to make that trip.

I believe that trying to get something for nothing has become a national habit, another of the unfortunate correlative aspects of socialism. It doesn't take much intelligence to understand that such sharp practices provide those addicted to governmental giantism with excuses to enact more and more laws and place more and more controls upon business. On the other hand, if you've recently been cheated out of $100 or more by an automobile mechanic, you may find it difficult to understand that more laws and controls will only make things worse.

Sure, there may always be merchants who try to cheat their customers, just as government cheats the governed, but I've had dealings with a lot of merchants since about 1918 and I know that the amount of cheating has increased just as rapidly as crime and suicide and for the same reasons. The wonder is that at least four out of every five merchants operate legitimate and ethical businesses. Compare that with what politicians do to their constituents and you realize why some unthinking people believe that more businessmen should get into politics on the theory that one sound apple may be able to make a barrel of rotten apples healthy again, an obvious impossibility.

Every person involved with the private enterprise system can defend the system against socialism best by cleaning up his own house and making certain it stays clean. The rewards will be much greater than any apparent and temporary gains which can be made by cheating you, in Freedom.

The Fighting in Morocco

By RUSSELL KIRK

If you want to see a country burning with war-fever — why, don't visit Morocco just now. A thousand or more Moroccan soldiers are holding two oases in the extreme southwest of this land against the Algerians, and one Moroccan village has been bombed by an Algerian plane. But in the west and north of Morocco, where the cities are, one could not ask for a more peaceful and orderly environment.

These lines are written at Marrakesh, the city closest (but not close) to the border-fighting, a prosperous old place with a quarter of a million inhabitants. King Hassan II has been in Marrakesh for a few days, entertaining first Mrs. John F. Kennedy and then the Emperor Haile Selassie. (Your servant didn't lunch with either of these other tourists.) Thousands of Berber tribesmen have come in from the desert to ride, shoot, and dance in honor of the distinguished guests. Like the townsmen of Marrakesh, the Berbers don't seem the least worried about the skirmishing round Colomb-Bechar (the frontier town held by Algeria).

In Algeria, the dictator Ahmed Ben Bella ordered general mobilization — probably as much against rebellious Kaybyles (less than a hundred miles from Algiers) as against the "imperialistic feudal monarchy" of Morocco. But the government of the Moroccan king, unhysterical, does nothing of the sort. Most Moroccan troops remain in their camps in the interior, with families often living with them, amicable and lackadaisical. The only troop-movement which this writer has observed consisted of three armored cars proceeding from Rabat to Meknes, hundreds of miles from the front.

And unlike their Algerian counterparts, the Moroccan newspapers are whipping up no enthusiasm for glorious war. Neither is any dread of Algeria evident. The Moroccans expect that Ben Bella's domestic difficulties — and the fact that on the east Tunisia, too, has boundary-disputes with Algeria —will prevent the vainglorious Ben Bella from attempting a serious campaign.

Despite the attempts of leftist elements of the European press — and of Nasser in Egypt — to represent Morocco as the aggressor in this squabble, the Moroccan claim to "rectification" of their frontier with Algeria is legitimate. While the French still dominated Algeria and Morocco, they kept pushing the boundaries of Algeria further west, into what had been Moroccan territory for centuries for Algeria counted as a French province, while Morocco was only a protectorate. Now that the French are gone from both countries, the Moroccan government wants the vague frontier in the deserts of the Sahara defined to restore a part of what Morocco had lost to French-administered Algeria.

So far as there has been provocation, it has come from the Algerians in that region, who took temporarily two frontier-stations that the Moroccans had held (and have now regained); also, apparently, the Algerians kidnapped a number of Moroccan subjects in this wilderness. While Ben Bella experiences trouble close to Algiers, the Moroccans endeavor to secure their border against such incursions.

Neither Morocco nor Algeria feels wealthy enough, or strong enough, to launch into a real modern war. The significant fact about the present diplomatic and military sniping, rather, is the rapid dissolution of whatever bonds of fraternity connected the "Arab brothers" of the Barbary Coast. In North Africa, as in the Dark Continent generally, the notion of "African unity" will fade rapidly now; and the strength of the African bloc in the General Assembly of the United Nations probably will diminish proportionately in the next year or two.

WONDERFUL EXAMPLE

To the Editor:

From time to time I have referred to a particularly responsible male parent in my column. "Teenager's View" published in Open Parliament on October 12 provided a wonderful example of what can happen when a parent bothers to take the time to help in the education of his children. Lovely, bright and diminutive Marina Lesley is NOT a "teenager." She is ten years old and reads, studies and discusses the editorial pages of the Gazette Telegraph with her father. Marina was in bed with the chicken pox and her father gave her a couple of ideas to write about. But let me quote from her father's letter to me, "She put the stuff in her own words and came up with some ideas I had not thought of. She reads your stuff all the time and says she got her ideas from you."

I've known Mr. Albert Lesley, self-responsible parent, for a good many years. His dedicated effort to see to it that his children achieve an education not readily available in schools has earned my profound respect. His son, Dan, could read before he started school. Both children are attractive, healthy, well behaved and goodnatured. As a matter of fact, Marina is so typically a little girl as to make it difficult for anyone who meets her to fully understand the intellectual capacity of a ten-year-old.

I am certain Mr. Albert Lesley will fully agree with me when I say that anyone can do what he has done, if they will.

'DUMB PUBLIC'

To the Editor:

I, too, am one of these types . . .but more important I need to know what can I do to change the political picture as we see it today. It is not in the hands of the public anymore. But what can WE do. . .vote? What good is the popular vote as long as we have the electoral college. . . and the political setups that control even the city and county elections. Can you guarantee that our votes will be counted for or against a person or an amendment?

As a cost analyst, I tried to enter politics, in the county treasurer's office, but I made the mistake of still being one of the "dumb public." Before I knew what had happened, I was used as a scapegoat to make room for a radical change in the "Party," the oncoming conversion within the county structure from Republican control to Democratic control. If you feel I am wrong, just wait and see what two present county commissioners will not run in the next election next year.

Please let me, and untold millions like myself, find the way to get the government back into the hands of the public. . .yes, the dumb public. As an analyst, experienced in the field of bankruptcy these past 15 years, I wonder just HOW LONG any company would last if all the employees were required to pay tribute to the bosses, with freedom to spend the money as "they" see fit. How long would the "dumb public" patronize the company that treated them as the government, city, county, state and national, treats US now?

How do we get "EDUCATED?"

UP IN ARMS

To the Editor:

We Colorado natives are wild at the thought of destroying the magnificent Trianon there. We resent extremely the fact that all these years not even any of the pioneers here ever heard of it because it was never allowed to be advertised, thus depriving us and thousands of tourists from ever seeing it. Thank goodness our Denver papers brought this to our attention, so that some of us were able to take a tour thru but many had to be turned away.

Don't you realize this could easily be the state's number one tourist attraction, and make Colorado have the distinction of being the home of one of the nation's most beautiful showplaces, to say nothing of the preservation of priceless art treasures from all over the world which should be saved for posterity?

Those of us who have visited Mt. Vernon, Monticello, and yes, even the White House, realize that none of them can compare with the Trianon, and we are really fighting to save it by writing our congressmen, senators, our President and others who will help.

Shame on Colorado Springs for letting matters develop as they have. Now it looks as if other Colorado citizens will have to take over.

We intend to fight because at least some of us can see the difference between a work of art and a lot of cheap junk which is displayed to our tourists and which only cheapens Colorado in their eyes.

Surely there must be many civic-minded citizens there who will agree and join in our plea to save the Trianon.

S. S. TAXES

To the Editor:

We sit and read about people that always write in "downing" our president. When a president is in office, why not pull with him instead of against him?

Again, they are always talking about social security and the money we pay out. We think social security is one of the best taxes we have ever paid out, and we still have a long time to pay. Do people really know that social security is wonderful and that it helps our poor old folks; and if you have children, it helps raise them, and care for the wife that is left behind?

I don't mind paying out for that, but school tax, I sure do; and we pay plenty for people to have the pleasure of having them and the people who don't have any children have to help raise them.

Only people that have money or so ne big business don't want social security. We certainly do not make a fortune to pay out for insurance or go into business. The young people that pay on social security now should be glad they can have it, as it really is security; if ever the time should come to put it aside, the war would certainly come to us all right here in America.

If people would wake up and stop letting the big shots rule us, we would be better off. They are only people like us, filling their pockets.

Maybe we do pay out a lot of money on social security and more tax than we can afford, but why not make the politicians that run us get their hands out of the till?

LOYD CLARK
1101 Forest Rd.

P. S. Do you people know that retired men have wives working to get three years in on this social security? I have paid it for 27 years and still have some 19 years to go hurry for social security.

These Days

Polititcal Machinery

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The late Senator Robert Taft has been quoted as saying, in a moment of rueful exasperation, that "Wall Street has chosen every Republican candidate for president since 1940." Mindful of this supposed power of the "eastern liberal, international Republicans," the volunteers who have been doing the dog work thruout the country for the Draft Goldwater movement have kept looking over their shoulders for the great "Wall Street" hobgoblin. But, as the weeks go on, they are beginning to suspect that there is nothing there.

Says F. Clifton White, the national director of the Draft Goldwater committee, "I'm starting to think that this business about the Chase Bank running the politics of the country is all a myth. We read about the eastern liberal internationalists who are going to stop Goldwater, but we never come across their tracks."

Mr. White has a theory about this. Looking back at the campaign of 1952, when Taft was sidetracked by the Eisenhower movement, he admits that the "Easterners" wielded a lot of political power in those days. But, as he says, that power was a blend of two elements. There was, first, the power of money, used to finance the anti - Taft forces in crucial states. "But in addition to this," he points out, "there was the great political machine operated by Thomas Dewey. This machine has been dismantled, and nothing has been assembled to take its place."

Mr. White thinks it unlikely that the "money power" has the time to finance a new political machine in the few months that remain between now and the Republican Convention of 1964. Clay would have to sell himself to the Republican delegates by exerting his own charm on them directly. As for Nelson Rockefeller, his money will count less in the primaries than the ability of his wife Happy to charm the local matrons into forgetting their prejudices about divorce.

The old rules are off. The new rules are in course of being formulated. We shall see what we shall see.

LOADED

"Today," says Mr. White, "the bank in Wichita would say to Wall Street, 'What can we do for you today? If you need some money, we've got a lot of cash to spare. Can we make you a loan?' "

The fact that the flush Texas and California banks no longer depend on "Wall Street" means that local businessmen can no longer be coerced by the so-called "eastern, internationalist, liberal" Republican conclave.

But there is even more to the story than this.

"The truth would seem to be that a lot of people in 'Wall Street' like Goldwater," says Mr. White. "There's the phenomenon of the Greenwich Republicans in Connecticut. They have been part of the 'eastern, internationalist' group. But they are very much for Goldwater at this time."

So, between the erosion of their power to dictate to bankers in Missouri and Montana and their admiration for Barry Goldwater, the "Easterners" have not seen fit even to attempt the organization of the equivalent of the old Thomas Dewey political machine to put over an anti-Goldwater candidate.

NEW BREED

Things may change, of course, if Goldwater stumbles in the primaries by offending grass roots sentiment. But if Goldwater falters, "Wall Street" will hardly step in to dictate a successor candidate. The new breed of Republican state chairman, as Mr. White points out, consists of young men like Bill Walters of the State of Washington, Jack Shaw of Nevada, Joe Skeen of New Mexico, Peter O'Donnell of Texas, Tom Hall of Florida, John Grenier of Alabama, and Bob Stewart of Indiana. These men are nobody's stooges. Nor is Ray Bliss of Ohio or Dave Nichols of Maine, who are a little older than most of the new breed.

The fact is that the power in the Republican Party today has become rather evenly diffused thruout fifty states. If it decides that Goldwater is not the man to take on John F. Kennedy, it will not be stampeded by the equivalent of the Willkie blitz forces of 1940. It will not accept a General Lucius Clay, for example, merely because the "liberal east" likes a military hero. Clay would have to sell himself to the Republican delegates by exerting his own charm on them directly. As for Nelson Rockefeller, his money will count less in the primaries than the ability of his wife Happy to charm the local matrons into forgetting their prejudices about divorce.

The old rules are off. The new rules are in course of being formulated. We shall see what we shall see.

Juvenile Bureau Handled 84 Cases Last Month

The Colorado Springs police department juvenile bureau handled 84 juveniles last month, according to Police Chief Cecil J. McKissick.

Sixty of these were boys ranging in age from 8 thru 17 and 24 were girls ranging in age from 12 thru 17.

Of the juveniles handled, 27 case reports were cleared and involved such offenses as assault, auto theft, burglary, child molest, indecent exposure, malicious mischief and petit larceny.

McKissick said there were 33 juveniles referred to the juvenile court and probation office, 41 were released to their parents, five were held for the state juvenile parole office, two were returned to the State Hospital and three were held for the Denver Children's Home.

Report of the month's activities was made to the chief by Dorothy Heller and E. T. Roebken, who is filling in temporarily for Sgt. Vern Wilson, now attending a Delinquency Control Institute, University of Southern California.

Equal Division In Foreign Aid Issue Reported

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) The Senate has demonstrated that President Kennedy's foreign-aid program has an almost equal number of enemies and friends in both political parties.

By seesaw 43-40 vote the Senate turned back Tuesday a challenge by Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., against a bipartisan compromise worked out last week by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen.

Sensing the hostility against the program, Mansfield and Dirksen proposed to cut an authorization bill back from the $4.2-billion ceiling approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to $3.8 billion. Ellender asked for an additional reduction of $75 million.

The dire current plight of the program was illustrated by the fact that if there hadn't been some fast footwork by the leaders, Ellender would have won. The Louisiana senator has been proposing foreign-aid cuts for years without coming within hollering distance of a majority.

Faced with defeat, administration lieutenants went begging for help among senators who ordinarily support the President but had gone against the Mansfield-Dirksen compromise he was resigned to accepting.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., switched his vote on the Ellender amendment from yes to no. Sens. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., found it convenient to withdraw their support and to pair themselves with absent opponents of the amendment.

The pairing device is used to record the position of senators, one or both of whom may be absent, without influencing the roll-call result.

The three changes converted a 43-42 victory for Ellender into a 43-40 defeat.

On that test, the Democrats split 29 to 28 and the Republicans 14 to 12, with the majority of each party opposing the amendment.

To emphasize the touch-and-go nature of the proceedings, the Senate then turned around and adopted, 42 to 40, an amendment by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore. It cut $25 million off development loan funds and rescinded previous authority to continue this program for the next two years.

This represented an expression of the majority's opinion that there had better be an extensive overhauling of the foreign-aid program next year, or else.

On this test the Democrats wound up deadlocked, 29 to 29. The Republicans voted 13 to 11 in favor of the Morse proposal.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and floor manager for the bill, told newsmen the program is in very serious trouble. He said he thought the new cut was unfortunate and shortsighted.

Morse, in a separate interview, predicted that there will be other and deeper cuts.

The foreign-aid debate is expected to continue far into next week.

NEW YORK (AP) — Three members of the Arnold Buxbaum family attended three different colleges — the mother and two of her three children.

Mrs. Ruth Buxbaum, 47, is back at Brooklyn College, where she first enrolled 30 years ago before dropping out to work as a legal stenographer. She and her daughter Beverly, 21, a student at the Bernard M. Baruch School of City College, will both graduate this year. Another daughter, Gloria, 18, is a student at Queens College. The girls take turns looking after a younger brother Robert 8, while Mom is in school.

Philadelphia's Democrat Mayor Gets Big Margin

By FRANK J. AVATO

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Democratic Mayor James H. J. Tate, drawing heavily on President Kennedy's support and getting large margins in predominately Negro districts, defeated Republican James T. McDermott by nearly 67,000 votes Tuesday in a mayoral election with racial overtones.

But Tate, 53, in winning a four-year term, had the smallest margin of any Democratic candidate for mayor since the party broke six decades of Republican rule of City Hall in 1951.

Tate's margin also invited comparison with the 331,000 majority racked up in the city by Kennedy in 1960, when the President carried the state by only 116,000.

The election will be studied closely by both parties for any indications of how the civil rights issue might affect Kennedy's chances in Northern cities during the 1964 presidential campaign.

In seven predominately Negro districts, selected at random, Tate—the first Irish Catholic elected mayor here—had 48,324 votes to 13,696 for McDermott. There are about 231,000 Negroes registered to vote in the city, most of them Democrats. Overall, the Democrats have a 591,989 to 369,626 registration lead over the GOP.

Republicans elected Albert W. Johnson, majority leader of the State House of Representatives, to Congress to fill a 23rd District a vacancy created by the death of Leon H. Gavin. The district—in the northwestern corner of the state—has not elected a Democrat to Congress in this century. Johnson's victory over Democrat William T. Hagerty gave state Republicans a 14-13 edge in Congress.

Republicans also swept the statewide contests in this off-year election—for Superior Court. Incumbents J. Colvin Wright and Harold Ervin won 10-year terms.

Complete, unofficial returns gave Tate 397,323 to 330,620 for McDermott, or a margin of about 55 per cent. McDermott, 37, an attorney, never has held public office. He lost previous bids for Congress and City Council.

Democrats drew heavily on the popularity of Kennedy, who made a political visit to the city last week to push Tate's candidacy.

During the campaign Tate accused McDermott of "playing for the white vote," a charge McDermott—also an Irish Catholic—vigorously denied.

McDermott accused Tate of being indecisive on civil rights.

Juvenile Bureau Handled 84 Cases Last Month

The Colorado Springs police department juvenile bureau handled 84 juveniles last month, according to Police Chief Cecil J. McKissick.

Sixty of these were boys ranging in age from 8 thru 17 and 24 were girls ranging in age from 12 thru 17.

Of the juveniles handled, 27 case reports were cleared and involved such offenses as assault, auto theft, burglary, child molest, indecent exposure, malicious mischief and petit larceny.

McKissick said there were 33 juveniles referred to the juvenile court and probation office. 41 were released to their parents, five were held for the state juvenile parole office, two were returned to the State Hospital and three were held for the Denver Children's Home.

Report of the month's activities was made to the chief by Dorothy Heller and E. T. Roebken, who is filling in temporarily for Sgt. Vern Wilson, now attending a Delinquency Control Institute, University of Southern California.

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP)—Waterville voted Tuesday to retain its bicameral government, rejecting 1,220-1,090 a proposed charter change to a unicameral unit.

Equal Division In Foreign Aid Issue Reported

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) The Senate has demonstrated that President Kennedy's foreign-aid program has an almost equal number of enemies and friends in both political parties.

By seesaw 43-40 vote the Senate turned back Tuesday a challenge by Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., against a bipartisan compromise worked out last week by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen.

Sensing the hostility against the program, Mansfield and Dirksen proposed to cut an authorization bill back from the $4.2-billion ceiling approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to $3.8 billion. Ellender asked for an additional reduction of $75 million.

The dire current plight of the program was illustrated by the fact that if there hadn't been some fast footwork by the leaders, Ellender would have won. The Louisiana senator has been proposing foreign-aid cuts for years without coming within hollering distance of a majority.

Faced with defeat, administration lieutenants went begging for help among senators who ordinarily support the President but had gone against the Mansfield-Dirksen compromise he was resigned to accepting.

Sen Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., switched his vote on the Ellender amendment from yes to no. Sens. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., found it convenient to withdraw their support and to pair themselves with absent opponents of the amendment.

The pairing device is used to record the position of senators, one or both of whom may be absent, without influencing the roll-call result.

The three changes converted a 43-42 victory for Ellender into a 43-40 defeat.

On that test, the Democrats split 29 to 28 and the Republicans 14 to 12, with the majority of each party opposing the amendment.

To emphasize the touch-and-go nature of the proceedings, the Senate then turned around and adopted, 42 to 40, an amendment by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore. It cut $25 million off development loan funds and rescinded previous authority to continue this program for the next two years.

This represented an expression of the majority's opinion that there had better be an extensive overhauling of the foreign-aid program next year, or else.

On this test the Democrats wound up deadlocked, 29 to 29. The Republicans voted 13 to 11 in favor of the Morse proposal.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and floor manager for the bill, told newsmen the program is in very serious trouble. He said he thought the new cut was unfortunate and shortsighted.

Morse, in a separate interview, predicted that there will be other and deeper cuts.

The foreign-aid debate is expected to continue far into next week.

SCHOLARLY FAMILY

NEW YORK (AP) — Three members of the Arnold Buxbaum family attended three different colleges — the mother and two of her three children.

Mrs. Ruth Buxbaum, 47, is back at Brooklyn College, where she first enrolled 30 years ago before dropping out to work as a legal stenographer. She and her daughter Beverly, 21, a student at the Bernard M. Baruch School of City College, will both graduate this year. Another daughter, Gloria, 18, is a student at Queens College. The girls take turns looking after a younger brother Robert 8, while Mom is in school.

Helium was discovered in the sun in 1868, almost 30 years before its presence on earth was detected.

Gun Discharges; Youth Suffers Wounded Hand

Clifford Petty of 219 N. 15th St. suffered a superficial wound on the left hand between the thumb and first finger when his .38 caliber revolver accidentally discharged, the sheriff's department reported this morning.

Deputy Sheriffs Charles Dietsche and Bob Newman said Petty was returning from Buena Vista and between Florissant and Wilkerson Pass when he saw two coyotes.

He got out of the car to shoot one of them but decided it was unsafe as there were houses close by. The gun was cocked and when he attempted to uncock it it went off. He was treated at St. Francis Hospital. The wound is described as slight and no stitches were required.

Barbershoppers Name Slocum To Head Group

Jack Slocum has been elected president of the Pikes Peak Barbershoppers. He succeeds Al Ives who is now a member of the board.

Officers were elected at the annual meeting at which members voted to send 30 representatives to the annual Parade of Quartets and Choruses at Longmont Saturday. The local chorus has been recognized as one of the top four in the Rocky Mountain Region.

Tuesday, the local organization will honor all Old Timers and former members at a meeting at 8 p.m. at the Antlers Hotel.

Officials also announced that Christmas concerts are now underway. The Barbershoppers present the concerts at charitable institutions in the area.

A concert, featuring some of the finest quartets and choruses in the nation, is scheduled to be presented at the City Auditorium Feb. 15.

Oak Stockton was elected first vice president and Hal Vandervoot, second vice president to serve with Slocum.

Other officers are Winfield Rogers, secretary; Everett Klinker, treasurer; Dave Mosher, district delegate; Pete Tyree, chorus director and Bruce Grauberger, bulletin editor.

Chuck Greve and Al Plamann were named to serve on the board of directors.

U.S. Newspapers Gobble Up Record Newsprint Supply

Consumption of newsprint by U. S. newspapers jumped 65,000 tons in 1962 to a record high 7,421,000 tons, says Commerce Clearing House.

This figure represents nearly half the world's total newsprint consumption and was reached despite prolonged major newspaper strikes in New York City and Cleveland last year.

Even tho both strikes extended into 1963, the usual greater consumption in the second half of the year is expected to make up the first-half loss, bringing total 1963 U. S. newsprint use to about 7.7 million tons, CCH pointed out.

In its review of a special congressional committee report on world supply and demand for newsprint, CCH notes that altho the U. S. is far and away the largest consumer, it ranks a distant second to Canada in the amount of annual newsprint production.

Last year, Canada produced 6.6 million tons of newsprint compared to U. S. output of 2.1 million tons. Almost 5.3 million tons of the Canadian production was imported by U. S. papers. The only other substantial U. S. supplier was Finland which furnished 183,000 tons for U. S. needs.

Newsprint consumption in Great Britain during 1962 rose only slightly to about 1.4 million tons, CCh said.

Other Western European countries accounted for a 3 per cent rise in newsprint use to over 2.7 million tons.

Scandinavian nations consumed only a little more than 300,000 tons, but they claimed third place in production with almost 2 million tons in 1962.

Estimates for communist bloc countries U. S. S. R., Red China and the satellites, shows a continued reduction in use of newsprint, totalling 1962 tonnage of 800 million, CCH commented.

In accounting for the rising use of newsprint in 1962, the Congressional report pointed out that newspaper circulation and advertising linage, as the principal factors in consumption, both showed increases during the year, CCH said.

Aggregate circulation of dailies rose 2 per cent to over 60 million, enough to offset a fractional decrease in Sunday circulation.

Outlays for newspaper advertising last year reached a record high $3.8 billion, an estimated 31 per cent of the nation's total advertising budget, CCH noted.

The Committee report also indicated that the U. S. will continue as the world's largest newsprint user thru 1965, when it will consume about 8.4 million tons.

In terms of world newsprint production capacity, the excess of supplies over demand which has prevailed since 1958 can also be expected to continue thru 1965, the CCH review concluded.

Higher Margin Will Not Affect Most Stock Buyers

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Higher stock margin requirements may cut trading volume on the nation's exchanges and also the amount of profit a speculator may hope for—if he guesses right. And it's the speculator, as distinguished from the investor, that the Federal Reserve Board has in mind in raising the cash ante to 70 per cent from 50 per cent in buying stocks.

But the effect on stock prices themselves of changing the margin rules may be only temporary, if past experience is a guide. And the Fed, in truth, disavows any interest in swaying price trends.

Most stock buyers, whether individuals or institutions, probably will be affected very little, since they usually buy for cash as an investment.

Exchange officials stress that the percentage of the daily volume done on credit, although usually rising in boiling markets, is probably smaller than most onlookers suspect.

And exchanges and their member brokerage houses also have margin rules, usually calling for more cash to be put up well before a stock's price drops to the official margin setbythe well before a stock's price drops to the official margin set by the Fed.

But that regulator of credit notes that the total credit volume—borrowing from broker or from banks to buy stock—has risen 43 per cent in the last year to about $7 billion. In that period consumer credit, more familiar to most families, was going up 10 per cent.

Those who buy on margin usually do so because that way they can make more money than if they pay cash—if they've chosen the right stocks. They can lose more, too, if they've picked lemons.

Suppose you have $1,000 for stock buying. If the price of your choice is $100, say, you can buy 10 shares for cash. Monday, when the margin was 50 per cent, you could have bought—or got part equity in—20 shares. If the price goes up to $125 as you hope, you've made $25, minus commissions, if you paid cash. But you've made $50, minus commissions and interest on the loan, if you bought on margin.

If the stock drops sharply in price, of course, you may find your broker selling it and wiping out your account.

Today, with the margin at 70 per cent, you can't buy 20 shares on margin with your $1,000. You'd need $1,400 in cash plus the $600 your broker lent you. And the price would have to rise higher for you to get the same yield on the cash involved.

That's why it's bull markets that attract margin traders.

And it's the recent bull market—and more particularly the notably rising volume of trading and of outstanding credit involved—that the Fed is probably eyeing in its move.

Ford Motor Company also set a daily production record Oct. 23, by building 11,423 cars and trucks, and a weekly mark of 62,481 cars and trucks in the week ending Oct. 19. Production scheduled for this week is expected to establish records for combined car and truck output.

Penney Company Sales Increase

NEW YORK — J. C. Penney Co. reported today a 6.3 per cent sales increase for October.

The department store chain said volume climbed to a record $151,214,239 against $142,208,920 last year despite unseasonably warm weather which prevailed thruout most of the country during much of the month. The volume increase was $9,005,319.

This year's increase was considered all the more significant, because it came on top of an October, 1962, during which a 8.8 per cent sales rise was registered.

Company sales for the first three quarters of the fiscal year which began on Feb. 1 also constituted a record, running 5.9 per cent ahead of the 1962 period. Nine-month sales were $1,221,601,889 against $1,153,721,832 last year, an increase of $67,880,057.

Penney's had 1,679 department stores in operation on Oct. 31 compared with 1,687 on the same 1962 date. No stores were opened or closed in October.

Gun Discharges; Youth Suffers Wounded Hand

Clifford Petty of 219 N. 15th St. suffered a superficial wound on the left hand between the thumb and first finger when his .38 caliber revolver accidentally discharged, the sheriff's department reported this morning.

Deputy Sheriffs Charles Dietsche and Bob Newman said Petty was returning from Buena Vista and between Florissant and Wilkerson Pass when he saw two coyotes.

He got out of the car to shoot one of them but decided it was unsafe as there were houses close by. The gun was cocked and when he attempted to uncock it it went off. He was treated at St. Francis Hospital. The wound is described as slight and no stitches were required.

U.S. Newspapers Gobble Up Record Newsprint Supply

Consumption of newsprint by U. S. newspapers jumped 65,000 tons in 1962 to a record high 7,421,000 tons, says Commerce Clearing House.

This figure represents nearly half the world's total newsprint consumption and was reached despite prolonged major newspaper strikes in New York City and Cleveland last year.

Even tho both strikes extended into 1963, the usual greater consumption in the second half of the year is expected to make up the first-half loss, bringing total 1963 U. S. newsprint use to about 7.7 million tons, CCH pointed out.

In its review of a special congressional committee report on world supply and demand for newsprint, CCH notes that altho the U. S. is far and away the largest consumer, it ranks a distant second to Canada in the amount of annual newsprint production.

Last year, Canada produced 6.6 million tons of newsprint compared to U. S. output of 2.1 million tons. Almost 5.3 million tons of the Canadian production was imported by U. S. papers. The only other substantial U. S. supplier was Finland which furnished 183,000 tons for U. S. needs.

Newsprint consumption in Great Britain during 1962 rose only slightly to about 1.4 million tons, CCh said.

Other Western European countries accounted for a 3 per cent rise in newsprint use to over 2.7 million tons.

Scandinavian nations consumed only a little more than 300,000 tons, but they claimed third place in production with almost 2 million tons in 1962.

Estimates for communist bloc countries U. S. S. R., Red China and the satellites, shows a continued reduction in use of newsprint, totalling 1962 tonnage of 800 million, CCH commented.

In accounting for the rising use of newsprint in 1962, the Congressional report pointed out that newspaper circulation and advertising linage, as the principal factors in consumption, both showed increases during the year, CCH said.

Aggregate circulation of dailies rose 2 per cent to over 60 million, enough to offset a fractional decrease in Sunday circulation.

Outlays for newspaper advertising last year reached a record high $3.8 billion, an estimated 31 per cent of the nation's total advertising budget, CCH noted.

The Committee report also indicated that the U. S. will continue as the world's largest newsprint user thru 1965, when it will consume about 8.4 million tons.

In terms of world newsprint production capacity, the excess of supplies over demand which has prevailed since 1958 can also be expected to continue thru 1965, the CCH review concluded.

Higher Margin Will Not Affect Most Stock Buyers

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Higher stock margin requirements may cut trading volume on the nation's exchanges and also the amount of profit a speculator may hope for—if he guesses right. And it's the speculator, as distinguished from the investor, that the Federal Reserve Board has in mind in raising the cash ante to 70 per cent from 50 per cent in buying stocks.

But the effect on stock prices themselves of changing the margin rules may be only temporary, if past experience is a guide. And the Fed, in truth, disavows any interest in swaying price trends.

Most stock buyers, whether individuals or institutions, probably will be affected very little, since they usually buy for cash as an investment.

Exchange officials stress that the percentage of the daily volume done on credit, although usually rising in boiling markets, is probably smaller than most onlookers suspect.

And exchanges and their member brokerage houses also have margin rules, usually calling for more cash to be put up well before a stock's price drops to the official margin setbythe well before a stock's price drops to the official margin set by the Fed.

But that regulator of credit notes that the total credit volume—borrowing from broker or from banks to buy stock—has risen 43 per cent in the last year to about $7 billion. In that period consumer credit, more familiar to most families, was going up 10 per cent.

Those who buy on margin usually do so because that way they can make more money than if they pay cash—if they've chosen the right stocks. They can lose more, too, if they've picked lemons.

Suppose you have $1,000 for stock buying. If the price of your choice is $100, say, you can buy 10 shares for cash. Monday, when the margin was 50 per cent, you could have bought—or got part equity in—20 shares. If the price goes up to $125 as you hope, you've made $25, minus commissions, if you paid cash. But you've made $50, minus commissions and interest on the loan, if you bought on margin.

If the stock drops sharply in price, of course, you may find your broker selling it and wiping out your account.

Today, with the margin at 70 per cent, you can't buy 20 shares on margin with your $1,000. You'd need $1,400 in cash plus the $600 your broker lent you. And the price would have to rise higher for you to get the same yield on the cash involved.

That's why it's bull markets that attract margin traders.

And it's the recent bull market—and more particularly the notably rising volume of trading and of outstanding credit involved—that the Fed is probably eyeing in its move.

Ford Sets Monthly Record on Auto, Truck Output

Ford Motor Co. built more cars and more trucks in October than in any previous month in company history.

The record combined production of cars and trucks was 274,432, surpassing the previous record of 246,276 units set in November, 1955.

Passenger car production of 232,727 exceeded the previous monthly record of 210,692 set in November, 1955. October truck production of 41,705 bettered the old record of 41,339, established in May, 1929.

The record total raised car and truck production for the first 10 months of 1963 to 1,935,240 units, highest for such a period since 1955, when 2,147,770 vehicles were built.

Ford Motor Company also set a daily production record Oct. 23, by building 11,423 cars and trucks, and a weekly mark of 62,481 cars and trucks in the week ending Oct. 19. Production scheduled for this week is expected to establish records for combined car and truck output.

Standard Ford car production of 95,025 in October was up 24.6 per cent from October, 1962, and 10-month standard Ford production of 729,623 this year was 25.6 per cent ahead of the first 10 months of 1962.

Comet production of 23,226 units during October was 73.3 per cent more than in October a year ago.

Domestic tractor production in October was 2,185 units.

Penney Company Sales Increase

NEW YORK — J. C. Penney Co. reported today a 6.3 per cent sales increase for October.

The department store chain said volume climbed to a record $151,214,239 against $142,208,920 last year despite unseasonably warm weather which prevailed thruout most of the country during much of the month. The volume increase was $9,005,319.

This year's increase was considered all the more significant, because it came on top of an October, 1962, during which a 8.8 per cent sales rise was registered.

Company sales for the first three quarters of the fiscal year which began on Feb. 1 also constituted a record, running 5.9 per cent ahead of the 1962 period. Nine-month sales were $1,221,601,889 against $1,153,721,832 last year, an increase of $67,880,057.

Penney's had 1,679 department stores in operation on Oct. 31 compared with 1,687 on the same 1962 date. No stores were opened or closed in October.

Moderate Stock Market Recovery Move Reported

NEW YORK (AP)—Selected industrials and rails paced a moderate stock market recovery early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

The rebound followed two straight sessions of sharp decline and news that credit had been stiffened for stock buying.

Big Three motors and some of the rails moved upward strongly. Some of the aerospace issues, chemicals, electronics, tobaccos, office equipments and airlines also did well.

The rebound, brokers said, was partially accounted for by "bargain hunters" who were picking up stock at prices considerably lower than a week ago.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.23 at 746.26.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .7 at 278.8 with industrials up 1.0, rails up .4 and utilities up .3.

Pennsylvania Railroad's prediction that it would be in the black this year in contrast with a loss in 1962 accompanied vigorous buying in Pennsy which advanced more than a point.

Chrysler, up about 2, was the pacemaker among the recovering auto shares. Ford rose a full point. General Motors a shade less than that. American Motors added a fraction. Studebaker eased.

A loss exceeding a point by Du Pont put the brakes on the averages. U.S. Steel and Jersey Standard were easy while AT&T, Sears Roebuck and International Nickel traded about unchanged.

Up a point or so were Radio Corp., United Aircraft, Allied Chemical and Reynolds Tobacco.

Xerox rose 8. IBM 4. Polaroid and U.S. Smelting about 3 and Control Data 2.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were narrowly mixed. U.S. government bonds recovered a bit.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Shearson, Hammill & Co. says that "while longer term prospects for the stock market continue to be quite favorable, we believe that a somewhat greater degree of caution is justified for the time being."

"The market may be vulnerable to some correction in the foreseeable future," it adds, "and it would be prudent for those accounts who are fully invested in equities and heavily margined to increase their liquidity by selling some of the more doubtful issues in their portfolios."

Thomson & McKinnon says that "everybody is entitled to rest after a sharp climb and the stock market is no exception. Although further stock splits on the part of leaders may provide some market incentive, a period of consolidation or even slight correction would come as no great surprise."

Robert H. Stovall of E. F. Hutton & Co. says that "buying a stock on the basis that it might split is dangerous as there are bound to be disappointments. With the market high, but probably headed higher into 1964, a more sober approach would be to look to stocks that have a good bit of their future ahead of them and may be among the leaders next year."

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market showed a mild rallying tendency in the early afternoon today after having been weakening pressure most of the time on the Board of Trade.

Wheat moved to the plus side of previous closes for the first time of the day while feed grains posted small gains in spots and soybeans maintained a firm range.

Brokers said the transactions were largely speculative and reflected an absence of any definite influences either way.

Carlot receipts were estimated at: wheat 2 cars, corn 268, oats 1, rye none, barley 29, soybeans 11.

Marines Face 'Takeover' By Stricom

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tall, grim figure of Army Gen. Paul D. Adams is becoming a spectre to stalk troubled dreams of the Marine Corps.

Adams heads the joint Army-Air Force Strike Command called Stricom.

Stricom's sphere of influence is spreading across the world, engulfing previous preserves of the Navy. The Marine Corps is the shore-going arm of the Navy.

The function of Stricom — created two years ago by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara—is to rush troops, with air support, into far away places to cope with little wars or threats of wars. The Marine Corps has been specializing in this since the days of Tripoli.

Marines are beginning to wonder if Stricom, perhaps expanding still more under the command changes at which McNamara has been working steadily, may eventually reach out to take over at least some of the sea-borne forces of the Marine

So far, they have escaped. McNamara's latest order last Tuesday assigned to Adams' Stricom responsibility for "all U.S. defense activities in the Middle East, southern Asia, including India and Pakistan, and Africa south of the Sahara." This includes the Red Sea and Indian Ocean.

The naval forces in those areas are small. And they don't have Marine contingents of any importance.

But the danger looming in the minds of some Marines is that a future decision by McNamara —moving still further toward an eventual single, top combat command—might extend to Stricom jurisdiction over portions of fleets in the Atlantic and Pacific. Marines, afloat, are part of fleets.

Stricom was the agency which launched 15,000 Army troops in a swift airborne deployment to Europe last month in Exercise Big Lift. Stricom has something the Marine Corps lacks—access to hundreds of high-capacity, ocean - spanning transport planes.

It is entirely possible to find people in the Navy and Marine Corps who think Exercise Big L demonstrated that a fast deployment of large numbers of troops is feasible for only one area—Europe, with its pre-positioned depots.

'Bundle Days' Slated for Needy Children

Clothing for needy children is the aim of "Bundle Days," Nov. 11-15, sponsored by the Widefield-Security School System for the Save the Children Federation.

Richard Taylor, superintendent of schools, has appealed to Security residents to contribute both summer and winter shoes and garments. The schools in the Widefield-Security District will serve as collection centers.

Taylor said the clothing need not be perfect, but should be sturdy and in wearable condition. It will be distributed to needy children in this country, and in 17 foreign lands.

Save the Children Federation, with headquarters in Norwalk, Conn., was founded in 1932, and is registered with the U. S. State Department Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid. It helps children here and abroad thru sponsorships, self-help scholarships and family-school and community self-help projects, in addition to the Annual Clothing Drive.

Production Credit Assn. Reviews 30-Year Record

From loans to members of $45,000 in 1934 to loans to members of over eight and one-half million dollars, as of the end of September, is the 30-year record of the Colorado Springs Production Credit Association.

These figures were given by Joel Coulam, assistant manager of the association, at the annual stockholders meeting Wednesday in the city auditorium. About 500 persons enjoyed the 30th anniversary dinner.

5,381 loans were made during the 30-year period said Coulam. The total amount loaned, including renewals, was $99,501,267. Net charge-offs for losses amounted to only two cents per $100 cash advanced.

The association now numbers 421 members, from 12 charter members in 1934, according to Zenas R. Brush, business manager.

Paul L. Huntley, Coalville, president of the association since 1946, and Sam Midkiff, Firstview, were unanimously re-elected directors for three-year terms.

Kenneth M. Lyon, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, Wichita, Kan., addressed the meeting on "Helpful Credit Service."

"Agriculture, like other sections of our economy," he said, "is using more and more loan funds."

The production credit association is important to its members, he said, because it brings to them the borrowed part of their capital needs.

He emphasized that when a member borrows money from the association, part of the interest he pays goes to build the association and its lending funds.

Lyon outlined the strong points of a production credit association. They were: adequacy of credit source, dependability, and specialization in the ranchers' and farmers' fields.

"The association," he said, "is geared to meet the changing credit needs of farmers and ranchers and minister to them."

The lighter side of the meeting was presented by Joe Adelman, a police lieutenant from Kansas City, Mo. Masquerading as a "learned scientist" from various U.S. nuclear testing points and universities, he engendered much hilarity and applause with his rapid fire humor.

A door prize of a hand-dryer was awarded to Mrs. William Grimes of Seibert. The men's door prize, a skill saw, was won by W. V. Harding, Colorado Springs.

Boys, Fathers Attend Indian Guides Meet

More than one hundred young boys and their fathers attended an organizational meeting for 'Y' Indian Guides at the YMCA Tuesday evening. The meeting was designed to organize new Indian tribes throughout the Colorado Springs area.

This program is the father and son program offered by the 'Y' and is geared especially for first, second and third grade boys and their dads. The program has an Indian lore theme and requires that both father and son participate together in all of the activities.

Tribes are organized within the boundaries of the neighborhoods where they live and take turns meeting in the various homes. Activities consist of games, crafts, Indian lore, sign language and outdoor activities such as field trips and outings at the YMCA Catamount Ranch.

The 'Y' is very interested in greatly expanding this program year. Inquiries about the program should be directed to Robert Wierman, Program Secretary at 633-4643.

Donations for tickets are $1 per person. They may be obtained at the fire station in Stratton Meadows or by calling 632-1040.

Aurora Man Fined $210 On Two Counts

Richard Huston Martin was fined $210 and costs by Justice of the Peace James F. Quine Wednesday for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and being without a valid operator's license. Martin, 33, of Aurora, was arrested Oct. 20 on South 8th Street by State Patrolman Ken Shiflet.

Jimmie Dan Harris paid a $10 fine and costs for speeding. Harris, 30, of 2018 Ontario Dr. was ticketed Oct. 3 on North Circle Drive. According to the officer, Gordon Baumgardner, the defendant was driving at 45 miles per hour in a 35 zone.

Colonel Sharp To Receive Air Safety Award

Air Defense Command's chief of safety, Col. John F. Sharp, has been selected by Air Force headquarters as the USAF nominee for the coveted Laura Taber Barbour Air Safety Award.

Col. Sharp of Salt Lake City, Utah will compete for the annual award with representatives from world-wide aviation organizations.

Presented by the Flight Safety Foundation, the award is made in recognition of notable achievement in the field of civilian or military aviation safety.

Consisting of a gold medallion, certificate and honorarium, the award is a gift of Clifford E. Barbour, Sr., and Clifford E. Barbour, Jr., in honor of the memory of Mrs. Clifford E. Barbour, Sr., who lost her life in an aviation accident in 1945.

Col. Sharp was selected for designing and implementing a totally new concept in aviation safety for the Air Defense Command in 1953.

The veteran of over 20 years of service began a flying safety management program which, in just 15 months after it was set up in ADC, reduced flying accidents more than 75 per cent.

This safety plan, entitled "Safety, A Function of Management" was studied by a special committee which recommended it be put into immediate use.

Col. Sharp, a command pilot with more than 4,000 flying hours, added a personal touch to the program by publishing two booklets explaining the mission, responsibilities and some of the major problems involved in flying accidents. These booklets were sent to each pilot in Air Defense Command.

A year after the safety management program was put into use thruout Air Defense Command, Col. Sharp put together another book called "A Job Well Done is Inherently Safe." This booklet covered the new concept in flying safety management and amplified the ADC procedures and philosophies of accident-free flying.

The management program also called for presenting flying safety awards to units which compiled an outstanding accident-free record for a period of one year. Called the Air Defense Command "A" Award, it consisted of a certificate and helped esprit de corps among the units.

Col. Sharp's flying management program was adopted by other Air Force Major Commands and many civilian airlines are using some of his concepts.

'No Worry' Club Man Faces Charges

DETROIT (AP) — Fred B. Massey, 36, operator of a "No Worry Club," had something to worry about Wednesday.

Convicted by a federal court jury of mail fraud, Massey faces a penalty that could range up to a $6,000 fine or 30 years in prison.

James Finn, Ass't U.S. attorney, said Massey, of Detroit, had placed this advertisement in periodicals: "No Worry Club —details 25 cents."

Persons who replied, Finn said, were invited to send $7 for a list of Biblical quotations containing numbers. Finn charged Massey claimed if the person played the numbers in a numbers game, his worries would be over.

New Collection of Indian Artifacts Now on Display

A magnificent collection of Indian artifacts are now on display in the Colorado Springs Mineralogical Society's case in the city's Pioneers Museum, it was announced today by Miss Dorothy Smith, curator.

She said the display consists of Indian artifacts of every kind and description from tiny bird points to large grinding stones.

R. L. Chadbourne, 320 E. Uintah St., and C. E. Foard, 401 Grand Blvd., are the exhibitors. Both are members of the Mineralogical Society.

The display case and its contents are on loan to the museum thru the courtesy of the society, which promotes knowledge about minerals and their uses as one of its principal purposes.

The first display put in the case last June was a sparkling collection of minerals contributed by Clarence G. Coil, O. A. Reese, Col. Stuart Hayes, Robert Keithley, society president, Gayle Zinn, Raymond A. Ziegler, Baders Gems and Minerals and Pike Petrified Forest.

Miss Smith said the exhibits by the Mineralogical Society will be changed every few months and loaning of materials will be on a rotation basis among members.

The society display case stands on the lower floor of the two-story addition. The Indian artifacts are substantially different than anything else in the museum, and few duplicates can be found in other cases.

The locality range of the artifacts is expensive for it includes areas in Canada (such as Saskatchewan) to the Mexican pyramids near Mexico City.

And from east to west, Miss Smith said, the locality range is from the famous Ohio and Indiana Mounds to Vashon Island in Puget Sound.

Chadbourne and Foard said the collections contain rare chipped shovels and hoes from Missouri, plus effigy pipes, ground slate axes and gorgets, game stones, images, fetishes, catlinite pipes and arrow points in abundance.

The display of fine bird points is of superior excellence and probably without equal, Miss Smith said, except in famed museums.

"Not to forget our own region," she added, "the collection contains distinctive points from eastern Colorado — a frame of Yuma and a frame of Folsom projectile points, peculiar to the high plains country of Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico."

The Yuma points, by radioactive carbon 14 dating, at archaeological sites, have been determined to be from 6,000 to 7,000 years old, Chadbourne and Foard said.

The Folsom points, dated by the same process, have been found to be around 10,000 years in age.

Miss Smith said the collections is "fabulous" and should be seen by everyone in the region.

She also reminded that the Colorado Springs Mineralogical Society has maintained a mineral display and flourescent mineral display in the museum for the past 17 years.

The museum, a free attraction, is located at 25 W. Kiowa St.

Springs Water Storage Stays On Even Keel

Colorado Springs water storage stayed about on an even keel last week following four straight weeks of storage drops.

City Water Superintendent Jack A. McCullough said the average usage for the past week was about 18.2 million gallons, which is less than any time during the past five weeks.

As of Monday, McCullough, said, storage was 45.4 per cent of capacity with 4.7 billion gallons.

The reservoirs contained only 3.3 billion gallons of water Aug. 5 and were 32.4 per cent of capacity at that time.

While the city has gained 1.4 billion gallons since Aug. 5, the current storage is about one billion gallons less than on Nov. 1, 1962, when reservoirs were 55 per cent full with 5.7 billion gallons.

Cooler weather during the past week, with some moisture, cut down on usage, which should stabilize somewhere under 20 million gallons daily for the rest of the fall and winter.

The city has enough Blue River water in Montgomery Dam northwest of Alma to divert about six million gallons a day until the next spring runoff. The dam contains more than one billion gallons of water.

Production Credit Assn. Reviews 30-Year Record

From loans to members of $45,000 in 1934 to loans to members of over eight and one-half million dollars, as of the end of September, is the 30-year record of the Colorado Springs Production Credit Association.

These figures were given by Joel Coulam, assistant manager of the association, at the annual stockholders meeting Wednesday in the city auditorium. About 500 persons enjoyed the 30th anniversary dinner.

5,381 loans were made during the 30-year period said Coulam. The total amount loaned, including renewals, was $99,501,267. Net charge-offs for losses amounted to only two cents per $100 cash advanced.

The association now numbers 421 members, from 12 charter members in 1934, according to Zenas R. Brush, business manager.

Paul L. Huntley, Coalville, president of the association since 1946, and Sam Midkiff, Firstview, were unanimously re-elected directors for three-year terms.

Kenneth M. Lyon, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, Wichita, Kan., addressed the meeting on "Helpful Credit Service."

"Agriculture, like other sections of our economy," he said, "is using more and more loan funds."

The production credit association is important to its members, he said, because it brings to them the borrowed part of their capital needs.

He emphasized that when a member borrows money from the association, part of the interest he pays goes to build the association and its lending funds.

Lyon outlined the strong points of a production credit association. They were: adequacy of credit source, dependability, and specialization in the ranchers' and farmers' fields.

"The association," he said, "is geared to meet the changing credit needs of farmers and ranchers and minister to them."

The lighter side of the meeting was presented by Joe Adelman, a police lieutenant from Kansas City, Mo. Masquerading as a "learned scientist" from various U.S. nuclear testing points and universities, he engendered much hilarity and applause with his rapid fire humor.

A door prize of a hand-dryer was awarded to Mrs. William Grimes of Seibert. The men's door prize, a skill saw, was won by W. V. Harding, Colorado Springs.

Boys, Fathers Attend Indian Guides Meet

More than one hundred young boys and their fathers attended an organizational meeting for 'Y' Indian Guides at the YMCA Tuesday evening. The meeting was designed to organize new Indian tribes throughout the Colorado Springs area.

This program is the father and son program offered by the 'Y' and is geared especially for first, second and third grade boys and their dads. The program has an Indian lore theme and requires that both father and son participate together in all of the activities.

Tribes are organized within the boundaries of the neighborhoods where they live and take turns meeting in the various homes. Activities consist of games, crafts, Indian lore, sign language and outdoor activities such as field trips and outings at the YMCA Catamount Ranch.

The 'Y' is very interested in greatly expanding this program year. Inquiries about the program should be directed to Robert Wierman, Program Secretary at 633-4643.

Jimmie Dan Harris paid a $10 fine and costs for speeding. Harris, 30, of 2018 Ontario Dr. was ticketed Oct. 3 on North Circle Drive. According to the officer, Gordon Baumgardner, the defendant was driving at 45 miles per hour in a 35 zone.

Colonel Sharp To Receive Air Safety Award

Air Defense Command's chief of safety, Col. John F. Sharp, has been selected by Air Force headquarters as the USAF nominee for the coveted Laura Taber Barbour Air Safety Award.

Col. Sharp of Salt Lake City, Utah will compete for the annual award with representatives from world-wide aviation organizations.

Presented by the Flight Safety Foundation, the award is made in recognition of notable achievement in the field of civilian or military aviation safety.

Consisting of a gold medallion, certificate and honorarium, the award is a gift of Clifford E. Barbour, Sr., and Clifford E. Barbour, Jr., in honor of the memory of Mrs. Clifford E. Barbour, Sr., who lost her life in an aviation accident in 1945.

Col. Sharp was selected for designing and implementing a totally new concept in aviation safety for the Air Defense Command in 1953.

The veteran of over 20 years of service began a flying safety management program which, in just 15 months after it was set up in ADC, reduced flying accidents more than 75 per cent.

This safety plan, entitled "Safety, A Function of Management" was studied by a special committee which recommended it be put into immediate use.

Col. Sharp, a command pilot with more than 4,000 flying hours, added a personal touch to the program by publishing two booklets explaining the mission, responsibilities and some of the major problems involved in flying accidents. These booklets were sent to each pilot in Air Defense Command.

A year after the safety management program was put into use thruout Air Defense Command, Col. Sharp put together another book called "A Job Well Done is Inherently Safe." This booklet covered the new concept in flying safety management and amplified the ADC procedures and philosophies of accident-free flying.

The management program also called for presenting flying safety awards to units which compiled an outstanding accident-free record for a period of one year. Called the Air Defense Command "A" Award, it consisted of a certificate and helped esprit de corps among the units.

Col. Sharp's flying management program was adopted by other Air Force Major Commands and many civilian airlines are using some of his concepts.

'No Worry' Club Man Faces Charges

DETROIT (AP) — Fred B. Massey, 36, operator of a "No Worry Club," had something to worry about Wednesday.

Convicted by a federal court jury of mail fraud, Massey faces a penalty that could range up to a $6,000 fine or 30 years in prison.

James Finn, Ass't U.S. attorney, said Massey, of Detroit, had placed this advertisement in periodicals: "No Worry Club —details 25 cents."

Persons who replied, Finn said, were invited to send $7 for a list of Biblical quotations containing numbers. Finn charged Massey claimed if the person played the numbers in a numbers game, his worries would be over.

New Collection of Indian Artifacts Now on Display

A magnificent collection of Indian artifacts are now on display in the Colorado Springs Mineralogical Society's case in the city's Pioneers Museum, it was announced today by Miss Dorothy Smith, curator.

She said the display consists of Indian artifacts of every kind and description from tiny bird points to large grinding stones.

R. L. Chadbourne, 320 E. Uintah St., and C. E. Foard, 401 Grand Blvd., are the exhibitors. Both are members of the Mineralogical Society.

The display case and its contents are on loan to the museum thru the courtesy of the society, which promotes knowledge about minerals and their uses as one of its principal purposes.

The first display put in the case last June was a sparkling collection of minerals contributed by Clarence G. Coil, O. A. Reese, Col. Stuart Hayes, Robert Keithley, society president, Gayle Zinn, Raymond A. Ziegler, Baders Gems and Minerals and Pike Petrified Forest.

Miss Smith said the exhibits by the Mineralogical Society will be changed every few months and loaning of materials will be on a rotation basis among members.

The society display case stands on the lower floor of the two-story addition. The Indian artifacts are substantially different than anything else in the museum, and few duplicates can be found in other cases.

The locality range of the artifacts is expensive for it includes areas in Canada (such as Saskatchewan) to the Mexican pyramids near Mexico City.

And from east to west, Miss Smith said, the locality range is from the famous Ohio and Indiana Mounds to Vashon Island in Puget Sound.

Chadbourne and Foard said the collections contain rare chipped shovels and hoes from Missouri, plus effigy pipes, ground slate axes and gorgets, game stones, images, fetishes, catlinite pipes and arrow points in abundance.

The display of fine bird points is of superior excellence and probably without equal, Miss Smith said, except in famed museums.

"Not to forget our own region," she added, "the collection contains distinctive points from eastern Colorado — a frame of Yuma and a frame of Folsom projectile points, peculiar to the high plains country of Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico."

The Yuma points, by radioactive carbon 14 dating, at archaeological sites, have been determined to be from 6,000 to 7,000 years old, Chadbourne and Foard said.

The Folsom points, dated by the same process, have been found to be around 10,000 years in age.

Miss Smith said the collections is "fabulous" and should be seen by everyone in the region.

She also reminded that the Colorado Springs Mineralogical Society has maintained a mineral display and flourescent mineral display in the museum for the past 17 years.

The museum, a free attraction, is located at 25 W. Kiowa St.

Springs Water Storage Stays On Even Keel

Colorado Springs water storage stayed about on an even keel last week following four straight weeks of storage drops.

City Water Superintendent Jack A. McCullough said the average usage for the past week was about 18.2 million gallons, which is less than any time during the past five weeks.

As of Monday, McCullough, said, storage was 45.4 per cent of capacity with 4.7 billion gallons.

The reservoirs contained only 3.3 billion gallons of water Aug. 5 and were 32.4 per cent of capacity at that time.

While the city has gained 1.4 billion gallons since Aug. 5, the current storage is about one billion gallons less than on Nov. 1, 1962, when reservoirs were 55 per cent full with 5.7 billion gallons.

Cooler weather during the past week, with some moisture, cut down on usage, which should stabilize somewhere under 20 million gallons daily for the rest of the fall and winter.

The city has enough Blue River water in Montgomery Dam northwest of Alma to divert about six million gallons a day until the next spring runoff. The dam contains more than one billion gallons of water.

Gun Discharges; Youth Suffers Wounded Hand

Clifford Petty of 219 N. 15th St. suffered a superficial wound on the left hand between the thumb and first finger when his .38 caliber revolver accidentally discharged, the sheriff's department reported this morning.

Deputy Sheriffs Charles Dietsche and Bob Newman said Petty was returning from Buena Vista and between Florissant and Wilkerson Pass when he saw two coyotes.

He got out of the car to shoot one of them but decided it was unsafe as there were houses close by. The gun was cocked and when he attempted to uncock it it went off. He was treated at St. Francis Hospital. The wound is described as slight and no stitches were required.

U.S. Newspapers Gobble Up Record Newsprint Supply

Consumption of newsprint by U. S. newspapers jumped 65,000 tons in 1962 to a record high 7,421,000 tons, says Commerce Clearing House.

This figure represents nearly half the world's total newsprint consumption and was reached despite prolonged major newspaper strikes in New York City and Cleveland last year.

Even tho both strikes extended into 1963, the usual greater consumption in the second half of the year is expected to make up the first-half loss, bringing total 1963 U. S. newsprint use to about 7.7 million tons, CCH pointed out.

In its review of a special congressional committee report on world supply and demand for newsprint, CCH notes that altho the U. S. is far and away the largest consumer, it ranks a distant second to Canada in the amount of annual newsprint production.

Last year, Canada produced 6.6 million tons of newsprint compared to U. S. output of 2.1 million tons. Almost 5.3 million tons of the Canadian production was imported by U. S. papers. The only other substantial U. S. supplier was Finland which furnished 183,000 tons for U. S. needs.

Newsprint consumption in Great Britain during 1962 rose only slightly to about 1.4 million tons, CCh said.

Other Western European countries accounted for a 3 per cent rise in newsprint use to over 2.7 million tons.

Scandinavian nations consumed only a little more than 300,000 tons, but they claimed third place in production with almost 2 million tons in 1962.

Estimates for communist bloc countries U. S. S. R., Red China and the satellites, shows a continued reduction in use of newsprint, totalling 1962 tonnage of 800 million, CCH commented.

In accounting for the rising use of newsprint in 1962, the Congressional report pointed out that newspaper circulation and advertising linage, as the principal factors in consumption, both showed increases during the year, CCH said.

Aggregate circulation of dailies rose 2 per cent to over 60 million, enough to offset a fractional decrease in Sunday circulation.

Outlays for newspaper advertising last year reached a record high $3.8 billion, an estimated 31 per cent of the nation's total advertising budget, CCH noted.

The Committee report also indicated that the U. S. will continue as the world's largest newsprint user thru 1965, when it will consume about 8.4 million tons.

In terms of world newsprint production capacity, the excess of supplies over demand which has prevailed since 1958 can also be expected to continue thru 1965, the CCH review concluded.

Higher Margin Will Not Affect Most Stock Buyers

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Higher stock margin requirements may cut trading volume on the nation's exchanges and also the amount of profit a speculator may hope for—if he guesses right. And it's the speculator, as distinguished from the investor, that the Federal Reserve Board has in mind in raising the cash ante to 70 per cent from 50 per cent in buying stocks.

But the effect on stock prices themselves of changing the margin rules may be only temporary, if past experience is a guide. And the Fed, in truth, disavows any interest in swaying price trends.

Most stock buyers, whether individuals or institutions, probably will be affected very little, since they usually buy for cash as an investment.

Exchange officials stress that the percentage of the daily volume done on credit, although usually rising in boiling markets, is probably smaller than most onlookers suspect.

And exchanges and their member brokerage houses also have margin rules, usually calling for more cash to be put up well before a stock's price drops to the official margin setbythe well before a stock's price drops to the official margin set by the Fed.

But that regulator of credit notes that the total credit volume—borrowing from broker or from banks to buy stock—has risen 43 per cent in the last year to about $7 billion. In that period consumer credit, more familiar to most families, was going up 10 per cent.

Those who buy on margin usually do so because that way they can make more money than if they pay cash—if they've chosen the right stocks. They can lose more, too, if they've picked lemons.

Suppose you have $1,000 for stock buying. If the price of your choice is $100, say, you can buy 10 shares for cash. Monday, when the margin was 50 per cent, you could have bought—or got part equity in—20 shares. If the price goes up to $125 as you hope, you've made $25, minus commissions, if you paid cash. But you've made $50, minus commissions and interest on the loan, if you bought on margin.

If the stock drops sharply in price, of course, you may find your broker selling it and wiping out your account.

Today, with the margin at 70 per cent, you can't buy 20 shares on margin with your $1,000. You'd need $1,400 in cash plus the $600 your broker lent you. And the price would have to rise higher for you to get the same yield on the cash involved.

That's why it's bull markets that attract margin traders.

And it's the recent bull market—and more particularly the notably rising volume of trading and of outstanding credit involved—that the Fed is probably eyeing in its move.

Ford Sets Monthly Record on Auto, Truck Output

Ford Motor Co. built more cars and more trucks in October than in any previous month in company history.

The record combined production of cars and trucks was 274,432, surpassing the previous record of 246,276 units set in November, 1955.

Passenger car production of 232,727 exceeded the previous monthly record of 210,692 set in November, 1955. October truck production of 41,705 bettered the old record of 41,339, established in May, 1929.

The record total raised car and truck production for the first 10 months of 1963 to 1,935,240 units, highest for such a period since 1955, when 2,147,770 vehicles were built.

Ford Motor Company also set a daily production record Oct. 23, by building 11,423 cars and trucks, and a weekly mark of 62,481 cars and trucks in the week ending Oct. 19. Production scheduled for this week is expected to establish records for combined car and truck output.

Standard Ford car production of 95,025 in October was up 24.6 per cent from October, 1962, and 10-month standard Ford production of 729,623 this year was 25.6 per cent ahead of the first 10 months of 1962.

Comet production of 23,226 units during October was 73.3 per cent more than in October a year ago.

Domestic tractor production in October was 2,185 units.

Penney Company Sales Increase

NEW YORK — J. C. Penney Co. reported today a 6.3 per cent sales increase for October.

The department store chain said volume climbed to a record $151,214,239 against $142,208,920 last year despite unseasonably warm weather which prevailed thruout most of the country during much of the month. The volume increase was $9,005,319.

This year's increase was considered all the more significant, because it came on top of an October, 1962, during which a 8.8 per cent sales rise was registered.

Company sales for the first three quarters of the fiscal year which began on Feb. 1 also constituted a record, running 5.9 per cent ahead of the 1962 period. Nine-month sales were $1,221,601,889 against $1,153,721,832 last year, an increase of $67,880,057.

Penney's had 1,679 department stores in operation on Oct. 31 compared with 1,687 on the same 1962 date. No stores were opened or closed in October.

'Bundle Days' Slated for Needy Children

Clothing for needy children is the aim of "Bundle Days," Nov. 11-15, sponsored by the Widefield-Security School System for the Save the Children Federation.

Richard Taylor, superintendent of schools, has appealed to Security residents to contribute both summer and winter shoes and garments. The schools in the Widefield-Security District will serve as collection centers.

Taylor said the clothing need not be perfect, but should be sturdy and in wearable condition. It will be distributed to needy children in this country, and in 17 foreign lands.

Save the Children Federation, with headquarters in Norwalk, Conn., was founded in 1932, and is registered with the U. S. State Department Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid. It helps children here and abroad thru sponsorships, self-help scholarships and family-school and community self-help projects, in addition to the Annual Clothing Drive.

Production Credit Assn. Reviews 30-Year Record

From loans to members of $45,000 in 1934 to loans to members of over eight and one-half million dollars, as of the end of September, is the 30-year record of the Colorado Springs Production Credit Association.

These figures were given by Joel Coulam, assistant manager of the association, at the annual stockholders meeting Wednesday in the city auditorium. About 500 persons enjoyed the 30th anniversary dinner.

5,381 loans were made during the 30-year period said Coulam. The total amount loaned, including renewals, was $99,501,267. Net charge-offs for losses amounted to only two cents per $100 cash advanced.

The association now numbers 421 members, from 12 charter members in 1934, according to Zenas R. Brush, business manager.

Paul L. Huntley, Coalville, president of the association since 1946, and Sam Midkiff, Firstview, were unanimously re-elected directors for three-year terms.

Kenneth M. Lyon, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, Wichita, Kan., addressed the meeting on "Helpful Credit Service."

"Agriculture, like other sections of our economy," he said, "is using more and more loan funds."

The production credit association is important to its members, he said, because it brings to them the borrowed part of their capital needs.

He emphasized that when a member borrows money from the association, part of the interest he pays goes to build the association and its lending funds.

Lyon outlined the strong points of a production credit association. They were: adequacy of credit source, dependability, and specialization in the ranchers' and farmers' fields.

"The association," he said, "is geared to meet the changing credit needs of farmers and ranchers and minister to them."

The lighter side of the meeting was presented by Joe Adelman, a police lieutenant from Kansas City, Mo. Masquerading as a "learned scientist" from various U.S. nuclear testing points and universities, he engendered much hilarity and applause with his rapid fire humor.

A door prize of a hand-dryer was awarded to Mrs. William Grimes of Seibert. The men's door prize, a skill saw, was won by W. V. Harding, Colorado Springs.

Boys, Fathers Attend Indian Guides Meet

More than one hundred young boys and their fathers attended an organizational meeting for 'Y' Indian Guides at the YMCA Tuesday evening. The meeting was designed to organize new Indian tribes throughout the Colorado Springs area.

This program is the father and son program offered by the 'Y' and is geared especially for first, second and third grade boys and their dads. The program has an Indian lore theme and requires that both father and son participate together in all of the activities.

Tribes are organized within the boundaries of the neighborhoods where they live and take turns meeting in the various homes. Activities consist of games, crafts, Indian lore, sign language and outdoor activities such as field trips and outings at the YMCA Catamount Ranch.

The 'Y' is very interested in greatly expanding this program year. Inquiries about the program should be directed to Robert Wierman, Program Secretary at 633-4643.

Jimmie Dan Harris paid a $10 fine and costs for speeding. Harris, 30, of 2018 Ontario Dr. was ticketed Oct. 3 on North Circle Drive. According to the officer, Gordon Baumgardner, the defendant was driving at 45 miles per hour in a 35 zone.

Contributors of the artifacts are C. E. Foard (second from right) and R. L. Chadbourne (right). Colonel Sharp To Receive Air Safety Award

Air Defense Command's chief of safety, Col. John F. Sharp, has been selected by Air Force headquarters as the USAF nominee for the coveted Laura Taber Barbour Air Safety Award.

Col. Sharp of Salt Lake City, Utah will compete for the annual award with representatives from world-wide aviation organizations.

Presented by the Flight Safety Foundation, the award is made in recognition of notable achievement in the field of civilian or military aviation safety.

Consisting of a gold medallion, certificate and honorarium, the award is a gift of Clifford E. Barbour, Sr., and Clifford E. Barbour, Jr., in honor of the memory of Mrs. Clifford E. Barbour, Sr., who lost her life in an aviation accident in 1945.

Col. Sharp was selected for designing and implementing a totally new concept in aviation safety for the Air Defense Command in 1953.

The veteran of over 20 years of service began a flying safety management program which, in just 15 months after it was set up in ADC, reduced flying accidents more than 75 per cent.

This safety plan, entitled "Safety, A Function of Management" was studied by a special committee which recommended it be put into immediate use.

Col. Sharp, a command pilot with more than 4,000 flying hours, added a personal touch to the program by publishing two booklets explaining the mission, responsibilities and some of the major problems involved in flying accidents. These booklets were sent to each pilot in Air Defense Command.

A year after the safety management program was put into use thruout Air Defense Command, Col. Sharp put together another book called "A Job Well Done is Inherently Safe." This booklet covered the new concept in flying safety management and amplified the ADC procedures and philosophies of accident-free flying.

The management program also called for presenting flying safety awards to units which compiled an outstanding accident-free record for a period of one year. Called the Air Defense Command "A" Award, it consisted of a certificate and helped esprit de corps among the units.

Col. Sharp's flying management program was adopted by other Air Force Major Commands and many civilian airlines are using some of his concepts.

New Collection of Indian Artifacts Now on Display

A magnificent collection of Indian artifacts are now on display in the Colorado Springs Mineralogical Society's case in the city's Pioneers Museum, it was announced today by Miss Dorothy Smith, curator.

She said the display consists of Indian artifacts of every kind and description from tiny bird points to large grinding stones.

R. L. Chadbourne, 320 E. Uintah St., and C. E. Foard, 401 Grand Blvd., are the exhibitors. Both are members of the Mineralogical Society.

The display case and its contents are on loan to the museum thru the courtesy of the society, which promotes knowledge about minerals and their uses as one of its principal purposes.

The first display put in the case last June was a sparkling collection of minerals contributed by Clarence G. Coil, O. A. Reese, Col. Stuart Hayes, Robert Keithley, society president, Gayle Zinn, Raymond A. Ziegler, Baders Gems and Minerals and Pike Petrified Forest.

Miss Smith said the exhibits by the Mineralogical Society will be changed every few months and loaning of materials will be on a rotation basis among members.

The society display case stands on the lower floor of the two-story addition. The Indian artifacts are substantially different than anything else in the museum, and few duplicates can be found in other cases.

The locality range of the artifacts is expensive for it includes areas in Canada (such as Saskatchewan) to the Mexican pyramids near Mexico City.

And from east to west, Miss Smith said, the locality range is from the famous Ohio and Indiana Mounds to Vashon Island in Puget Sound.

Chadbourne and Foard said the collections contain rare chipped shovels and hoes from Missouri, plus effigy pipes, ground slate axes and gorgets, game stones, images, fetishes, catlinite pipes and arrow points in abundance.

The display of fine bird points is of superior excellence and probably without equal, Miss Smith said, except in famed museums.

"Not to forget our own region," she added, "the collection contains distinctive points from eastern Colorado — a frame of Yuma and a frame of Folsom projectile points, peculiar to the high plains country of Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico."

The Yuma points, by radioactive carbon 14 dating, at archaeological sites, have been determined to be from 6,000 to 7,000 years old, Chadbourne and Foard said.

The Folsom points, dated by the same process, have been found to be around 10,000 years in age.

Miss Smith said the collections is "fabulous" and should be seen by everyone in the region.

She also reminded that the Colorado Springs Mineralogical Society has maintained a mineral display and flourescent mineral display in the museum for the past 17 years.

The museum, a free attraction, is located at 25 W. Kiowa St.

Springs Water Storage Stays On Even Keel

Colorado Springs water storage stayed about on an even keel last week following four straight weeks of storage drops.

City Water Superintendent Jack A. McCullough said the average usage for the past week was about 18.2 million gallons, which is less than any time during the past five weeks.

As of Monday, McCullough, said, storage was 45.4 per cent of capacity with 4.7 billion gallons.

The reservoirs contained only 3.3 billion gallons of water Aug. 5 and were 32.4 per cent of capacity at that time.

While the city has gained 1.4 billion gallons since Aug. 5, the current storage is about one billion gallons less than on Nov. 1, 1962, when reservoirs were 55 per cent full with 5.7 billion gallons.

Cooler weather during the past week, with some moisture, cut down on usage, which should stabilize somewhere under 20 million gallons daily for the rest of the fall and winter.

The city has enough Blue River water in Montgomery Dam northwest of Alma to divert about six million gallons a day until the next spring runoff. The dam contains more than one billion gallons of water.

'No Worry' Club Man Faces Charges

DETROIT (AP) — Fred B. Massey, 36, operator of a "No Worry Club," had something to worry about Wednesday.

Convicted by a federal court jury of mail fraud, Massey faces a penalty that could range up to a $6,000 fine or 30 years in prison.

James Finn, Ass't U.S. attorney, said Massey, of Detroit, had placed this advertisement in periodicals: "No Worry Club —details 25 cents."

Persons who replied, Finn said, were invited to send $7 for a list of Biblical quotations containing numbers. Finn charged Massey claimed if the person played the numbers in a numbers game, his worries would be over.

Virginia License Tags Popular in Spain

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MADRID (AP)—They tell the story of a visiting congressman who spotted an automobile bearing Virginia license tags.

He stuck his hand through the open front window, and said to the driver, "Hello, neighbor. I'm Congressman so-and-so from your home state of Virginia." The response was an open-eyed stare and a torrent of Spanish which left the congressman as confused as the man he addressed.

The driver had never been closer to Virginia than his Spanish post office. He was one of hundreds of foreign residents of Spain who bought license plates by mail to operate an imported car in Spain.

Officials in Madrid estimate Virginia-registered automobiles in Spain in the high hundreds. Those with Florida plates are rapidly catching up.

A Madrid automobile dealer explained why. Spanish control of foreign-registered cars has been mild. Any automobile dealer here could accept orders for foreign-made cars—from Italy, France, Germany or Britain, or even from the United States. Once the cars reached the Spanish frontier the dealer needed only a pair of foreign license plates and the new owner's passport to bring them into Spain duty free on a "temporary" basis. This temporary period could be automatically extended by driving the car into France or Portugal every six months.

Why Virginia or Florida plates? Because those states were accommodating in issuing auto registrations and license plates to people writing from abroad, so long as an address—valid or not—was cited.

Virginia reaped a good harvest from Spanish drivers until the Old Dominion slapped an extra $25 charge on registrations for cars not insured by companies operating within the state. Since most of the applicants from Spain had only Spanish insurance, the cost was high for them.

So automobile dealers here switched to Florida.

"These two states are not the only source of registrations for cars legally—I repeat legally—imported into Spain with foreign tags," said one dealer. "We used to get cars registered in Morocco or in Gibraltar, but that is harder now."

Recently announced plans to revive transient tourist plates for cars of foreigners in Spain should rapidly phase out foreign registrations and spoil a profitable mail-order business for American states.

Automobiles owned or brought in by foreign or Spanish temporary residents in Spain will be issued the new transient tourist plates. After one year the cars must leave Spain, be legally registered with Spanish permanent tags, or face confiscation.

Why not register a car with Spanish license plates in the first place? Because the import of foreign cars for registration in Spain is sharply controlled. Spanish customs and registration charges on imported vehicles are extremely high, running up to 150 per cent of the original valuation in some cases.

Sugar Trusts Said Favoring Foreign Interest

WASHINGTON (UPI)— A Texas congressman predicted today the "sugar trust" next year will be on the side of foreign interests as opposed to American farmers.

Rep. Walter Rogers, D-Tex., a leading critic of administration sugar policies last year, said he would be in the forefront of next year's legislative battle on new sugar legislation.

"It's time that citizens with a direct and indirect stake in the outcome should be thinking about the question of how much of our sugar is to be supplied by domestic producers and how much of it is to be imported from foreign countries," he said.

"Again, the sugar trust— the combine of U.S. and foreign sugar interests which has been effective in dictating past and present U.S. sugar policies—will attempt to keep a substantial portion of the supply out of the hands of our own farmers," Rogers said in a statement.

In 1962 Congress allocated the 3 million tons formerly received from Cuba to foreign producers. But the allocations expire Dec. 31, 1964. Therefore, a new sugar bill must be enacted.

Tuesday, Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman said he would recommend legislation to permit additional marketing of domestic sugar from this year's crop. But this would not affect next year's crop or foreign quotas under the basic sugar law.

If a million tons of the former Cuban quota were assigned to U.S. farmers, Rogers said these benefits would result:

—400,000 acres could be put in sugar beets, bringing a substantial reduction in acreage now producing surplus crops.

—Since it takes $300 in capital investment to provide processing plant capacity for one ton of beets, an investment opportunity of $300 million would be provided for American free enterprise.

—Several thousand new jobs would be opened.

—The balance - of - payments deficit would be reduced.

Under the current law, American sugar is supplied as follows:

Domestic beet 2.6 million tons; mainland cane 900,000 tons; Hawaiian cane 1.1 million tons; Puerto Rico 1.1 million tons; Virgin Islands, 15,000 tons; Philippines 1 million tons; miscellaneous foreign nations, 1.2 million tons; unspecified global quota filled on a first-come-first served basis 1.6 million tons.

100-Year-Old Says She Is Still Voting

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Miss Alvina Olsen, who taught school in San Lorenzo, Calif., for 50 years, told thousands of students they should always vote on election day if they were to be good citizens.

She always did so herself, and still does, she said.

Miss Olsen marks her 100th birthday in Oakland today with a quiet celebration.

"When you are my age," she said, "all your friends are gone."

Virginia License Tags Popular in Spain

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MADRID (AP)—They tell the story of a visiting congressman who spotted an automobile bearing Virginia license tags.

He stuck his hand through the open front window, and said to the driver, "Hello, neighbor. I'm Congressman so-and-so from your home state of Virginia." The response was an open-eyed stare and a torrent of Spanish which left the congressman as confused as the man he addressed.

The driver had never been closer to Virginia than his Spanish post office. He was one of hundreds of foreign residents of Spain who bought license plates by mail to operate an imported car in Spain.

Officials in Madrid estimate Virginia-registered automobiles in Spain in the high hundreds. Those with Florida plates are rapidly catching up.

A Madrid automobile dealer explained why. Spanish control of foreign-registered cars has been mild. Any automobile dealer here could accept orders for foreign-made cars—from Italy, France, Germany or Britain, or even from the United States. Once the cars reached the Spanish frontier the dealer needed only a pair of foreign license plates and the new owner's passport to bring them into Spain duty free on a "temporary" basis. This temporary period could be automatically extended by driving the car into France or Portugal every six months.

Virginia License Tags Popular in Spain

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MADRID (AP)—They tell the story of a visiting congressman who spotted an automobile bearing Virginia license tags.

He stuck his hand through the open front window, and said to the driver, "Hello, neighbor. I'm Congressman so-and-so from your home state of Virginia." The response was an open-eyed stare and a torrent of Spanish which left the congressman as confused as the man he addressed.

The driver had never been closer to Virginia than his Spanish post office. He was one of hundreds of foreign residents of Spain who bought license plates by mail to operate an imported car in Spain.

Officials in Madrid estimate Virginia-registered automobiles in Spain in the high hundreds. Those with Florida plates are rapidly catching up.

A Madrid automobile dealer explained why. Spanish control of foreign-registered cars has been mild. Any automobile dealer here could accept orders for foreign-made cars—from Italy, France, Germany or Britain, or even from the United States. Once the cars reached the Spanish frontier the dealer needed only a pair of foreign license plates and the new owner's passport to bring them into Spain duty free on a "temporary" basis. This temporary period could be automatically extended by driving the car into France or Portugal every six months.

Why Virginia or Florida plates? Because those states were accommodating in issuing auto registrations and license plates to people writing from abroad, so long as an address—valid or not—was cited.

Virginia reaped a good harvest from Spanish drivers until the Old Dominion slapped an extra $25 charge on registrations for cars not insured by companies operating within the state. Since most of the applicants from Spain had only Spanish insurance, the cost was high for them.

So automobile dealers here switched to Florida.

"These two states are not the only source of registrations for cars legally—I repeat legally—imported into Spain with foreign tags," said one dealer. "We used to get cars registered in Morocco or in Gibraltar, but that is harder now."

Recently announced plans to revive transient tourist plates for cars of foreigners in Spain should rapidly phase out foreign registrations and spoil a profitable mail-order business for American states.

Automobiles owned or brought in by foreign or Spanish temporary residents in Spain will be issued the new transient tourist plates. After one year the cars must leave Spain, be legally registered with Spanish permanent tags, or face confiscation.

Why not register a car with Spanish license plates in the first place? Because the import of foreign cars for registration in Spain is sharply controlled. Spanish customs and registration charges on imported vehicles are extremely high, running up to 150 per cent of the original valuation in some cases.

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED—Sister Domenica, a native of County Galway in Ireland, poses at a White House door after visiting President Kennedy. Seeing the president cleared the way for her return to Stafford, England, where her Mother Superior and other nuns told her—jokingly—not to come back without meeting Kennedy. The 72-year-old nun said she recalled when Kennedy visited Ireland he extended a blanket invitation to all Irishmen to drop in and see him if they came to this country. (AP Wirephoto)

Sugar Trusts Said Favoring Foreign Interest

WASHINGTON (UPI)— A Texas congressman predicted today the "sugar trust" next year will be on the side of foreign interests as opposed to American farmers.

Rep. Walter Rogers, D-Tex., a leading critic of administration sugar policies last year, said he would be in the forefront of next year's legislative battle on new sugar legislation.

"It's time that citizens with a direct and indirect stake in the outcome should be thinking about the question of how much of our sugar is to be supplied by domestic producers and how much of it is to be imported from foreign countries," he said.

"Again, the sugar trust— the combine of U.S. and foreign sugar interests which has been effective in dictating past and present U.S. sugar policies—will attempt to keep a substantial portion of the supply out of the hands of our own farmers," Rogers said in a statement.

In 1962 Congress allocated the 3 million tons formerly received from Cuba to foreign producers. But the allocations expire Dec. 31, 1964. Therefore, a new sugar bill must be enacted.

Tuesday, Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman said he would recommend legislation to permit additional marketing of domestic sugar from this year's crop. But this would not affect next year's crop or foreign quotas under the basic sugar law.

If a million tons of the former Cuban quota were assigned to U.S. farmers, Rogers said these benefits would result:

—400,000 acres could be put in sugar beets, bringing a substantial reduction in acreage now producing surplus crops.

—Since it takes $300 in capital investment to provide processing plant capacity for one ton of beets, an investment opportunity of $300 million would be provided for American free enterprise.

—Several thousand new jobs would be opened.

—The balance - of - payments deficit would be reduced.

Under the current law, American sugar is supplied as follows:

Domestic beet 2.6 million tons; mainland cane 900,000 tons; Hawaiian cane 1.1 million tons; Puerto Rico 1.1 million tons; Virgin Islands, 15,000 tons; Philippines 1 million tons; miscellaneous foreign nations, 1.2 million tons; unspecified global quota filled on a first-come-first served basis 1.6 million tons.

100-Year-Old Says She Is Still Voting

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Miss Alvina Olsen, who taught school in San Lorenzo, Calif., for 50 years, told thousands of students they should always vote on election day if they were to be good citizens.

She always did so herself, and still does, she said.

Miss Olsen marks her 100th birthday in Oakland today with a quiet celebration.

"When you are my age," she said, "all your friends are gone."
